Traitors Foil Spanish Trap To Dynamite Rebel Attack

Spies Cut Wires Leading to Explosives Before Attack on Irun.

15,000 Are Locked In Fierce Fighting

Copyright, 1936, by the Associated Press.

With Spanish government forces, Irun, Spain, Aug. 27.—A carefully laid trap to blow up rebel troops advancing over a dynamite-sown field failed tonight through traitorism, as 15,000 men locked in battle at the close of the second day of a concerted rebel drive along the Irun-San Sebastian sector.

Leaders of the government forces disclosed that before the rebels loosed their attack Wednesday morning sticks of dynamite were planted under the route the attackers were expected ot traverse. Wires ran from the dynamite furrows back to positions behind the government lines, where switches were ready to be thrown the second the rebel attackers stepped on the explosive ground.

Wires Cut by Spies.

Quickly the detonating plungers were shoved down.

But nothing happened.

The wires had been cut—by spies in their own ranks, loyalists said after the territory was recaptured by their forces today.

Nevertheless, the deadly scythe of machine gun fire cut down hundreds of rebels during the two days of fighting, government leaders said, while only a handful of their own men were killed and wounded.

Unofficial estimates, however, were that the government casualties had been about half those of the rebels.

Tonight the failure of the rebels to capture Irun after wave upon wave of insurgent fighting men had been thrown against the city, was hailed by government leaders as a great victory.

About 15,000 men, observers estimated, fought in the bloody attacks and counterattacks.

French Issue Warning.

Across the frontier, French authorities at Hendaye were keeping vigilant patrol as several air bombs and artillery shells again fell on French soil.

They issued warnings to both Spanish belligerents against "errors in firing."

At the close of the day's battle, the armies remained still deadlocked, with the position of neither indicating a decisive result.

Loyalists said inhabitants of Oviedo were waving white flags signifying they preferred surrender of the town to repeated attacks by government forces.

For weeks dynamite-carrying loyalist miners have been bombarding the town.

Government artillery crews were reported hauling the guns of battered Fort Guadalupe back to new positions. The fort, bombarded for weeks by rebels from the air and sea, now is being used solely as a prison for rebel prisoners, it was said.

Across the frontier, residents stuck it out in their homes, although a projectile from a Spanish government warplane cut a huge hole in French oil along the Bidassoa River. No casualties were reported.

(Two artillery shells fell across the river into French soil Wednesday.)

Government sources asserted their men had cut railroads between Merida and Caceres, breaking communication between the rebel northern and southern armies.

At San Sebastain, loyalist forces were reported moving up to meet a rebel advance from Tolosa.

Rebel Plane Shot Down.

Madrid, Aug. 27 (AP).—An official government communique today announced a rebel airplane, failing in an attempted raid on Madrid, had been shot down by machine-gun fire.

The plane appeared over the city

Social Fetes Just Novelist's Material, Wodehouse Claims

By the Associated Press.

P. G. Wodehouse, the novelist, yesterday appealed a $32,071 income tax deficiency for 1933 to the Board of Tax Appeals.

The Treasury Department, in fixing Wodehouse's taxable income at $105,814 for 1933, disallowed a deduction of $30,000, which the novelist claimed was spent for travel and entertainment in society. Wodehouse, who lives in England, claimed these were ordinary and necessary to his profession, because he said he obtained much of the material for his productions in society circles.

Their Gallant Efforts Failed

Avis Higdon, 12, and Phyllis Richards, 11, made heroic efforts to save Avis' brother and Phyllis' sister from drowning at Benedict, Md. But the two perished.

Heroine, 12, Fails to Save Boy, Girl From Drowning in River

Children, 8 and 9, Disappear While Wading in Patuxent; Sister of Lad Swims to Their Aid, but Is Unable to Effect Rescue.

This is the story of two little heroines, two children who drowned, and a happy birthday party that might have been, except for a misunderstood cry for help and a frayed rope that broke when an alarm bell was rung.

The two little victims of the tragedy down on the Patuxent River, a mile from Benedict, Md., were Clayton Higdon, 9, whose father purchased a cottage on the river "so the boy could get healthy again;" and Shirley Richards, 8-year-old girl cousin of Clayton.

One heroine is Avis Higdon, who put ten times the courage of a 12-year-old, all her strength and quick thinking into her effort to save her young brother, Clayton, and her cousin, Shirley.

The second heroine is Phyllis Richards, sister of Shirley. It was she whom Avis, struggling in the water, sent for help. It was Phyllis who summoned Avis' mother. And it was Phyllis who tried to ring the alarm bell and failed because the rope broke.

Scream Misunderstood.

The rescue failed because Avis, treading water with all her might, and holding to the ar mof one child and to the shorts of another, both under water, could not hold on when she was pulled into the boat by a willing colored man who did not understand her screams:

"There are two more down there. Please get them."

The story really begins about two years ago. It began with realization in the Higdon family that young Clayton's health was not all that it should be; that a little outdoor life and sunshine might help; that a little swimming down on the river might bring the boy his strength.

Where to go? How about down on Uncle's farm? Just the spot. On the river about a mile from Benedict.

So Clayton's father bought a cottage down there. And Young Clayton and his sister and cousins and playmates had many a gay time on the place. It was safe enough. Hadn't father, as he put it:

"Walked over every foot of the Shadow-Boxing Charge Hurled At Roosevelt

By the Associated Press.

Hampton Beach, N. H., Aug. 27.—Turning his campaign fire on President Roosevelt's acceptance address, Col. Frank Knox, Repubican Vice Presidential nominee, declared today the President's attack on "economic royalists" was only "shadow boxing."

"With a deficit in his Treasury running at the rate of $10,000,000 a day," the Chicago publisher told a Republican rally on the ocean beach here, "the President offers to save the American people from some imaginary economic royalists.

"With 18,000,000 people on relief, he offers to go out and slaughter a big bad wolf if he can only find the wolf and then be sure it is a wolf."

Knox called the President's words on the subject "a jumble of vague economic phrases," said "you can't sell thoes wares to New Englanders" and added:

"These are strange words from a man who all his business life has been associated with corporate enterprises.

"When we have that sort of shadow-boxing with serious problems, it is about time to try a new performer."

Knox spoke before the all-day outing of the 44-year-old Rockingham County Republican Club, making his address from a platform erected on the beach sand.

The colonel's appearance was regarded as opening the national campaign in the Granite State, and was

Droughts Peril To Democracy, Roosevelt Told

By the United Press.

Bismarck, N. Dak., Aug. 27.—President Roosevelt, in the heart of the drought area, tonight was bluntly informed by a special committee of experts that "we endanger our democracy if we allow the great plains or any other section of the country to become an economic desert."

Their findings, in effect a series of concrete proposals for the projection of a long-range program of drought prevention, were presented to the President.

Mr. Roosevelt's plan to attend funeral services for Secretary Dern will compel the President, it was explained to set back his visit with Gov. Alfred M. Landon of Kansas at Des Moines from September 1 probably to September 3. Likewise there will be a change in the meetings with Governors and Senators at St. Paul, Minn., and La Crosse, Wis.

Mr. Roosevelt on his first day in areas burned brown by a searing sun, conferred with State officials of North Dakota and Montana, then drove for two hours through the countryside seeing for himself the plight of embattled agriculturists.

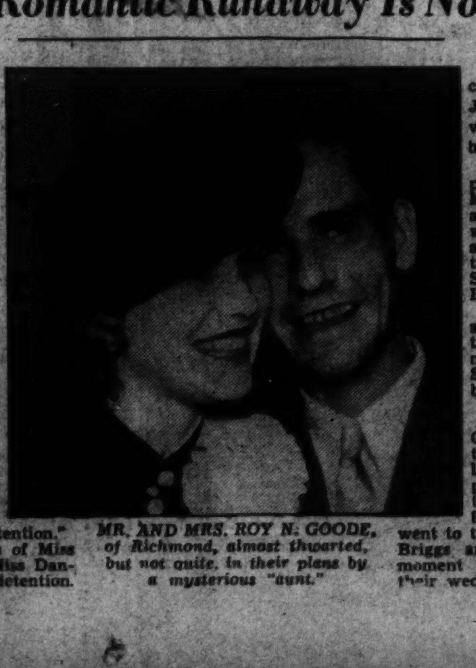
Cupid Foiled Till Irate Aunt Speeds 100 Miles To Find Romantic Runaway Is Not Her Niece

Pretty Thelma Russell Dandridge and her sweetheart, Roy N. Goode, came to Washington to be married yesterday. They were wed, but eight hours after they had planned, all because of the intervention of someone else's aunt.

When the couple applied for a license at the office of the clerk of the District Court, all seemed to be going smoothly. But once the license was received, Miss Dandridge was "detained" on orders from Thomas Ott, United States marshal.

Ott said the Richmond police had been asked by Miss Bonnie Wallace to thwart the marriage of her 15-year-old niece, who was thought to be planning an elopement. He said Miss Dandridge answered the description of the romantic niece. Hence the "detention."

Despite the protestations of Miss Dandridge that she was Miss Dandridge, she remained in detention.



MR. AND MRS. ROY N. GOODE, of Richmond, almost thwarted, but not quite, in their plans by a mysterious "aunt."

So far as the police were concerned she was Lolita Johnson, 15, whose aunt was en route here to end her escapade.

But it was not an unpleasant detention, for Miss Dandridge, her fiance and a couple attending the wedding party, had dinner and went to a movie under the wing of Deputy United States Marshal John E. Broderick.

When the show was over and the party returned to the courthouse, Aunt Bonnie Wallace had arrived. She took one look at the bride-to-be and said:

"That is not she."

Now, Miss Dandridge and Goode, who had admitted they were very much in love, were not exactly pleased with their detention, but they smiled for a Post photographer and went to the home of the Rev. J. E. Briggs and were married just a moment before midnight ended their wedding day.

Ickes, Hard Argue Hearst Role in Race

'Publisher Is Svengali to Landon's Trilby,' Secretary Says.

Foe Asserts Newspaper Owner Now Employs President's Son.

A quarrel over William Randolph Hearst and his relationship to Gov. Alf M. Landon, the Republican nominee for President, enlivened the air waves last night.

Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior, told a radio audience that Hearst, having boomed Landon for the nomination, was now giving him instructions—playing "Svengali" to Landon's "Trilby." He read a letter by Hearst to prove his contention that Mr. Landon's early campaign silence followed a suggestion by Mr. Hearst.

William Hard, commentator for the Republican National Committee, struck back by reminding the radio audience of Hearst's relationship to President Roosevelt, indicating that relationship had taught Mr Hearst that he could not hope to control a man in the White House.

Hard said it was Hearst who, at the 1932 Democratic Convention, threw John N. Garner's delegate votes to Roosevelt and thereby brought about the latter's nomination. He also declared that Charles Michelson, publicity director for the Democratic Party, worked for Hearst for 20 years, and that Elliott Roosevelt, the President's son, is working for Hearst now as vice president of one of his radio stations and as his Washington representative before the Federal Communications Commission.

"Hearst Over Topeka."

Ickes' speech, titled "Hearst Over Topeka," was advertised well in advance by the Democratic National Committee, which said the Interior Secretary would cite documentary evidence that Hearst was Landon's "boss."

Hard, therefore, was ready to go on the air with a counterblast, in which he emphasized Landon's disagreement with Hearst on "loyalty oaths" for school teachers.

The radio listener who tuned in on both talks had to choose for himself. If he was a bit bewildered after hearing both, it probably wasn't the first time in this campaign—nor likely to be the last.

Secretary Ickes, leading up to his "documentary evidence," told how George F. Harding, Republican National Committeeman from Illinois, called on Publisher Hearst armed with a letter of introduction from Col. Frank Knox, the Republican nominee for Vice President.

Later, Ickes said, Hearst sent Harding this memorandum:

Quoted on Landon.

"I was very much impressed by what you had to say about Gov. Landon not making too many speeches. If you will write me to that effect expressing your views as frankly as you did when you were talking, I will, with your permission, send the letter to Gov. Landon.

"It co-operates with and supports what I have already told the Governor and I feel that such views coming from such an important man as yourself would have a great and valuable influence.

"I think the Governor naturally feels this himself, but the average politician around him is constantly urging him to get out and talk. Talk is the method of the average politician, but as you very truly said, this is a campaign in which speechmaking might do more harm than good.

"At present the Democrats have nothing to criticize Gov. Landon about. You can see that in their attempt to criticize him. Too many speeches might give the Democrats their eagerly awaited opportunity. Others try to combat or at least try to offset the influence of those politicians who are continually demanding more speeches."

Calls It Court Document.

Commenting on the statement in the Hearst memorandum, "what I have already told the Governor," Ickes said:

"The boss of the Republican Party

By Robert C. Albright.

Administration officials yesterday mulled defensively over Gov. Alf M. Landon's assault on New Deal fiscal policies, challenged some of his conclusions, but failed to find any slips in his figures and generally conceded he had raised the principal issue in the campaign.

The only formal Administration reaction came in a two-sentence memorandum scribbled by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau. It read:

"The policy being pursued by the United States Treasury has met with the approval of the country. The acid test is the Government bond market."

Unofficially, however, other Treasury officials commented in more detail. They admitted that the Kansas Governor's figures on the increase in "hidden" taxes in the last four years were approximately correct. They conceded that people of small incomes now pay a larger proportion of taxes.

They raised the question of where Gov. Landon would cut expenditures if he had the opportunity. Did he mean he would cut relief? If he does not plan to cut expenditures, would he levy new taxes? What kind of taxes would they be? The Treasury inference was that Gov. Landon could have been more specific on these points.

Gov. Landon, in his Buffalo speech, said he believed the Government should raise more of its revenue from direct taxes levied on the incomes of individuals and corporations. He pointed out that in 1932, 59 cents of every dollar of Federal revenue was obtained from direct taxes, and the other 41 per cent from "hidden" levies. Today, he said, this situation is reversed—51 per cent is raised from "hidden" taxes, and the other 49 from direct.

Treasury spokesmen granted direct taxes predominated in 1932, but, searching for a flaw, charged his figures would not have been so apt had he used 1933 for a comparison, thus giving effect to the nuisance levies approved at the end of the Hoover Administration. They conceded, however, that "hidden" nuisance taxes were necessary, and that a Democratic Congress voted for them.

Woman Who Lived 5 Years With Half Her Brain Is Dead

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—The death of a woman who lived happily for five years with only half a brain was reported today in the journal of the American Medical Association.

She died of an accident which had no connection with the brain operation, Dr. John D. O'Brien, Mercy Hospital, Canton, Ohio, asserted.

"From what I can gather in medical history, this patient survived longer than any who have undergone a similar operation," Dr. O'Brien said, and "her death * * * leads one to wonder how long she might have lived if the accident had not occurred."

The right hemisphere of her cerebrum had been removed by Dr. W. James Gardner, Cleveland surgeon, on August 31, 1931. The operation was performed because the woman, 31 and mother of two children, suffered convulsions. It was decided she had a brain tumor.

The President Attends Dern Rites Tuesday

Revises Trip Itinerary to Attend Funeral in Salt Lake.

D.C. Services Tomorrow; Guns Salute Cabinet Member Today.

President Roosevelt, "deeply grieved," will attend the funeral of Secretary of War George H. Dern in Salt Lake City Utah, Tuesday, it was announced at the White House yesterday.

Secretary Dern, the second Democrat and non-Mormon to be elected Utah's Governor and the first member of the Roosevelt Cabinet to die in office, died yesterday at 10:55 a. m. at Walter Reed Hospital of heart and kidney complications following recurrent attacks of influenza. He was 64.

Word of his death reached President Roosevelt as he neared Bismarck, N. Dak., on his tour of the drought regions. He immediately sent a message of condolence to the War Secretary's family here, instructed Secretary of State Cordell Hull to issue a statement designating Dern's death as a "national bereavement," and ordered flags in the District of Columbia and at all Army posts half-staffed.

The War Department meantime ordered all Army posts in the United States and its possessions to fire a mourning gun every half hour after reveille this morning and a 19-gun salute after the sounding of retreat in the evening.

Services Here Tomorrow.

Memorial funeral services first will be held in this city in the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church tomorrow at 4 p. m. with the Rev. Dr. Russell J. Clinchy in charge.

From the church, the body will be borne to Union Station, escorted by the second squadron of the Third Cavalry and the first battalion of the Sixteenth Field Artillery. At the station a guard of honor consisting of a battalion of Infantry and a battalion of Engineers wil receive the body.

The funeral party will leave by special train over the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad for Salt Lake City. Upon arrival there Tuesday at 2 p. m. the body will be taken to the State Capitol, where it will lie in state until 2 p. m.

The funeral will be held at that hour, with full military and Masonic honors.

19-Gun Salutes.

On that day a salute of 19 guns, sounded one a minute, will be fired at all Army posts at noon. All flags will be half-staffed and all Army officers will wear a badge of mourning around the left sleeve of the uniform coat and on their sabers. National and regimental colors will be draped in mourning for a month.

Atlhough Secretary Dern is the first member of the Roosevelt Cabinet to die in office, he is the third to die among those selected for the Cabinet by the President, Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, who had been picked as Attorney General, died on his honeymoon before taking the oath of office. William H. Woodin, Roosevelt's first Secretary of the Treasury, resigned because of ill health and died later.

President Roosevelt it was said at the White House, will continue his tour of the Western "dust bowl," but will so alter his itinerary as to be at Salt Lake City Tuesday. He probably will join the funeral train on its trip across the plains.

The President's tribute to his friend, "George," one of many that came from men of both parties, follows:

"An upright, able and honest public servant is lost to our national life in the death of Secretary Dern. Quiet and unassuming, he mastered with singular thoroughness all of the varied problems which fall within the jurisdiction of the War Department and administered his office with tact, discretion and good judgment.

"The Army of the United States has lost a devoted leader.

Is Grieved Deeply.

"For many years George Dern and I have been close associates, first as Governors of our respective States, and lately, for nearly four years, in Washington. I am deeply grieved that he has left us."

With the death of Dern, Assistant Secretary Harry H. Woodring became the Acting Secretary of War. A former Governor of Kansas, Woodring is among those mentioned as a successor to Secretary Dern.

Others are Paul V. McNutt, white-thatched Governor of Indiana, whose term expires in January; Frank Murphy, High Commissioner to the Philippines, who is being boomed for Governor of Michigan, and Mayor Fiorello La-

5 Dead, 18 Hurt In Truck Crash At Conowingo

One More Not Expected to Live as Auto Plunges Over Embankment.

By the Associated Press.

Darlington, Md., Aug. 27.—A truck, carrying more than a score of potato field workers to their Florida and Georgia homes, left the road on a curve in a blinding rain and hurtled five persons to death down a 75-foot embankment early today.

Among the dead was George D. Hart, 57, of Hastings, Fla., driver of the truck, who had taken the colored potato diggers north three month ago to follow the harvest.

The other dead, all colored, were Junis Mays and Annie Mae Simmons, Micanopy, Fla.; Clarence Caldwell, St. Augustine, Fla., and Sam Grant, Milledgeville Ga.

Guard Railing Smashed.

The victims were huddled under a heavy tarpaulin in the back of the truck which descended a steep grade to the bridge, smashed away a guard railing and plunged down the embankment.

Lawrence Yelvington, of Hastings, owner of the truck and the only other white man in the group, was seated in the cab with Hart. He blamed the accident on the wet, slippery road and tire trouble. Yelvington suffered cust and bruises on the face and was badly shaken up.

"The truck went sideways," he said, "Hart couldn't do anything with it. It swerved into the railing and rolled down.

"The next thing I remember I was at the foot of the embankment, still in the cab. Everything was shattered and torn up. I called to Hart. He was under the side of the truck, dead."

Sergt. Charles B. Durham hurried to the wreck scene from the nearby Conowingo sub-station of the State police and called help.

Eleven of the injured were taken to the Elkton Hospital, and six were cared for by the Red Cross at Port Deposit. James Silas, of Quitman, Ga., was not expected to recover.

Rain Checks Heat; More Is Due Today

Rain brought comfort to heat-baked Washington yesterday as the Weather Man sent out a reassuring forecast of more showers today.

The thermometer climbed only to 78 yesterday at 2:45 p. m. Most of the day it hovered around 75. Low for the day was 70 at 6 a. m.

Fair weather will not come to the city until Saturday, the Weather Man said.

19 Arabs Dead, 15 Hurt In Battles With British

Jerusalem, Aug. 27 (AP). — The death of 19 Arabs in three battles with British troops was reported today by the government. At least 15 others, it said, were wounded in the engagements last night and today.

Twelve were killed today when an Arab band attacked a military patrol, and aircraft reinforced the troops with a bombardment and machine-gun fire. Four others died when troops suppressed shooting and bomb-throwing in Jaffa last night, and two were found dead later. Two others died in a night of shooting between troops and Arabs near the Tel Aviv fair grounds.

300 on Polish Hunger Strike Will Refuse Water Until Paid

By the Associated Press.

Beuthen, Polish Upper Silesia, Aug. 27.—Three hundred miners, at the close of their fourth day of a hunger strike deep down the shaft of a coal mine, tonight sent word to the top they would "not take another drop of water" until their back wages had been paid.

The miners, near exhaustion after their four days in the dank workings without tasting a bite of food, sent up the following message:

"After ten days' strike and four days without food, we pledge an appeal to God, human love and justice not to take another drop of water. We fight on for our wives and children."

The message also demanded that certain mine officials be discharged.

Deep down in the mine shaft, where the hunger strikers huddled, they set a table on which were only

Moffett's Son Cut in Rating After Losing Secret Papers

Used Documents To Cram for Test

He Will Remain on Duty as Anacostia Aviator; Refuses Comment.

Lieut. William A. Moffett, son of the late Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, has been found guilty by a court-martial of carelessly misplacing secret and valuable Navy papers, and demoted to a rank below 50 officers formerly his juniors, the Navy Department revealed yesterday.

The findings of the court martial, held secretly last May, were approved by Admiral William H. Standley, Acting Secretary of the Navy, and by Rear Admiral Albert G. Rowcliff, judge advocate general.

Moffett came into possession of the publications early this year. They were to be used to aid him in "cramming" for a promotion examination. According to information supplied by the Navy, young Moffett carelessly left the papers in his automobile, and they either were lost or stolen.

"I can't make any statement," Lieut. Moffett replied to a request that he give his version of the affair. "The whole story is confidential."

Late yesterday he left the Capital for Boston on a stay of undetermined length. He has been restored to duty as an aviator at Anacostia, but at the stipulated reduction in rank.

Lieut. Moffett's home is at 2019 Massachusetts avenue. He was born on April 16, 1910, in San Francisco. He attended Culver Military Academy and the Columbian Military Academy prior to his entrance into the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis. He was on the boxing squad at the academy, graduating in 1930.

A brother, Lieut. George Moffett, also is a naval aviator. He is stationed with the aircraft tender Owl, at Norfolk. He formerly was on duty in Washington as aid to Rear Admiral Ernest J. King, chief of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics.

D.C. Boy, 11, Killed By 'Unloaded' Rifle In Hands of Chum

The tragic sentence, "I didn't know it was loaded," was repeated yesterday when 11-year-old Merton Brown, only child of a Washington patent attorney, was shot and killed in a game of "soldiers."

Three playmates saw a fourth youngster fire at Merton with a .22-caliber rifle as the children played in the living room of the Brown residence, 6304 Wisconsin avenue, in Maryland.

Mrs. Wager S. Brown, mother of the slain youth, protested as police took the boy who had shot her son to the police station for questioning. She told them there was no reason why they should arrest the 13-year-old boy.

Late yesterday the boy who fired the shot was released. Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald, of the District, issued a certificate of accidental death.

Smokestack Falls On Downtown Shop

No one was injured.

The smokestack was being lowered from the side of an eight-story department store to the street when a section of its broke off and crashed through the roof of Rich's shoe store, 1001 F street northwest.

The other section fell into an area between the two buildings, tearing away part of the air-cooling pipes of the department store.

Landon Visits Lincoln's Tomb On Way Home

By a United Press Staff Correspondent.

Landon's face was grave and the wind whipped his gray hair across his forehead as he strode from the sunlight of the Springfield (Ill.) park into the shadows of the shrine.

He went alone, and when a companion, the caretaker and a Boy Scout bearing a wreath came up to him he was standing before the marble slab where carved into the stone is the inscription:

"Now he belongs to the ages."

Places Wreath on Tomb.

The Presidential nominee placed a wreath on the tomb and when he emerged he was smiling softly, but did not raise his hand in answer to the clatter of handclapping.

He had come, Landon told a crowd which almost crushed him at the station, "to receive the inspiration that comes to every pilgrim to Springfield."

"Of the Father of His Country," Landon said, "the savior of the Union said these words: 'To add brightness to the sun or glory to the name of Washington is alike impossible. Let none attempt it. In solemn awe pronounce his name and in its naked deathless splendor leave it shining on.'

"In solemn awe let us pronounce the name of Lincoln, and in its naked deathless splendor, leave it shining on."

Jostled by Crowd.

When Landon returned from his pilgrimage, the crowd sought to shake his hand. Most of them did. As guards battled to get the Governor through two narrow doors of the station, he was jostled and the little knot of which he was the center sweated and pushed in an effort to protect him.

"God bless you, Governor," and "we're for you, Alf," echoed in his ears as hundreds struggled to get close. He stopped once to talk with a gray-haired woman who had been a guest at the wedding of his father and mother in Pennsylvania; again he shook the hand of a white-bearded patriarch who quavered a wish for success.

The halt in Springfield was typical of ten stops in Illinois, where Landon told the farmers that economy of government was one of the main issues of the campaign.

"The first thing the present Administration did was to plow under its 1932 platform," he told an audience at Bloomington. "For instance, they plowed under their promise to reduce Government expenses by 25 per cent."

Stand on Prohibition.

Aboard Landon Train en Route to Topeka, Kans., Aug. 27 (AP).—Gov. Alf M. Landon, in reply to a query asking his stand on prohibition, today said in a statement:

"I have made plain my position on that subject in a public statement last May and I would refer you to that statement."

The statement was made in connection with a radio interview May 7, 1936, and is as follows:

"Question: Governor, a lot of people in the so-called wet States, knowing that you come from dry Kansas, are anxious about the way you stand on prohibition. Just what is your attitude?"

"Answer: I'm glad you asked that question. I don't believe my position is misunderstood here in Kansas, and I don't want it to be misunderstood in other States. We, in this country, had a long national debate over the wet and dry question. The people rendered an overwhelming verdict that the question should be returned to the various States for such decision as their citizenry wished. I accept that verdict, and I believe that it is up to each State to determine its own policy on liquor, subject, of course, to section 2 of the twenty-first amendment, under which shipments into dry States is properly forbidden."

Newark, N. J. Aug 27 (U.P.).—Dick Merrill, Eastern Air Lines pilot, and Harry Richman, radio entertainer, returned to Newark Airport tonight after fog prevented them from reaching Newfoundland on a test flight in their new $95,000 Vultee monoplane.

The fliers turned back after 710 miles. The plane will be taken to Floyd Bennett Airport, New York, from which they expect to take off tomorrow afternoon on a round-trip "airman's holiday" flight to London.

Troops of Manchukuo Fire on Soviet Patrol

Moscow, Aug. 27 (U.P.).—The latest of many Soviet-Japanese border incidents ocurred today when border forces of the Manchukuo government allegedly opened fire on a Soviet border patrol, killing a horse and wounding three others.

The incident occurred near the frontier post of Poltavka. Soviet border guards did not return the fire but protested to the Manchurian government and asked punishment of the offenders, Soviet authorities said.

Politics and People

Landon Has Benefited Substantially From His First Trip East in Political Wars.

By Franklyn Waltman

EN ROUTE West With Gov. Landon, Aug. 27.—From whatever angle you look at it, Gov. Alf M. Landon benefited substantially as a result of his venture into the East on the first tour in his campaign for the Presidency. Both he and the Republican strategists have every reason to be well satisfied with the trip which came to an end tonight—and they are satisfied.

WALTMAN.

Whether Gov. Landon persuaded a number of people to vote for him who otherwise would not have done so, is a question impossible to answer. But if the renewed enthusiasm of the Republicans who had felt low in spirits and the comments of persons in places visited by the Kansan are any test, he distinctly made gains in votes.

But whether he did at this stage of the campaign is unimportant. The important thing is the way Gov. Landon met the test which this first campaign tour presented to him. He met it, it might be said, more satisfactorily than any of his close friends expected.

More specifically, Gov. Landon achieved two things on this campaign tour. First and most important of all, he emerged before the country as a definite personality and demonstrated that he is running his own campaign and expressing his own views, irrespective of conflicts with supporters.

Secondly, the Kansas Governor had his first taste as a campaigner on what might be called the big-time circuit. A naturally restrained man, neither given to oratorical flights nor clowning, Gov. Landon never has been at home on the public platform. He is by no means a polished political orator today.

But he showed steady improvement throughout his Eastern tour. The improvement in his delivery since the acceptance speech was remarkable and further progress was noted between the West Middlesex and the Buffalo speeches. Perhaps Gov. Landon will never be a good political orator. Nevertheless the extent to which he has improved so far has raised Republican hopes that by the middle of October he will be passable, even if he cannot overcome President Roosevelt's superiority in that respect.

* * *

It must be remembered that making major speeches is but one phase of a campaign tour. Of great importance is the impression which a Presidential candidate makes on persons with whom he comes in closer, more informal contact than he does with the persons who fill baseball parks to hear speeches.

During his tour of the last week, Gov. Landon from the rear platform of his train, at meetings, luncheons, teas, in conferences and strolling through small Pennsylvania towns, saw at least as many people in that fashion as saw him on the occasion of his speeches at West Middlesex, Chautauqua and Buffalo combined.

In that sort of campaigning Gov. Landon is at his best and, in all truth, it must be said that even with the improvement he has shown, he is at his worst on the platform. He has a magnetism that draws people to him in small gatherings, but which seems to be lost when he mounts the rostrum. He has a contagious smile and an easy, cordial way of saying "Hello, folks." In this role he appears neither restrained nor effusive. Only a sincere, likable man.

When Gov. Landon first started his Presidential campaign he undoubtedly felt 'nervous and some timidity, something like the boy who having made good in a small town, goes to the big city to start his first job there. He is losing that. The wave of his arm is not as awkward as it was even last Saturday. He is losing the self-consciousness on the platform which marked his first appearances.

But more important than the technique of campaigning was the fact that Gov. Landon demonstrated in convincing fashion that he has a mind of his own and cannot be termed a tool of either William Randolph Hearst or the Republican Old Guard.

Not only did he denounce requirements for teachers' oaths, a pet hobby of Publisher Hearst, but he disagreed thoroughly with that newspaper owner's views on taxation—perhaps closer to Mr. Hearst's heart than any other subject. Gov. Landon condemned sales taxes as vicious and unequivocally asserted that the major part of the Government's revenue should come from levies on incomes.

In his new book, "Half Way With Roosevelt," which appears tomorrow, Ernest K. Lindley, regarded as the Roosevelt biographer, tells a story of Gov. Landon's meeting with Mr. Hearst at Topeka last spring. He records that on that occasion Mr. Hearst displayed indifference to all issues discussed and finally said, "What I am really interested in is taxes." Mr. Lindley further reports that about the same time a Hearst intimate told a Roosevelt intimate that if the President "would only put on a sales tax and cut down the income and inheritance taxes," he thought the publisher would renew his support of the New Deal.

This story is significant because it demonstrates how far Gov. Landon has broken with Mr. Hearst—if an alliance ever existed between them. Certainly Gov. Landon did a thorough job this week of proving he is no Hearst puppet.

Gov. Landon, however, did not stop with Hearst. He showed a callous indifference to the Old Guard leadership in both Pennsylvania and New York. It is really startling news that Gov. Landon coldly ignored the presence in Buffalo on Wednesday of National Committeeman Charles D. Hilles, although the latter is the titular leader of the party in New York and was in Buffalo.

He does not like Hilles and he made no overtures to him, the first Republican Presidential candidate in recent years who has not kowtowed to the reactionary Hilles. Nor did Gov. Landon see Representative James M. Wadsworth, the Liberty Leaguer, although the latter came to Buffalo especially for the Landon program. Nor did the Kansan pull his punches on the teachers' oath denunciation because the Republican Speaker of the Assembly had sponsored a teachers' oath bill in New York.

Gov. Landon is not anxious to step on people's toes, but he insists, apparently, on being sincere—and the presence of protruding toes do not seem to bother him.

Franklyn Waltman left Alf M. Landon's special train last night to fly over the drought area in the Northwest. He will join President Roosevelt today and travel with him through the drought-stricken country. He will tell of his observations of the drought States and of the activities of President Roosevelt in a series of dispatches beginning tomorrow.

Hungary's Premier Ill, Advised to Quit Post

Budapest, Aug. 27 (AP).—Premier Juius Goemboes of Hungary was advsied today by specialists after a physical examination to withdraw from politics for a time and undergo treatment abroad.

The premier, who has resumed his duties August 8, after a sick leave, did not indicate whether he woud follow the advice of physicians or whether his resignation could be be expected as was reported May 13, when he was treated for a kidney and gall bladder ailment.

Upturn Steady For July, Says Reserve Board

Hot-Weather Business Sag Almost Nonapparent, Governors Report.

The Nation continued on the upward curve toward recovery during July, the board of governors of the Federal Reserve System reported last night, with the usual hot weather business lag almost missing in business statistics.

The three big factors—production, employment and trade—continued their steady climb, "when allowance is made for the usual seasonal changes," the board's statement said. Commodity prices continued to advance, while money rates held at their "extremely low" levels.

The usual decline of industrial production in July failed to materialize. It was maintained at the same level of the preceding three months, while the seasonally adjusted index of the board jumped to 108 per cent of the 1923-25 average, five points over the 103 per cent computed for June.

Steel output continued at the high June rate, avoiding the usual sharp decrease, partly due to the fact that automobile production failed to decline to the expected degree.

Verifies Reports.

The board's figures bore out recent optimistic reports from Iron Age and from Steel, trade publications of the steel industry, which showed yesterday that steel ingot production, while at a peak of 73 per cent of normal, the highest point in a considerable period, is yet unable to keep up with the demand for finished steel. In the meantime, Ford and Chevrolet, maintaining near-peak production of their present models, and waiting until the last possible moment before halting production to make the necessary factory change-overs for new models, have kept automobile production much higher than has been normal in recent years.

The board's release shows that output of nondurable products was larger in July than in June, and gave as a reason that this reflected chiefly "a sharp rise in activity at the cotton mills and greater than seasonal increases in production at shoe factories, silk mills and flour mills."

Mining Production Up.

Employment—second factor usually found in a July decline—increased again in July, the board figures, going up in steel mills, foundry and machine shops and furniture factories, in textile mills and meat-packing plants, and declining in railroad repair shops, and wearing-apparel factories (less than seasonally).

Construction contracts continued to climb in value, according to the F. W. Dodge Corporation, quoted by the board.

Discussing agriculture, the board set the drought as the primary factor in the decline of crop prospects, quoted Department of Agriculture figures showing the corn crop at 1,439,000,000 bushels, a reduction of 37 per cent from last year; and the cotton crop at 12,481,000 bales against 10,638,000 bales last year, and against the five-year average of 14,667,000 bales.

The rise in commodity prices, a factor regarded as of significance in the campaign this year, was dismissed in the advance release in a line or two of type.

The board reported excess reserves of member banks decreased from $2,920,000,000 on July 15 to $1,810,000,000 on August 19, chiefly as a result of the increase of 50 per cent in reserve requirements, which went into effect August 15 and absorbed $1,470,000,000 of excess reserves. Total reserve balances, however, grew by $360,000,000 by reason of large Treasury disbursements from its funds deposited in Federal Reserve Banks.

The Political Arena

By the Associated Press.

New York, 3ug. 27.—Representative Joseph W. Martin, jr., Eastern division Republican campaign manager, said today the Eastern trip of Gov. Alf M. Landon had a "very beneficial effect" on the Republican campaign.

Returning to the Eastern headquarters from Buffalo, where he participated in the two days of conferences with Republican leaders, the Massachusetts Representative said "Gov. Landon's visit to Pennsylvania and New York stimulated the enthusiasm of party workers."

In his address on Government finances and taxation, Martin said the Republican nominee "presented a very able picture of Federal finances."

"I agree with Gov. Landon thoroughly," Martin said, "in his views on the New Deal undistributed profits tax measure.

"If this bill had been in existence for, say, the last 15 years there would not be a textile mill in New England in operation today."

Discussing the effect of Gov. Landon's conferences with New York leaders, Martin said:

"They tell me that in Buffalo, for example, the Republicans will poll the greatest majority in the history of Erie County. We expect to carry the county by 60,000 votes."

Chicago, Aug. 27 (AP).—Townsend national headquarters claimed a voting strength today of nearly 3,000,000 in eight States.

Gilmour Young, national secretary of the Townsend recovery plan of old age revolving pensions, said in a statement:

"Tuesday's primary results in California are indicative of the Townsend strength and I have no doubt we will poll between 860,000 to 1,000,000 votes there in the fall elections."

In California, Edward J. Margett, State manager for the organization, predicted they would elect 17 Congressmen in the 20 districts and pointed to nomination of 11 indorsed candidates.

Young said the Townsend strength in Washington and Oregon was proportionately higher than in California, estimating the group's voting power at about 700,000 in each of the two former States.

Reports from other States indicated, he said, their strength was Florida, 115,000; Maine, 40,000; Oklahoma, 175,000; Nebraska, 80,000; Texas, 125,000.

Young claimed the Townsendites had "five Congressmen already 'in'" in Oklahoma and "every outlook of adding two more."

He said both Senators and four or five Congressional candidates in Florida had Townsend indorsement.

Tallahassee, Fla., Aug. 27 (U.P.).—Nine Socialist nominees for State-wide offices in Florida were denied formally a place on the November general election ballot by Secretary of State R. A. Gray today.

It was expected the Socialist Party of Florida would take immediate court action in an effort to have names of the nine candidates put on the ballots.

Florida statutes controlling the general elelctions read that a political party must have polled 50 per cent of the total vote in one of the two preceding elections before its candidates will be listed on ballots.

Merriam, Kans., Aug. 27 (AP).—William Lemke, Union Party candidate, carried his campaign for the Presidency into the home State of Gov. Alf M. Landon, Republican nominee, tonight and asserted both of his major party opponents had failed to provide a workable plan to aid farmers.

The North Dakota Representative, in an address at the Johnson County fair here, singled out the Republican platform and Landon's addresses as "not offering the slightest hope for drought-ridden farmers in the Middle West."

"All they have to look forward to," he said, "are a lot of glittering generalities called a platform."

Earlier in the day, Lemke told newsmen he intended to make a fight to place his name on the Kansas general election ballot. He said a Union Party convention would be called and a slate of electors named. If it were necessary, he said, the matter would be taken to court.

Daniel A. Wallace, of Walker, Minn., uncle of Secretary Wallace, has joined the staff of the farm division of the Republican National Committee, the Eastern headquarters of the committee has announced.

Wallace, who formerly was editor of the Farmer and the Farmer's Wife, will do editorial work for the farm division from his home.

New York, Aug. 27 (AP).—The Progressive Republican committee for Franklin D. Roosevelt made public tonight a letter from President Roosevelt thanking the organization for its support.

The President's letter, dated August 23, said:

"Thank you very much for your letter of August 21 and thank you particularly for your cheering words of appreciation.

"If every American might bring to the cause for which we are all working the same degree of understanding you indicated by your letter, I am sure the problems now facing the country could be speedily disposed of."

The President's letter was in reply to a letter from Roscoe S. Conklin, chairman of the committee, and Helen Walker Homan, vice chairman. They informed him of their support and sent him a copy of their ten-point credo.

New York, Aug. 27 (AP).—Messmore Kendall, president general of the Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, said today he "regretted" Gov. Alf M. Landon's declaration against the teachers' oath.

Kendall made a public statement saying, "I regret to see that a candidate for the Presidency of the United States should come out in a public address, such as Gov. Landon made at Chautauqua (N. Y.) last Tuesday, stating that his party was opposed to requiring teachers to take an oath of allegiance to the United States and to support the Constitution."

Recalling a resolution of the last congress of the society urging all State Legislatures to require the oath, Kendall said, "the society agrees that it may not be possible to make a patriot out of a traitor, but it is possible to put a teacher upon oath, consequences of the violation of which may deter him from teaching subversive doctrines."

Knox Charge

the first personal campaigning in New England by either Knox or Gov. Alf M. Landon, his running mate.

Asking repeatedly "who are these economic royalists?" Knox charged that when the President coined the phrase in his Philadelphia address, accepting the Democratic Presidential nomination, Mr. Roosevelt ignored "money, credit, budgets, agriculture, industry, trade, labor, relief and recovery."

Rapping the Administration's business legislation, which Knox contended bred fear and fostered monopoly, he went on to charge:

"It put little fellows in jail, but big business wrote its own ticket."

Knox took up five sentences of the President's address, which said the "royalists" of modern big business had created a "new despotism." In reply the Repuolican declared the Roosevelt Administration's own legislation better deserved the President's phrases.

"Where are these economic royalists the Administration wants to destroy" he demanded, saying the President "walloped an imaginary straw man."

"Contrast Henry Ford with the present Administration: the one adding untold value to American life, promoting enterprise, employing labor, raising the standard of living; the other destroying food, wasting the Nation's assets, increasing the cost of living."

The sentences from the President's address which drew Knox' fire were these:

"Through new uses of the corporation, the structure of modern life was impressed into the royal service. They (the 'economic royalists') created a new despotism and wrapped it in the robes of legal sanction. In its service new mercenaries sought to regiment the people, their labor and their property. * * * Throughout the Nation, opportunity was limited by monopoly. * * * Individual initiative was crushed in the cogs of a great machine."

Replying, Knox said:

"The only new uses of the corporation in our time are the incredible uses of the Federal Government, disclosed in its own corporations in Delaware, created to permit Government to do strange and un-American things."

"'They created a new despotism,' we hear. Until 1933, American industrial life was not only the richest on earth, it was the freest. In one year, all American enterprise found itself shackled.

"The despotism of 1933 was coerced from a subservient Congress and forced on 2,000,000 helpless employers with a truly royal indifference to 'doubts of its constitutionality no matter how reasonable.'

"We hear that 'new mercenaries sought to regiment the people.' New mercenaries is right. There are 250,000 new ones right now, and Civil Service is not the basis of their selection."

"You hear that 'opportunity was limited to monopoly.' The first step of the present Administration was to suspend the laws against extortionate and illegal monopoly. This was the bait held out to big business—the reward for support of this attempt to bring every business under the control of the Federal Government."

Germany Asks France to Drop Soviet Treaty

Ready to Offer 'Important Concessions' if Pact Is Scrapped, Is Report.

By the Associated Press.

Paris, Aug. 27.—Germany stands ready to offer France "important concessions," it was said in some informed quarters tonight, if France will abandon her mutual assistance pact with Soviet Russia.

This report gained circulation as the result of the visit of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, German economics minister, to France for the purpose, it was said, of assuring Premier Leon Blum that Germany's recent increase in army strength was aimed, not at France, but as a defense against Russian communism.

It was apparent in official circles, however, that French determination to reinforce defenses had not been changed by any development of Schacht's visit.

Youth Training Demanded.

Communist Deputy Marcel Gitton tonight demanded before the Chamber of Deputies military affairs committee that France establish military training for its youth under conscription age and creat a billion-franc fund for support of the movement.

Financial circles interpreted Schacht's visit as a mission to bring Hitler's proposal for peace as the price of international credit and colonies for Germany.

Schacht's suggestion was reported to be that German factories could begin turning out peace-time goods instead of armaments only if Germany were given markets for her goods and loans with which to manufacture them.

The French press, however, asserted that Adolf Hitler, through financial and economic channels, was attempting to gain French friendship, leaving Germany a free hand on her eastern frontier.

Dr. Schacht, who spent most of the day at the German Embassy, planned to confer with Emile Labeyrie, governor of the Bank of France, before leaving for Berlin Friday.

Secret Meeting Reported.

The Rome correspondent for Le Matin reported a secret meeting at which Germans and Italians prepared for a united front against the spread of communism in Europe.

The Rightist newspaper's correspondent said the meeting was held in Rome between representatives of the German National Socialist (Nazi) party and Italian Fascists.

He said the parley was inspired by the political situation in France, which Germans and Italians feared might result in a "regime of Moscow."

The representatives proposed, he said, to draw up an agreement to form the basis of joint Italo-German action, should the affairs of France appear to them to be approaching a "grave crisis."

Neutrality Pressed.

London, Aug. 27 (AP)—Great Britain and France moved swiftly tonight in a joint effort to lock the door of neutrality against the Spanish civil war.

In separate actions, the two powers asked 17 European nations to declare arms embargoes on Spain immediately, with the prospect of later joining a committee of nations to administer nonintervention problems.

Earlier in the day the foreign office made public a telegram sent to Sir Henry Chilton, British Ambassador to Madrid, now at Hendaye, France, supporting his proposals to check "increasing barbarities" in the Spanish civil war.

"Suffering Concerns All."

"The internal politics of Spain concern the people of Spain," the telegram said in part. "But mitigation of suffering concerns us all. The apparent refusal to take prisoners and the consequent mass execution of those captured or who surrender, and the reprisals for such acts in increasing barbarities to which reprisals inevitably lead, are matters to which civilized states cannot be indifferent."

France was understood to be planning formation of the neutrality committee, with London favored as its location.

France informed Great Britain that Portgual had expressed willingness to apply an immediate embargo on Spain, it was understood.

The Franco-British appeal was sent to Rome, The Hague, Brussels, Vienna, Budapest, Belgrade, Bucharest, Sofia, Angora, Athens, Warsaw, Riga, Stockholm, Copenhagen, Oslo, Helsingfors and Prague.

Radio Story Upheld.

Meanwhile, blanket denials from Moscow failed to shake the faith of a London radio listener, who says he heard Dictator Joseph Stalin and other high Soviet authorities make "warlike" speeches to Russian armed forces early Wednesday.

The listener, whose identity was withheld by the London Evening News, which carried his report of the purported speeches, insisted there was no mistake.

"He has heard Stalin speak too many times to fail in recognizing his voice," said the newspaper.

"The other speakers were introduced by name.

"We have absolute confidence in our story."

Showboats May Return.

Cincinnati, Aug. 27 (AP).—The showboat may be coming back. Capt. Billy Bryant, head of a showboat troupe now appearing in Cincinnati, who says "we're just hams; we admit it," received word today that the Federal Government may finance a return of the floating theater.

river bottom in front of the place. I was careful to pick out a place where the beach sloped gradually. There were no sudden drops?"

And, to be douby safe, hadn't the father warned the children that in case of trouble, or need, they should ring the old dinner bell that hung out in the yard? That would bring help from the nearby farmhouse in a hurry.

Liked Swimming.

Clayton gradually grew stronger. He liked swimming. It was such fun with a sister and the girl cousins. And Wednesday all was happiness on the Higdon farm, for they were making ready for a birthday party. A birthday party for Avis.

Shortly after noon Clayton's mother, Margaret Higdon, brought the boy, Avis, Shirley and Phyllis down to the cottage for a swim. She remained ashore. The youngers ventured out just a bit. The other folks were up at the farmhouse making the ice cream and the cake that was to top off the perfect day with a regular birthday party, candles and everything.

Something went wrong. Avis heard Clayton scream:

"Help somebody, help."

The girl swam to the rescue. But she sent Phyllis running to the cottage for Mrs. Higdon.

Phyllis remembered the old dinner bell. She ran to it. She gave one tug. The rope broke. The bell was too heavy for her to sound the alarm by her self.

And so time was lost while a boy ran almost a mile to the farmhouse.

Out in the water Avis had reached Clayton and Shirley. Clayton, apparently, was trying to help Cousin Shirley. Avis tread water. But Shirley, frightened by the tide that apparently had lifted them into the water over their depth, grasped Avis' hair.

All three children went under.

Mrs. Higdon, meanwhile, was screaming for help on the shore.

Mike Toy, colored boatman, hurried to the scene. He reached for Avis, pulled her toward the boat, while she screamed her misunderstood appeal.

It was a matter of a few moments before Clayton's uncle, J. B. Higdon, came running to the shore and lived for the bodies, too late, despite the oar stuck in the mud at that point by Mike Toy, for the tide had swept the children into deeper water.

The bodies were found two hours later by Emmett Toy, cousin of Mike, and Dr. Fred Chappalear, of Hughesville, tried for another hour to revive them.

Funeral services for Clayton, who was in the second grade at Langley School, will be held this afternoon at 2 at the residence, 2615 Twenty-second street, with burial in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Services for Shirley, a student at St. Anthony's School and child of a widow, will be at 9 a. m. Saturday, followed by a funeral mass at St. Anthony's Church. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

So will end the story of the birthday party—that might have been with Avis, the valiant heroine, weeping "I wish I had gone down with Clayton and Shirley."

Spanish Dynamite Trap Foiled

"Loyal planes, taking the air in pursuit, forced the enemy ship to change its course and drop its bombs harmlessly in a patch of stubble, causing neither personal nor material damage," the government announcement stated.

"The enemy plane flew headlong toward the mountains, seeking the protection of its own lines. It did not succeed, however, for it was brought down by the machine-gun fire of our heroic aviators."

London, Aug. 27 (AP).—Rebel airplanes bombarded Madrid Wednesday night, private uncensored information reaching London tonight asserted. Damage to the city was said to have been slight.

Lisbon, (Friday) Aug. 28.—The hard-pressed Spanish government abandoned defensive tactics and sent enthusiastic but green militiamen in attacks against trained rebel troops in half a dozen sectors today as the civil war entered its seventh week.

Heavy fighting yesterday ended with both sides claiming the advantage, but with no decisive result on any front. The Loyalist offensives, coupled with the most optimistic communiques from Madrid in days, added to a growing belief that the struggle would be prolonged for weeks, perhaps months.

Grave Menace to Peace.

The troubled peninsula remained a grave menace to international peace. Smuggling of guns and munitions to both sides was continued. Last night a French cruiser fired a warning shot near a rebel land battery, and was accused of intervening to save a loyalist gunboat from destruction near Gibraltar. Insurgent headquarters protested vigorously.

The Madrid government issued instructions to the populace of the capital for defense against air attacks. Portuguese and American warships evacuated nationals of those countries from the war-torn country, and the British embassy at Madrid warned English refugees who sought safety there that they must leave at once.

Alfonso Denies Report.

Copyright, 1936, by the United Press.

Dellach, Austria, Aug. 27.—Alfonso XIII, former King of Spain, in a statement tonight denied authorship of a letter allegedly found in Madrid, in which he reportedly offered his services to the revolutionists. The former monarch said he would return to Spain only if the Spanish people summoned him after the civil war was ended.

"Ethiopia of Europe."

Copyright, 1936, by the Associated Press.

Madrid, Aug. 27.—Indalecio Prieto, the "strong man" behind the Madrid Spanish government, today complained bitterly that France and Great Britain, by withholding aid, were making Spain the "Ethiopia of Europe."

At the same time he asserted that should the government emerge victorious in the civil war, large sections of the country "would have to be collectivized," although adding that Spain was "not ready or well enough developed economically for pure communism."

Rebel Troops Advance.

Burgos, Spain, Aug. 27 (AP).—Rebel troops on the Madrid front celebrated a 3-mile advance tonight while columns of their comrades presesd forward to relieve the besieged city of Ovieda. The rebel columns made forced marches answering the call for help from Col. Arranda, in command of the forces at Oviedo.

It was announced that Rio Tinto and the village of Alto Mesa had fallen, giving rebels control of the entire Province of Huelva.

Mrs. Roosevelt Warned For Passing a Red Light

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 27 (AP). Patrolman Michael Holly today reported he had warned Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt to keep a sharper lookout after her car had passed a red stop-light here.

The policeman said the President's wife had passed the light Tuesday when it was obscured from her view by a trolley car. After halting Mrs. Roosevelt and telling her of her mistake, Holly said, he permitted her to drive on. Chief of Police Philip T. Smith said the policeman learned Mrs. Roosevelt's identity after the incident.

Mary Pickford Appeal Related In Slander Suit

Actress Asked Protection of Police in Boston, Officer Declares.

By the Associated Press.

Boston, Aug. 27.—Mary Pickford appealed for police protection here in 1934, a police captain testified today at a preliminary hearing of a $1,000,000 suit in which she is accused of slandering J. Raymond Cornell, former Wellesley organ manufacturer.

Cornell complained Miss Pickford's story of her flight from Boston to Cape Cod because she was threatened by mysterious strangers had slandered and libeled him and damaged his business.

A report read by Police Capt. Thomas F. Connolly was described by him as "a copy of the original" request for protection, since lost from police headquarters files.

Couple Admitted.

Connolly testified a man and woman attempted to gain admittance to Mary Pickford's hotel suite here on January 26, 1934, and finally were admitted on the man's request that she "look over a will that would interest her."

The man excused himself shortly after to make some "calls," Connolly said Miss Pickford told him, but the woman remained and attempted to interest the actress in a "spiritualistic" message. Miss Pickfordd complained the woman became "impertinent," Connolly said.

The next day Miss Pickford left for Falmouth, Mass., and Cape Cod with two policemen as escorts. En route to the home of Fulton Oursler, magazine editor, at Falmouth, Connolly said, a black sedan without lights drew abreast of the actress' car.

Saw Two in Car.

The policemen following in a prowl car, he continued, saw two persons in the front seat, but were unable to get the machine's registration.

Cornell has insisted he went to the actress' hotel to interest her in purchasing a manuscript by Mary Baker Eddy, founder of Christian Science. Mrs. Mabel Noyes, of Newburyport, a friend of Cornell, testified he "valued them very highly."

A real estate man, Weld S. Robinson, testified Cornell represented himself as "managing real estate affairs" for Miss Pickford and asked for prospective estates in New Hampshire with "price no object." Robinson went to Miss Pickford's hotel suite but could not enter, he said, because Cornell told him the actress was "indisposed." The next day, Robinson said, Cornell told him "the deal is off."

Dr. J. P. Foley Joins Faculty of G. W. U.

Dr. John Porter Foley, formerly of Columbia University, has joined the faculty of George Washington University as instructor in psychology, Cloyd H. Marvin, president, announced yesterday.

Another new member of the teaching staff is Dr. Fred Salisbury Tupper, who will have classes in English. Both will take up their posts with the opening of the university's 116th academic year September 23.

Dr. Foley received his A. B. and A. M. from Indiana University and his Ph. D. from Columbia. Since 1931 he has been on the faculty of the latter university and has written numerous treatises for journals of psychology.

Dr. Tupper has the degrees of A. B., A. M. and Ph. D. from Harvard, receiving his doctorate a year ago. For the last several months he has been engaged in research in England, having been awarded the Dexter Traveling Scholarship and Rogers Traveling Fellowship.

Son of Alfonso Is Seriously Ill

New York, Aug. 27 (AP).—Count Alfonso Covadonga, whose pending marriage annulment suit may reinstate him as heir apparent to the Spanish throne, was in a critical condition tonight after losing blood continuously for 24 hours.

A sufferer from hemophilia, hereditary disease of male descendants of the Hapsburg-Battenberg royal line, the count's life hung in the balance since having a boil lanced about 2 p. m. yesterday.

"His chances are just fair," said Dr. Antonio Valenti-Mestre, Spanish specialist who has been seeing the count every hour at the Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center.

Worry Over Bloodshed in Spain May Leave Pope Too Ill to Walk

Prelates Express Fears for Pontiff, Suffering From Endocarditis; Plans Are Being Made for Expiatory Service in St. Peter's.

By the Associated Press.

Vatican City, Aug. 27.—Pope Pius XI was so distressingly weakened tonight from worry over Spanish bloodshed that prelates feared he soon might be unable to walk.

Illness of the Holy Father, who was 79 years old May 31, was disclosed after preparations were made for an expiatory service in St. Peter's for the death of priests and nuns and the destruction of churches in Spain.

It was planned for the Pope to attend the services, assisted by all the cardinals now resident in Rome.

Plans also were made for the Pope to receive Spanish churchmen who fled to Italy for safety. At that time he was to protest against the sacrileges of civil war.

Prelates and physicians have sought to persuade him to conserve his strength, but yesterday a three-hour conversation with Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, papal secretary of state, at Castel Gandolfo, concerning the Spanish situation, left His Holiness little strength to continue other duties.

The Pope's ailment was said by a high prelate to be endocarditis, an inflammation of the heart. A medical examination in June, it was said, reached "satisfactory conclusions" concerning his condition.

His Holiness rested at his summer home, however, and sought to gather strength for the expiatory service, which will be similar to one about three years ago protesting against a Russian antireligious wave.

It will be broadcast over the Vatican radio station, and Catholics of all the world have been asked to join the ceremony.

Comment on Landon Speech

"I took a quick look at the Government bond market before you came in, and it looks all right."

Morgenthau laughed.

Balanced Budget Query.

The Secretary was asked if the Administration plans to announce it will balance the annual budget in 1938.

"I never made such a statement," Morgenthau replied.

A reporter asked if his recent letter to the President on increasing revenues and the tax outlook didn't lead to that conclusion.

"The letter speaks for itself," Morgenthau replied. "I will let it ride as it is."

Gov. Landon, in his Buffalo speech, had charged the Administration with giving repeated assurances about a balanced budget, without doing anything about it.

"The latest assurance," Landno had said, "volunteered only 13 days ago, repeats the old story—'business is improving, revenue increasing, no new taxes will be necessary to balance the budget.' How can anyone really believe this, in the face of the record of the present Administration?"

It was indicated recently that the Administration within a few weeks would announce a revision of the 1937 budget, with the conclusion that increasing business activity and resulting larger revenues have brightened the fiscal outlook. Speculation has turned on whether the President might take advantage of that occasion to pledge a balanced budget in 1938.

Acting Budget Director Daniel W. Bell's revised estimates are expected to forecast a slash of $500,000,000 to $1,000,000,000 in the previously estimated $3,000,000,000 1937 deficit. Although the Government is still spending at the rate of $30 for every $20 it takes in, heavy increases in revenues above expectations, it has been indicated, may make this revision possible.

The very mildness of the Treasury comment on Gov. Landon's Buffalo address added to the impression among observers here that the speech had struck home.

Treasury officials, in commenting privately, took forthright issue with only one or two of the Kansan's assertions.

Called "Bookkeeping."

Gov. Landon had said, "We cannot buy a suit of clothing without the Government's taking in taxes a part of the money we pay out." Officials denied there is a Federal tax on clothing.

In denouncing as "cockeyed" and pledging repeal if elected of the undistributed corporate earnings tax, Gov. Landon had said private industry as a result of carefully built up reserves had paid out $20,000,000,000 more than it took in to "cushion" the depression and keep employes working.

Treasury spokesmen countered that this was largely a "matter of bookkeeping," and as a general thing cash was not paid out in excess of receipts.

In criticizing the speech, Treasury officials asked why Gov. Landon had not specifically mentioned processing taxes in his assault on "hidden" levies, and inquired if this was because he did not want to mention the Administration's farm program.

The only violent Washington attack on the Buffalo speech came from President George L. Berry, of Labor's Nonpartisan League, organized to support the candidacy of President Roosevelt.

"Gov. Landon's Buffalo speech was the best evidence thus far produced by him in person to demonstrate the fact that the Landon candidacy is the candidacy of corporate wealth and special privilege," Berry said in a prepared statement.

"Labor finds only the promise of a fresh burden in the Landon Buffalo speech. * * * If Gov. Landon intends to repeal the tax on corporate surplus, then labor has one more mighty reason to stand as a unit against him."

Baptist Church Votes Rigid Member Rules

Leakesville, N. C., Aug. 27 (AP).—Members of the King Memorial Baptist Church here, adopting a "New Testament standard of church membership" prepared by the pastor, the Rev. Erskine X. Heatherly, have voted to expel any member who:

Uses profanity, drinks intoxicants, swims in mixed company, gambles or stays away from church for six months without a reasonably good excuse.

Roosevelt Trip Recast for Dern Rites Tuesday

Guardia of New York. All are veterans of the World War.

Secretary Dern first was stricken with influenza about five years ago when he was Governor of Utah. He became ill again last spring while on an inspection tour in the South. After six weeks at Walter Reed Hospital, he started on another tour, this time along the Delaware River. He was stricken again and returned to the hospital.

He was believed to be recovering until early this week, when his condition took an alarming turn as heart and kidney complications developed.

Specialist Flies Here.

At President Roosevelt's request, Dr. Fritz Meyer, European heart specialist, flew here from Boston to join the physicians attending Secretary Dern. The Cabinet officer drifted into a coma Wednesday night. He was put under an oxygen tent, but the physicians knew life was ebbing away. It was Dr. Meyer who pronounced him dead in the morning.

Mrs. Dern, her two daughters and three sons, were at the bedside.

A guard of honor from the Sixteenth Brigade was posted at the door outside the room, with orders to remain with the body until it is taken to the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church tomorrow.

Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, was one of the Western Republcains who paid tribute to Secretary Dern. At Boise, Borah said:

"Secretary Dern was one of our outstanding Western men. While his death will be a loss to the Nation as a whole, the West will feel his going more immediately because he was one of our great Western men."

Admiral William W. Standley, acting Secretary of the Navy, sent the following message to Acting Secretary Woodring:

"Upon behalf of myself and the entire naval establishment, please accept our sincere condolences upon the loss of the Hon. George H. Dern, Secretary of War, which is keenly felt by your sister service."

Woodring in Tribute.

Woodring himself said:

"In the death of Mr. Dern the Nation has suffered an irreparable loss. His long and brilliant career as a member of the State Senate, as Governor of his State and as Secretary of War has been distinguished by the highest standard of public service. His passing is a great personal los sto me and to his associates of the War Department who have long cherished his friendship and affection."

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau said:

"The Government has lost a most loyal and able servant in the death of the Secretary of War, and we who have known George Dern mourn the loss of a good and faithful friend, a man of the most winning personal qualities and the broadest human sympathies."

Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes said:

"He was a fine person."

Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper said the country had lost a "constructive, loyal citizen."

Reed Smoot, who represented Utah in the United States Senate for many years as a Republican, joined with Utah's Democratic Governor, Henry H. Blood, in paying tribute to Secretary Dern.

Gen. Malin Craig, chief of staff of the Army, said Secretary Dern was a "true friend of the Army."

Rites to Be Simple.

Salt Lake City, Aug. 27 (AP).—George Henry Dern, who preferred the simple life, will have that kind of a funeral.

So far as possible for a man of the Secretary of War's station, the rites will be held to modest proportions, friends said. From the home of his sister, Mrs. J. C. Dick, came announcement tonight that complete arrangements must await further word from the family in Washingington, where it was announced the funeral will be held here next Tuesday at 3 p. m.

The body, upon arrival here, will lie in state within the pillared State Capitol, set high against the rugged Wasatch Mountains, where Dern presided as Governor two terms. The services will be held there.

Thousands here prepared to pay final respects to the man whose impressive public career was cut short by a combination of illnesses. In South Dakota President Roosevelt, on a tour of the drought States, planned to join the funeral train as it crosses the plains, perhaps Saturday, and accompany it to Salt Lake City.

Other high public officials the Nation over made arrangements to attend the services. In Dern's home State the people who knew well the tall figure of the Governor who visited and studied every section of Utah, mourned his loss.

Throughout Utah, in accordance with a proclamation issued by Gov. Henry Blood, flags were placed at half-mast, to remain so until after the burial.

Friends of the family said burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery here beside a daughter, Margaret, who died in childhood. Another daughter, Louise, who also died a number of years ago, is buried in Fremont, Nebr.

When George Henry Dern was a cadet at the University of Nebraska in 1893-94, his professor of military science was John J. Pershing, then a lieutenant. Both were to go far, and wind up with a common interest—the United States Army.

Dern was born in Dodge County, Nebr., September 8, 1872, the son of John and Elizabeth Dern. When he was 16, he was graduated from the Fremont (Nebraska) Normal School.

He wished to go to the university, but the money was lacking. For five years he worked in freight and lumber yards to earn his tuition fees.

Already a husky, this worked hardened him and when he entered the university he became a member of the football team. He was a linesman and captain of the team which won the Missouri Valley championship. Dern also played in the school band.

Worked in Mine.

When his parents moved to Utah, Dern cut short his college career and went with them. He obtained a job as a clerk and bookkeeper with the Mercur Gold Mining & Milling Co. His progress with the company was rapid, so much so that when the company six years later absorbed other mines and became the Consolidated Mercur Gold Mines Co., he was made general manager.

He later managed other companies, never, according to his friends, dealing in "wildcat" mining deals, preferring instead reliable ore districts producing "pay dirt."

He often went underground to labor with his men after he became a mine owner, and labor strikes on his properties were unknown.

With Theodore C. Holt, he invented the Holt-Dern roasting process for the reduction of refractory ores.

Dern's interests gradually widened. He went into banking, canning and, ultimately, into politics.

In 1914, Dern was elected to the United States Senate from Salt Lake County and served in that body for eight years. He sponsored several pieces of progressive legislation, including a workman's compensation act and a blue sky act.

He ran for Governor of Utah in 1924 against Gov. Mabey, a Republican. Some wag that year coined the slogan, "We want a 'Dern' good Governor and we don't mean 'Maybe.' Dern was elected as a Democrat by 9,000 votes, although Calvin Coolidge, Republican nominee for President, carried Utah by 30,000 votes.

Four years later, Gov. Dern was re-elected by a margin of 31,000 votes. At the same time, Herbert Hoover, the Republican nominee for President, carried Utah by 14,000 against Alfred E. Smith.

Dern took the lead in the discussion over Boulder Dam. He contended that the Colorado River belonged to the several States through which it flowed and not to the Federal Government.

Headed Conference.

While Gov. Dern served twice as chairman of the National Governors Conference, he declined to become a candidate for chairman a third time, but continued serving as a member of the executive committee of the conference.

Dern first met Franklin D. Roosevelt when the latter, as Governor of New York, attended the Governors Conference in Salt Lake City.

Some time prior to the 1932 convention of the Democratic Party in Chicago, Dern's friends began booming him for the Vice Presidential nomination. Dern favored Roosevelt for the Presidential nomination, and when the Roosevelt people turned to John N. Garner as a running mate, Dern seconded the choice.

Dern's second term as Governor expired January 2, 1933. On March 4, 1933, he became Secretary of War, succeding Patrick J. Hurley.

As head of the War Department, he advocated a small but highly efficient Army, particularly emphasizing the need of good planes and well-trained pilots.

Last fall Secretary Dern journeyed to Japan on the Cruiser Chester, called on Emperor Hirohito and various Japanese officials, and then went on to the Philippine Islands, where he represented President Roosevelt at the inauguration of the Philippine Commonwealth.

Secretary Dern was married in 1899 to Charlotte Brown, of Freemont, Nebr. They had five children—Mrs. Mary Baxter, Miss Elizabeth Dern, James G., John and William B. Dern.

Skilled Sportsman.

Dern was essentially an outdoors man, happiest when he was on the trail of deer or trout. He was a crack shot and had many trophies to prove his skill. On one occasion, he and Oliver J. Grimes, who was to become his executive assistant in the War Department, trailed a herd of deer for a week. The deer they bagged were turned over to the State penitentiary, whose inmates had a venison banquet that still is remembered by the old-timers.

Dern was a member of the Congregational Church. He was a thirty-third degree Mason and a Shriner, a Knight Templar, a member of the Delta Tau Delta Fraternity, the University, Alta and Country clubs of Salt Lake City, and the University and Army and Navy clubs of this city.

Coughlin's Bishop Sails.

Genoa, Aug. 27 (AP).—Bishop Michael Gallagher, of Detroit, sailed for home today after declining to say whether the Vatican had ordered a "soft pedal" on the activities of the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, Detroit radio priest. Returning with him aboard the liner Rex was Archbishop Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, apostolic delegate to Washington.

Coughlin Paper To Deny Attack On Jewish Race

Social Justice Will Reply to Charges That Priest Is Anti-Semitic.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—A denial that the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin was prompted by anti-Semitic motives in his attacks on "money changers," coupled with a statement that the Detroit radio priest will continue to assail Jewish international bankers, will be carried tomorrow in his publication Social Justice.

Replying to charges by the Detroit Jewish Chronicle that the priest mentioned only Jewish names in his blasts at "money changers," the article will say that he also has singled out "prominent Gentiles, both Catholic and Protestant."

"Neither he nor the National Union (the National Union for Social Justice headed by Father Coughlin) will consent to any program, political or otherwise, launched against any race or creed," the publication will say.

Notes Morgan Attack.

After noting that Father Coughlin has assailed the banking house of Morgan, the Rockefellers and the Bonbrights as well as Bernard Baruch and Felix Frankfurter, the article will say:

"Is it to be intimated * * * that Father Coughlin must content himself with singling out Christians? Is it to be inferred that Christians are the only malefactors and that only Jews are hallowed with sanctity? This search under the bed * * * * is more responsible for the antipathy against the Jews in this Nation than all other current forces combined.

"* * * If a repetition of such insidious propaganda is persisted in by the lower strata of Jews, to the detriment of the better class of Jews who outnumber the former, rest assured that the National Union for Social Justice * * * will not sit idly by.

Plan to "Strike Hard."

"We do not plan to assail only Rexford Tugwell and the Gentile radicals who dabble in communism and international banking. We also plan to strike hard and fearlessly at Frankfurter (Harvard University professor of law and former adviser to President Roosevelt) and (Mordecai) Ezekiel (agricultural adviser to the President) and the Jewish international bankers by name and deed, whether the Jewish magazine likes it or not."

The Beer That Made Milwaukee Famous

Suit to Contest AAA Milk Pact Is Threatened

But Agreement's Reduced Prices May Forestall Consumers' Action.

Matthew Boyd, vice chairman of the Washington Consumers' Council, said yesterday his organization will take court action if the milk marketing agreement tentatively approved Wednesday by Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace halts sale of 10-cent milk in the District.

Boyd said he would challenge the AAA's power of regulating prices if it should result in a boost in milk prices here.

The tentative agreement would provide for a milk administrator for Washington and stabilization of prices. It would give the Government control of milk prices.

Under still-valid sections of the AAA, the agreement would be enforced unless it was ruled unconstitutional in the District.

The Washington Consumers Council, however, bases its chances of success on a ruling in a Federal court in Boston recently which outlawed a similar agreement.

Confers With King.

Shortly after the hearing, in which control of milk was strongly contested by the council and independent producers, Mrs. John Boyle, jr., chairman of the council, spent an afternoon in conference with Senator William H. King, of Utah, in which she talked over the situation.

After the conference, she said Senator King had advised her organization to seek an injunction against the AAA if the tentative agreement is approved.

Mrs. Boyle said then:

"We will fight this to the end—if we have to take it to the United States Supreme Court."

Meanwhile, however, Secretary Wallace said the tentatively approved agreement would not increase milk prices in the District.

Price Cut Surprise.

During the hearing, it was originally thought the AAA, if it fixed prices under the agreement, would boost the price to be paid the producer nearly 50 cents per hundredweight.

That was the assumption under which the consumers counsel and the independent producers raised their protests.

But, surprisingly, the AAA now, under the agreement tentatively approved Wednesday, would set the price at several cents lower and make up for the loss by paying the producers premiums for quality milk.

The agreement cannot be made an order until it is signed by half of the milk handlers in the District and two-thirds of the producers who ship milk into the Capital.

Ruhland Backs Farmers.

Health Officer George C. Ruhland yesterday expressed sympathy with the pleas of producers for an increase in the price paid them for raw milk and indicated a belief that the margin between the prices paid farmers and charged consumers by distributors is too great.

Dr. Ruhland, who has been investigating the local milk problem under direction of the Commissioners, pointed out, however, that he has no control or direct interest in the price charged for milk unless it becomes so high as to prevent proper public consumption.

824,259 in U. S. Service June 30, Report Reveals

498,725 in Merit System, or 60%, Lowest in Several Years.

A report of the Civil Service Commission yesterday revealed that while the number of civil service jobs has increased during the past year, the percentage of Government positions actually under the merit system is the lowest in years.

The commission's survey showed that a total of 824,259 persons were in the Government service on June 30, of whom 498,725 were in the merit system and 325,534 had no civil service status.

On a percentage basis, only 60 per cent of Uncle Sam's employes are now in civil service. Last year classified positions were 63.2 per cent of the total, 66.9 per cent in 1934, 79.7 per cent in 1933 and 80.1 per cent in 1932, the last year of the Hoover administration.

Republicans Assail Report.

Simultaneously, the Republican National Committee issued a statement pointing out that under the previous administration noncivil service jobs totaled only 108,000.

"A supine New Deal Congress," the Republican statement said, "passed 15 laws exempting Government positions from the merit system. This resulted in the addition of more than 250,000 political workers to the Roosevelt-Farley machine, at an annual cost to the taxpayers of $625,000,000 a year."

Leading all the Government departments in the number of employes not under civil service was the Works Progress Administration with 35,343. The Treasury has 37,969 classified and 33,929 unclassified workers. The Agriculture Department has 35,527 in the classified service and 35,286 unclassified employes.

A breakdown of classified and unclassified employes in other departments and agencies follows:

	Classified.	Unclass.
War	46,826	32,719
Navy	58,300	11,777
Interior	16,368	28,493
Commerce	9,083	7,704
Labor	4 670	8,715
Farm Credit Administration	2,500	2,791
Federal Communications Commission	582	157
Federal Power Commission	239	93
Federal Trade Commission	306	266
General Accts. Office	2,323	2,078
Govt. Printing Office	5,207	325
Securities Exchange Commission	617	463
Smithsonian Institution	418	140
Tariff Commission	148	156
Veterans' Administration	23,486	13,970

Among the emergency agencies the merit system is unknown. The Tennessee Valley Authority had 14,450 exempt employes; Resettlement Administration, 19,884; Reconstruction Finance Corporation, 3,321; Puerton Rico Reconstruction Administration, 2,321; National Youth Administration, 1,173; Home Owners Loan Corporation, 15,791; Federal Housing Administration, 3,660, and Public Works Administration, 10,719.

Civitans Boys Club On Outing Tomorrow

Members of the Civitan Boys Garden Club—98 of them—will go tomorrow to Camp Letts, Y. M. C. A. camp in southern Maryland, for an all-day outing. The boys have been working since last March at the gardens, situated on Benning road northeast.

A program of athletic contests and novelty events has been devised to entertain the boys. At the end of the day dinner will be served and the boys will be returned home by members of the Civitan Club, who will act as "Big Brothers" for the outing.

4 Hurt in Traffic Here, One Gravely

One man was critically injured, and another man and two children were severely bruised in traffic accidents in the District yesterday.

Daniel Spaulding, 38, of 1003 I street southeast, sustained skull injuries and other serious injuries when he was struck by a car driven by Bernard Newsom, 20, colored, of 1241 Girard street northwest. At Gallinger Hospital, his condition was reported as "extremely critical." Newsom was held by police pending the outcome of Spaulding's injuries. The accident occurred at Eleventh and K streets southeast.

Lloyd Harris, 3, of 411½ G street northwest, was struck by a truck driven by George A. Eppard, jr., 23, of 2033 Fourth street northeast, when he ran out into the street in front of his home. He was taken to Emergency Hospital, where he was treated for bruises.

Twelve-year-old Alma Martin, of 1014 Sixth street northwest, was struck near her home by a cab driven by Edward Williams, 30, colored, of 2008 M street northwest. She was taken to Homeopathic Hospital, where she was treated for bruises and cuts.

Elder Dawson, 71, colored, of 711 S street northwest, was only slightly injured when he was tsruck by a cab driven by Joseph Monroe, 25, of 3720 Macomb street northwest. The accident took place at Seventh street and Rhode Island avenue.

Stalin Stifled The Bolsheviki, Trotzky Claims

Copyright, 1936, by the United Press.

Oslo, Norway, Aug. 27.—Leon Trotzky, exiled Bolshevist leader of the Russian revolution, tonight charged that Josef Stalin, Soviet dictator who seized power when Lenin died, "has killed the Bolshevist Party," and predicted further bloody upheavals in Russia.

Trotzky's police guard will not permit visitors, and he was forced to dictate this interview over the telephone.

As an added precaution, the interview was conducted in German.

"Stalin, the bureaucrat, has killed the Bolshevist Party, thus robbing the people of the fruits of the October revolution," Trotzky asserted.

"Stalin represents the privileged ruling caste, whereas Trotzky wishes the proletariat to enjoy what the October revolution achieved. Stalin's policy means the evolution of a new class which, in turn, must result in an inexorable struggle in all sections.

"That privileged class fears a people who live in ever-iincreasing misery, hence Stalin is trying to stifle in blood all opposition for years.

"From now on all opposition will be called 'Trotzkyist,' and 'Trotzkyism' will be the excuse for terror. Death sentences will replace prisons and concentration camps and thus will the new constitution, 'the most democratic in the world,' be introduced.

"The recent trial in Moscow (in which 16 so-called 'Trotzkyists' were sentenced to death) is not the first of its type, for several times Stalin has attempted such amalgamation, such compulsory unification. The greatest previous attempt was the trial of Zinoviev and Kamanev in January 1935. At that time I wrote that the flasco of that trial would force Stalin to prepare for another more grandiose compulsory unification in the near future.

"But the latest trial likewise will not be the last of its kind. A series of new judicial coercions is at hand, for there can be no stopping along this path. Trials from now on will have the greatest importance to the political life of the Soviet Union.

"Stalin has killed the Bolshevist Party and bureaucracy is triumphant and free, but the struggle between the people and bureaucracy will be steadily sharper."

Suspects' Guns Cause Inquiry Order by Police

Two Brothers Accused of Impersonating Officers Face Jury Trial.

An investigation of reports that two revolvers belonging to Metropolitan police detectives were found in the possession of two men arrested on charges of impersonating officers and carrying concealed weapons was ordered yesterday by Inspector L. I. H. Edwards, acting superintendent of police.

The prisoners, John S. and Logan P. Wilton, 24-year-old twin brothers, were held in bonds of $1,500 each when arraigned yesterday before Police Court Judge John P. McMahon. They were arrested by Detective Sergeant Roy Blick.

The brothers posed as vice squad policemen and officers of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, police said. They both wore badges, one a special policeman's insignia and the other a policeman's badge lost more than a year ago, investigators reported.

Inspector Edwards said the brothers were appointed special officers during the Shriners' convention last year and at that time the revolvers were loaned to them by the two detectives. Neither weapon, however, was a regular police gun. Inspector Edwards said he was unable to explain why the revolvers were not returned or why the detectives had not made efforts to obtain them from the accused men. He ordered Inspectors James Beckett and Bernard W. Thompson to investigate.

Both pleaded not guilty to the charges. On the impersonation counts, they were held in bonds of $1,000 each for grand jury action. They demanded jury trials on the concealed weapon charges and bond was set at $500 each.

According to police, the brothers had been operating in Washington for more than a year, attempting to obtain money by "contacting" liquor dealers and suspected law breakers.

'Y' Spends $11,000 For Improvements

Approximately $11,000 has been spent this year in improving the facilities of the Y. M. C. A., E. S. LaFetra, business secretary of the organization, announced yesterday.

He said that $7,000 has been expended increasing the facilities of the health department. Improvements, he reported, included enlarging the quarters, installing a solarium, ultra violet and infra red lamps, electric cabinets, hot and steam rooms and a massage service under direction of a graduate nurse.

The association, LaFetra said, has spent $3,000 to air-condition its bowling alley, barber shop and restaurant. The remainder of the money went for new fire protection.

Girl, 13, Is Trampled By Balloon Grabbers

She received first-aid treatment for bruised and possibly fractured ribs at a tent set up on the grounds by Boy Scouts of Anacostia.

Eleven cases were treated at the first-aid tent. All the victims, with the exception of the Lukat girl, suffered slight injuries.

Levin Will Conduct Symphony Tonight

Sylvan Levin returns to the Watergate tonight to conduct the eighteenth program of the Washington Summer Concerts Association, and brings with him as soloist, Paceli Diamond, young mezzo-soprano, of Philadelphia. Local music-lovers are particularly interested in Mr. Levin because he received his early musical education in this city before winning a scholarship at the Curtis Institute. After his graduation from that school he became one of the assistants to Leopold Stokowski.

For tonight's concert Mr. Levin has arranged the following program: "Academic Festival" overture (Brahms), ballet suite from "Rosamunde" (Schubert), "La Rouet d'Omphale" (Saint-Saens), "Die Moldau" (Smetana), "Rumanian Rhapsody" No. 1 (Enescu) and "Bolero" (Ravel). Miss Diamond will sing Lia's aria from "L'Enfant Prodigue" (Debussy) and "Mon coeur s'ouvre a ta voix" from "Samson et Dalila" (Saint-Saens).

Miss Diamond is a graduate of the Curtis Institute, and at present is living in New York, where she is studying with Giacomo Minkovski. She has been a member of the Philadelphia and Chicago opera companies. This summer she has appeared at the Lewisohn Stadium in "Faust" and "Aida," and in the Robin Hood Dell production of "Carmen." Her latest engagement was with the Steel Pier Company at Atlantic City, where she sang the roles of Haensel in "Haensel und Gretel" and of Mercurius in the Bach cantata, "Phoebus and Pan."

Mary Hedrick Dies in Hospital; D. C. Teacher

Native of Washington Was Active in Educational and Civic Affairs.

Mary Elizabeth Hedrick, for many years active in educational and civic affairs in Washington, died yesterday in Georgetown Hospital.

A native of Washington, Miss Hedrick was educated at Central High School and the old Washington Normal School, now Wilson Teachers College.

Miss Hedrick taught in both public and private schools here. Schools with which she was connected were Threckle, Fillmore, Mrs. Barnes' and Mrs. Bell's.

She wrote articlels for juvenile magazines, was a former vice president of the Georgetown Progressive Citizens' Association, a member of the Board of the Georgetown Orphans' Fund and of the District League of American Pen Women. She was a member of the Georgetown Presbyterian Church.

Miss Hedrick was the daughter of the late Prof. and Mrs. Benjamin Sherwood Hedrick, of North Carolina. Prof. Hedrick was a teacher at the University of North Carolina.

She is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Harry Olcott, of Glencarlyn, Va., and Jennie and Ella Hedrick, both of this city, and two brothers, Dr. William A. Hedrick, of Silver Spring, Md., and Dr. Henry B. Hedrick, of Washington.

Funeral services will be held at the home, 3321 N street northwest, Saturday. Private burial will be in Oak Hill Cemetery.

Funeral Set Tomorrow For Mrs. Ida. M. Mastin

Last rites for Mrs. Ida Mathilda Mastin, 82, of 2200 Nineteenth street northwest, will be held tomorrow at 3 p. m. at the Pumphrey funeral chapel in Silver Spring, Md. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Mrs. Mastin, widow of Joshua C. Mastin, was a life-long resident of Washington. She is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Elizabeth I. Hager, Mrs. R. C. Hager and Miss Ida May Mastin, clerk at the American Red Cross, and a son, William E. Mastin, all of Washington.

Definition Needed.

A curious sidelight on President Roosevelt's reported plan for a peace conference between the chief executives of the great powers is found in the fact that his Secretary of State had no advance information on the subject, while his Secretary of Agriculture was selected to give a qualified denial of the rumored enterprise. A scheme of such magnitude, advanced in so amateurish a manner, is unlikely to receive serious consideration until and unless it crystallizes in concrete form.

None will be disposed to offer captious objections to any proposal with the slightest promise of ameliorating present international difficulties. But it would nonetheless be an obvious disservice to the cause of peace to assume that it can be forwarded by methods similar to those of the magician's wand. International conferences, if ill-prepared or tactlessly handled, can do more harm than good. Mr. Roosevelt himself possibly remembers some of the consequences of the large-sized brick he hurled into the London gathering of 1933.

It would undoubtedly be a diplomatic triumph if the President of the United States could prevail upon Stalin and Hitler, and perhaps the Mikado and Chiang Kai-shek, to break bread together, though doubts as to what would be gained thereby would linger even after acceptances to attend this new Field of the Cloth of Gold. Furthermore, before proceeding further with the grandiose idea, Mr. Roosevelt would do well to recall that abroad the United States has the reputation of starting international undertakings without being able to give assurance that it will see them through.

At the present time only a vague gesture in behalf of peace is foreshadowed. While it is possible that such a gesture would prove really helpful, it is equally possible that it would arouse hopes leading only to bitter disillusionment. If President Roosevelt carries his scheme further he must be prepared to say just what responsibilities the United States would be willing to undertake. When a good neighbor calls a meeting of this magnitude it is assumed that he has something more in mind than light refreshments and idle talk.

Secretary Dern.

In the long run, George H. Dern used to tell his co-workers, good government is the best politics. That maxim appears to have been his guiding principle as a legislator, as Governor of Utah and finally as Secretary of War. To an admirable degree he put politics aside when engaged in the public service.

In the Utah State Senate Mr. Dern fostered a workmen's compensation act and other humanitarian legislation. He was found consistently upon the progressive side of controversial issues. As Governor he encountered a barrage of criticism within his party when he reappointed an especially competent fish and game commissioner who happened to be a Republican. But his devotion to the public service, his competence as an executive and his friendly attitude toward all the people won him a remarkable popularity in a State that was nationally giving its support to the G. O. P.

When Mr. Dern became Secretary of War he was not familiar with the technical problems of national defense. But he lost no time in mastering those details. Often he remained in his office until the small hours, studying reports and suggestions as to how the efficiency of the Army might be increased. While emphatically disclaiming any sympathy with militarism, he was an intelligent advocate of a well-balanced national defense. He was largely responsible for the measure authorizing an increase from 118,000 to 165,000 in the Army's enlisted personnel.

The careful way in which Secretary Dern tackled the problem of building up the air force was typical of the man. First, he brought about an exhaustive study of the subject by an impartial committee. He never liked to make an important decision without thorough deliberation after all pertinent facts had been assembled. With the decision clear, however, he acted promptly and courageously. In this case his efforts resulted in the organization of the General Headquarters Air Force which brought all the combat planes of the United States under a unified command.

The Secretary's personality is reflected by his genius for making friends. Both as a young engineer and as Secretary of War his demeanor was completely devoid of pretense. His genial disposition will be missed no less keenly than his conscientious public service.

Crop Insurance.

Secretary Wallace has been toying for some time with plans for the establishment of an "ever-normal granary," into which would go the surplus crops of abundant years to relieve the shortages of bad ones. Recently he has been linking such proposals with a system of crop insurance, calling for payments in kind into a central storage fund.

There is no necessary connection between these two plans. On the contrary, the obvious objections to the "ever-normal granary" make it highly desirable to dissociate it from insurance proposals. The Government's agricultural experts are at the present time studying these, evidently fully conscious of the perplexing actuarial and administrative problems which confront them.

First, there is the difficulty of securing data upon which to determine the probable variations in the acreage yields of individual farmers over a period of years. Records for wheat farmers have been assembled by the AAA for the six years from 1930 to 1935, inclusive, and these returns might provide the basis for an initial experiment in insuring growers of that one commodity. Since the data cover a period of exceptionally low yields, estimates of normal or average returns would at least be on the safe side. Then, with the average crop per farmer determined, a certain percentage of that average return, say 75 per cent, might be insured, the farmer paying a premium for insurance equal to a varying percentage of the surplus above average returns in good years.

Many agricultural experts question whether it is possible to work out an actuarially sound plan of all-risk crop insurance in view of the great differences in yield from year to year, both on a single farm and as between comparable farms. The acquiring of the information upon which to compute payments, however, would probably be a less formidable undertaking than securing the assent of the farmers themselves to a really sound, self-sustaining insurance plan. Since any such system would be voluntary, established to enable the farmers as a class to grease the lean of one season with the fat of another, it remains to be shown how growers in good farming areas would be brought into the system.

The good risks, that is those in areas with infrequent crop failures, would be least disposed to join up unless the benefit payments were graded to allow for varying degrees of risk. But would the man growing a few bushels of wheat in regions subject to blighting drought be willing to pay over a large part of the receipts of good years to cover the losses of other years? Would a farmer so situated be willing to participate in a plan that enabled a prosperous grower to be insured with a relatively small payment? Certainly the political pressure to even out these differences would be great under any plan of crop insurance; and without varying premium rates, the so-called insurance would tend to degenerate into subsidized insurance—that is, concealed benefits.

The form of premium payments and the management of the insurance fund would also give rise to serious problems. Secretary Wallace apparently conceives of the ininsurance plan as an adjunct of a normal granary, with premiums paid in kind. But that would create the kind of troublesome situation that confronted the Farm Board when surpluses accumulated. Their very existence tended to depress prices and attempts to dispose of supplies encountered bitter political opposition. To avoid a repetition of such experiences payments in kind would have to be strictly limited, although in some cases they might be made an alternative to cash payments.

Insurance that is real insurance, and not a bounty in disguise, is merely a device to distribute risks over a large number of persons and over a long period of time. One of the major aims of crop insurance is to help the farmer to help himself by not disposing of his entire crop in good years and by deferring returns to future lean years. The wise farmer, or the farmer with capital resources enabling him to withhold his crops from depressed markets, is already a self-insurer.

Whether the rank and file of the farm population could be induced to participate in a sound insurance plan entailing substantial sacrifices of immediate income for the sake of later benefits is open to question. Certainly it is not a proposal to be lightly offered as a panacea for present ills, without prolonged and thoroughgoing expert discussion.

Delayed Tax Revision.

As a temporary means of enforcing the District's personal property tax law, Assessor Allen's policy of examining Federal income tax returns is commendable. Widespread evasion of the local levy may be thus reduced. But more than a belated check on tax-dodgers would be required to make this law satisfactory.

Many proposals for the replacement of this ineffective and inequitable levy on tangible and intangible personal property have been brought forward in recent years. Each time tax revision seems to have failed because the chaotic fiscal relationship between the Federal and District governments left no reasonable basis for the discussion of new imposts. Since a special committee is now at work on the fiscal relations problem, and there are indications that the next Congress will be more amenable to reason on that issue, a thorough overhauling of the local tax structure may well be considered.

Mr. Allen suggests revision of the automobile tax in line with modern practices so as to increase revenue from this source. No doubt other sections of the local revenue law are in need of modernization. Certainly the tax upon intangibles, which tends to penalize honesty, ought to be abolished in favor of a measure which can be readily enforced and which will more equitably distribute the burden of community support.

No Time For Dilettantes.

William Phillips, former Undersecretary of State, now Ambassador to Italy, is departing to take up his duties in Rome at a time when the need for expert American diplomatic representation in the capitals of the Old World is only too apparent.

The people of the United States fully realize the seriousness of the succession of crises which have been shaking European political stability. They realize that, no matter how strong isolationist sentiment, we cannot help being profoundly affected by those events. Consequently there is widespread appreciation of the importance of having this country represented in the key cities of Europe, during the present emergency at least, by men qualified for their task by character, by training and by experience.

Mr. Phillips admirably fulfills these requisites. In the many diplomatic posts which he has held he has consistently revealed himself as capable, tactful, hardworking and conscientious to a degree. He will undoubtedly be as popular in Rome as was Augusto Rosso, whose departure as Italian Ambassador is so much regretted here in Washington. But beyond that Mr. Phillips will be of great value to the United States as our envoy in a capital which is of great and increasing importance in the present emergency of world affairs.

The award of this vital post to Mr. Phillips is the more satisfactory because it is not yet the rule that major diplomatic posts should be given to career men who have proved their mettle. The habit of awarding ambassadorships to political henchmen, party contributors and personal friends of Presidents is still deeply implanted in our system.

A case in point is the replacement of Ambassador Straus, in Paris, by William C. Bullitt. It is no secret that Mr. Bullitt, a dilettante diplomat, has been anything but a success in Moscow. His talents, attractive though they are, do not fulfill the exacting requirements of the post to which he is proceeding. Mr. Straus was not a career man, but at least he was level-headed, judicial and supremely careful in his conduct of the Paris Embassy. It does not appear that Mr. Bullitt showed any of these qualities in Moscow.

In recent diplomatic appointments the Administration thus couples a bull's-eye with an erratic shot. The conjunction increases interest as to the man who will be chosen to succeed Mr. Phillips as Undersecretary of State. Rumor has it that Frank L. Polk, Undersecretary and Acting Secretary of State during the Wilson Administration, is very much in the running. A choice as satisfactory as this would make the score two hits against one error.

The New Bar Association.

The reorganization of the American Bar Association effected at Boston may well prove to be, as Dean Pound of the Harvard Law School predicted, "a turning point in our legal history." For it transforms the bar association from a relatively exclusive body of lawyers into a truly national organization that will be able to speak authoritatively for the legal profession.

Under the newly adopted constitution and by-laws, control of the American Bar Association will pass to State and local branches. Heretofore these local bar associations have had no representation as such in the national body. Policies have been determined by the few thousand lawyers attending National Bar Association meetings. Obviously this has not served to give its resolutions the thoroughly representative character desirable in an institution which is regarded as speaking for the legal profession as a whole.

If the ambitious plan now launched is successful, the American Bar Association will come closer to voicing the considered opinion of the entire legal fraternity, rather than merely a small fraction of it. Membership in the association should be greatly enlarged. Public confidence in its findings should be enhanced. And the scope of the association's activities may also be extended.

At a time when the constitutional function of the courts is being questioned, when important traditional concepts of government are being challenged and the administration of justice still falls a long way short of perfection, the national bar association has a unique opportunity to render public service. Possibly more than any other group, the legal profession will influence the changes to be made in our national policies. It is of the utmost importance, therefore, that the guidance from this source shall be representative of the best thought of the entire calling.

It seems that it's difficult for the Government to learn that it is as nearly impossible to enforce employment as it was prohibition.

The slower a person can think, the faster he drives an automobiles.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have always understood that radio is a public service for all the public, not just a section of it. Yet an event of the greatest significance of the present political campaign, one which was deemed of sufficient importance to be put on the front page of the New York Times, and also on the front page of your own paper, was not mentioned by your Postilion, nor in any other radio news of the day.

I refer to the announcement by Senator Couzens, of Michigan, that he will support Roosevelt, and that Roosevelt's re-election is the most vital matter confronting the Nation today.

Why the conspiracy of silence? Each item concerning Landon (some most insignificant) was duly announced, even his going to church. Roosevelt also went to church, but the country was not advised of it by radio.

Is our radio, as well as most of the newspapers, under the control of the Republican Party, and is that party such a poor sport that it cannot give its opponent a square deal? If this be so, maybe some of the Democratic sponsors of time on the air will be interested.

When the six governors of Democratic States went on the air to expound Democratic policies, the notices in all the papers (except one) were so indefinite that one wouldn't know what was to be heard. Such listings as "Your Governor," "The Governor," were most illuminating. Had I not read the advance notice in the New York Times, I would have missed a wonderful broadcast. And the Democratic National Committee was paying good money for that time on the air. Do you think they got real value for their outlay?

As you will gather, I am a Democrat, and I am so because of the conviction that the Democratic Party is the one that has genuinely the interest and well-being of all the people at heart. The rich and the poor, the learned and the illiterate, the industrialist and the farmer, capital and labor, white and black, and men and women can be assured that they will not be exploited for the benefit of those who are naturally their opposites. They will all get a square deal.

One-Horse Farmer Switches.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am living in a hard-boiled Democratic State. I have been most of my life a Democrat in principal. But I have changed. I have voted my last Democratic ticket for President. You can call me a Republican from now on. In my judgment we have more money to spend and live a more peaceful and pleasant life under a Republican Administration. We lived a very even life under Calvin Coolidge's Administration.

I am only a poor one-horse farmer, renting my land. I have four in my family and I am 44 years of age. I can't tell one day to the next where my next meal is coming from. I am compelled to borrow a stamp to mail a letter. And then I can turn around and see people in a worse condition than I am. I don't say this was all brought on by the Democratic Administration, but I do say it is getting more serious. I am just as much concerned about other classes of people as I am myself. It is up to us, the American people, to make a change and make it right, and make this country fit to live in. I am a full-blooded American and I want to enjoy living a peaceful life for me and my family. How can we live a peaceful life with conditions as they are now in our beloved country?

This is in my bones and it had to come out. Please pardon my intrusion. My education is limited. I am writing for no publicity, or seeking no public office, I just want to live an American life and live it right.

Midshipmen, Not Cadets.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: May I call your attention to an error which you made in your editorial entitled "Training Cruises" in The Post of August 22, when you referred to midshipmen making the annual cruise to Europe as American "cadets."

The general tendency for newspapers throughout the Nation is to term us "cadets" because West Pointers have that appellation. Under the word "cadet" in Webster's Collegiate Dictionary the following distinction is made: "Students at Annapolis are, since a change in the law in 1902, officially called midshipmen."

In Government Service.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial "In Government Service" published in the August 21 issue of The Post raises a number of points which in fairness both to Government employes and to your readers demand elucidation and a number of corrections.

First, we grant the correctness of your position as expressed in paragraph 3 of the editorial, referring to the United States Government as "the employer of all Government workers" and emphasizing the danger involved in a general strike of Government employes. However, the raising of this question is entirely irrelevant to the controversy which exists within the A. F. G. E., as it is already adequately covered by the constitution of the A. F. G. E. Section 3, article 2, specifically states:

> "We oppose and will not support strikes against the United States Government . . ."

The constitution also provides for a democratic procedure for disciplining such of the lodges or individual employes whose acts are deemed contrary to the constitution. It is on this question of interpreting and applying the provisions of the constitution that the controversy between members of the A. F. G. E. is concentrated.

We are of the opinion that the executive council has on a number of occasions acted in an autocratic manner and has repeatedly disregarded the provisions of the constitution. We have therefore decided to use the democratic procedure of recall as a means of protecting our membership and the other lodges against such acts by the four members of the executive council. We have prepared a bill of particulars outlining in detail the reasons for action and have submitted them to member lodges of the A. F. G. E., thus leaving it entirely to the membership to decide the issue. To raise irrelevant problems at the present time and to bring the question of the New Deal into our controversy appears to us as an attempt to befog the issue, rather than leave it to be decided by the intelligent judgment of the membership of the A. F. G. E.

Second, we want to call your attention to the fact that the editorial is only 33 per cent statistically correct when it refers to the six lodges as "New Deal" agencies. We cannot but believe that it was an error to include the Department of Agriculture, the Department of Labor, the Veterans' Administration and the Beltsville Experiment Station in the list of New Deal agencies. A further investigation on the part of the editor would also disclose the fact that by far the largest majority of these agencies' employes are bona-fide civil service employes with "the responsibility developed through long tenure of office."

It has been the policy of our lodge not to publicize its controversies with the national officers of the A. F. G. E. Rather, we had hoped to settle our difficulties within the framework of our constitution. However, in view of the fact that you have already taken a position on this question, it is only fair that we request you to give this letter an equally prominent space.

An A. F. G. E. View.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: "An Interested Observer" is to be complimented for his very fine analysis of the situation within the A. F. G. E., and the Department of Justice Lodge in particular.

Any friend of genuine unionism must condemn The Post's editorial stand in supporting the executive council. Aside from its betrayal of Justice Lodge at so critical a time, the council has consistently been pursuing a policy calculated to split the A. F. G. E. It has built up a myth about "radical" and "conservative" factions, in order to discredit all individuals and groups of individuals who disagree with its policies and pronouncements. It has relegated to itself dictatorial powers over the existence and functioning of the lodges in defiance of the fact that the A. F. G. E. constitution sets forth a democratic organization of autonomous local bodies. Does it not seem curious that it should be the so-called "radical" lodges which are trying to defend the constitution?

The destructive effects of the Executive Council's activities are already manifest. People have become so disgusted with the A. F. G. E. because of the actions of the five national officers, that they are refusing to join. As a member of my lodge's membership committee, I have been met almost universally with refusals from people whom I have asked to join, each one citing the betrayal of the Justice Lodge as a reason.

Indiantown Gap Salutes.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have read all your articles on the movements of the Twenty-ninth Division since we have been in camp. The paper reported that the salute in honor of the generals who visited here August 21 was fired by Battery A, 110th Field Artillery. This is incorrect. The salute was fired by the Headquarters Company of the Twenty-ninth Division. The personnel firing the salute was as follows:

Commanding, First Lieut. Cooper B. Rhodes, Inf. D. C. N. G.; gun detail, First Sergt. Walter C. Hand, Hdq. Co.; Sergt. Robert Donaldson, Hdq. Co.; Sergt. F. John Oertel, Hdq. Co.; Corpl. Mirle J. Davis, Hdq. Co.; Corpl. Joseph K. Myers, Hdq. Co.

Principles Of Socialism.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The "Observer" who writes that the Socialists and Communists "have a perfect and ideal candidate for their respective programs" in Franklin D. Roosevelt shows not only that he has not compared the platforms of these two parties with that of Mr. Roosevelt, but that he has no familiarity with the principles or ideals of socialism.

F. D. R. could never bring himself, and never has, to the point of repudiating the system which makes goods, not for use, but to sell for a profit. The fundamental principle of socialism, production for use, would have to be the first principle of any candidate, no matter how lowly the office he may be seeking, to be acceptable to either of the above parties.

West Texas Interest.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Just a few lines to let you know that I greatly appreciated your articles concerning the recent election campaign in west Texas. Yours was the only local paper that gave us a bird's-eye view of what was taking place down there. You evidently knew that we people of this city were more interested in that election than we are in all the rest of the coming elections, including the Presidential. It makes little difference to the voteless people of this city who is elected in the coming campaign now that Mr. Blanton has been defeated.

The Post Impressionist

Ad-Copy—And Other

Post Office, Friday.

WHO was the greatest writer of advertising copy in the Eighteen-Eighties?

John Greenleaf Whittier.

* * *

It is H. B. Hastings who assures the Column that this gentle Quaker poet committed commercial verse. Recall, please, Whittier's lovely—and eminently just—praise of N. H. and Me.:

"Gems of the Northland, never yet
Were lakes in lovelier valleys set,
Glassing the granite and the pines
That mark New Hampshire's mountain lines.
And not less fair the winding ways
Of Casco and Penobscot bays—
They seek for happier shores in vain
Who leave the summer isles of Maine."

* * *

Mr. Hastings informs us, in a columnar communication, that, if his recollection serves him, those haunting lines were written along about 1886—and written, on order, for an advertising folder of the Boston & Maine R. R.!

* * *

The railroad wanted to increase its tourist traffic: hence the folder. It wanted the folder to add dignity to lure: hence Whittier, who must then have been getting on for his seventy-ninth or eightieth birthday. The B. & M. paid the poet $300 for his poem: $37.50 per line. He didn't ask that sum. But, when handed it, he didn't refuse it.

* * *

Nevertheless, Whittier thoroughly deserved it.

* * *

What Mr. Hastings deserves—it's hereby tendered—is the Column's gratitude. Your columnist has been a consistent admirer of good ad-copy ever since that brief period in his career when, as its managing-editor, he managed an advertising-firm into bankruptcy . . .

* * *

Really, people are always enlightening the Post-Impressionist after Mr. Hastings' kindly manner. Look at the rest of today's mail!

* * *

Claus Bogel has been quietly collecting data to assist that Column-correspondent from Ballston, Va., who sent us his start for a dictionary of radio-talkers' terms.

"Here," says Bogel—after some kind words about the signature to this Column and the false declaration that his favorite author is the person who writes that signature—"here are some of the latest words I have heard 'on the air.' I have been at some pains to find and record their meanings, and I believe I may assure you of the correctness of my interpretations."

* * *

Whereupon he sets down the following:

Tempy chewers—temperatures,
Doddy Nellies—Dardanelles,
Arranged—arraigned,
Muni SIPal—municipal,
DRIGible—dirigible,
Demi-crat—democrat,
Fullerdelphia—Philadelphia,
Bridish—British,
Except—accept.

* * *

Then there's a scientific correspondent who picks up the Column's comment on "how hundreds of people, who eagerly reject the Gospel's account of the Resurrection, will argue with all their breath for the long survival (after certified death) of some entirely mortal being," such as Marshal Ney or Louis XVII:

"This mental attitude," well says our friend, "extends far beyond mere questions of survival. I have often noted that some persons find it easy to believe anything—so long as it isn't in the Bible!"

* * *

Finally, "P. C."—whose initials meagerly disguise one of Washington's grimmest guardians of the American language—writes us about "a certain locution that has become very common of late." Says he: "Authors—sometimes prominent authors, too—will write, 'These are the true facts' or 'The true facts are' . . . and the like.

"Now what," demands P. C., "is a 'true fact?' What is 'young youth,' 'black blacking,' 'white whitewash?' True, we have 'blanco encalada,' in Spanish—but look what a fog the Spaniards are in now! 'True fact' is vicious tautology, sir, and a pain in the neck."

* * *

And he asks the Column's aid.

* * *

Well, the columnist has never seen white whitewash. All that he has seen began by being blue, passed to yellow, ended gray. And there is certainly a vast metaphysical difference between "fact" and "truth."

However, the latter fact makes "true fact" all the stranger—stranger than fiction. The phrase becomes, not tautological, but paradoxical—while remaining an abomination, no matter what "factual truth" may be.

Clowning Trials.

A couple of eminent lawyers at the meeting of the American Bar Association in Boston inveighed against the clowning of criminal trials in the newspapers, selecting the Hauptmann case as their horrible example. Well, that was a horrible mess, to be sure, and the papers had no reason to be proud of their conduct, but it appears to me that the legal profession was more to blame for a shameful spectacle on its own home grounds than the press, which could have been kept within reasonable bounds if the judge had shown a little more firmness in that respect.

Of course, secret trials are not desirable, but it isn't necessary to let the papers run hog-wild in covering a case involving a man's life and a little pressure from the bench would have been good for the press and justice, both. The kind of circulation which comes from such a performance is an unhealthy swelling which does the papers no good but does them, on the contrary, a degree of harm in the long run.

But the bar seems to forget that some of the most spectacular trapeze work in the Hauptmann circus was discoursed not by reporters or trained seals, but by lawyers with a responsibility much more direct and solemn than that of the fourth estate. If the men of the bar involved in the Hauptmann trial all had lived up to the principles which are dusted off and reasserted once a year at the meeting of the Bar Association and then forgotten, there would have been a much different story to tell, and it would have been told in a much more decent manner.

It is my claim that newspaper men usually treat court proceedings with just as much dignity and respect as the legal profession, which has charge of the conduct and tone of such things. Perhaps they should observe a higher standard and set a good example for the courts and lawyers, but after all, courts are official and lawyers are officers of the court, whereas papers are unofficial and governed by their own inner character.

But, when a reporter covers a murder trial and hears counsel for the defense admit after the acquittal that his client was guilty as hell, when he sees on the bench shyster lawyers who bought their jobs by the kick-back system, when he has put in a few years' association with prosecutors who do political business with notorious racketeers, he becomes a little blase about the solemnity of court proceedings. If justice is just a gag to members of the bar the reporter is likely to accept their estimate and permit a cynical flippancy to flavor his accounts.

The same attitude may be noticed among political reporters in the legislatures who sit in the press coop, drowsily playing tit-tat-toe on scratch paper while the grafter on the floor, who would sell out for any lobbyist's $10 bill, hollers about the people's rights.

• • • •

I think I had better stick in a line here to say that in the foregoing I am not dealing specifically with the Hauptmann trial but with the general experience of reporters around the courts. Old Judge Trenchard was so fair and conscientious and his reputation so good that some of the reporters on the job wrote special articles about him.

It doubtless struck them as news to encounter such a man on the bench after their observation of many other judges in many other courts. Still, it was within his influence to subdue the conduct of those who made of that trial "the most shocking example of the evil practices which have surrounded the trial of sensational cases in this country for many years." These quotes are from the remarks of Judge Thomas Thacher before a meeting of Bar Association delegates in Boston.

If an individual reporter or trained seal makes the error of conducting a trial of his own in print concurrently with the trial in court, the judge on the bench has the right to toss that one out or, if he wants to, toss him in.

One great problem of the bar is the fact that some of its most illustrious members are men who got that way advising great financiers how to evade taxes on their income, while little people were being hauled before the collectors for examination on tax returns three years old and compelled to shower down an additional $3.47. With such conduct as the highest example in the profession, it is not strange that many of the new lawyers emerging from college by the thousand turn to practices which have made the legal profession a great American hair shirt.

Jews In The Reich

New Move Being Launched To Prevent Departure From Germany; Popular Sympathy Running Against Streicher.

Dr. Ewart Edmund Turner, former pastor of the American Church in Berlin, and now of Washington, has just returned from a tour of investigation throughout the Third Reich. He interviewed numerous Protestant and Catholic church officials and Jewish leaders, and presents his conclusions in a series of four articles, of which this is the third.

By Dr. Ewart Edmund Turner.

JEWS IN GERMANY have now completely given up hope for the future. Last summer I found many still believing that the Nazis might moderate and allow German Jews, at least, economic rights. But this summer finds Jews in Germany even despairing of their future in business.

During the spring of 1935 Hitler was compelled to face the Jewish problem and come to some decision. The increasing activity of Nuremberg's notorious anti-Semite, Julius Streicher, and the rising protest against Streicher's activity by moderate Nazis forced Hitler to cast in his lot with one side or the other. He chose to intensify the party's campaign against the Jews. An anti-Semitic police president was appointed for Berlin, heralded by Dr. Goebbels as a man who would put the Berlin Jews in their place; the Kurfurstendamm riots took place; Julius Streicher was allowed to carry his hatred into Berlin's largest auditorium, the Sportspalast, for the first time; hundreds of new display cases for Streicher's anti-Semitical paper, Der Stuermer, were erected by party permission all over Germany.

Then came the September Party Congress of 1935, which took the citizenship away from all German Jews. Its acts, called the Nuremberg laws, placed the German Jews back in the ghetto. It has taken some months for the implication of all this to penetrate German Jewry. But they all realize that the laws are being ruthlessly enforced. Now every German Jewish family is in utter despair.

The foreign traveler in Germany is impressed by the hyprocrisy which characterizes so much of the Nazi policy to the Jews. In one room in the Propaganda Ministry sits a man who is a specialist in whipping up resentment against Jews; in another room sits a man who is deft at toning down the anti-Jewish campaign and can explain to foreigners that the Jewish shops are still open and that not one hair of a Jew has been touched.

The German Ministry of Economics has affirmed and reiterated that Jews shall not be disturbed in business, yet fanatics in the party go on undisturbed in a campaign which they swear will close up every Jewish shop and factory. The party officially declares that Jews will be allowed the status of guests in Germany, yet pressures are exerted against buying in Jewish stores or ordering from Jewish factories. The same hyprocrisy is seen in the attitude of the Nazis to Christianity; they affirm positive Christianity, yet take the youth away from church influence and allow constant defamation of Christian doctrines and institutions.

Jews Still Uncertain What Hitler Desires Of Them.

JEWS IN GERMANY still do not know what Hitler wants of them. "Does Germany want us to stay? Then we should be allowed some freedom in business at least," declared one German rabbi. "But if Germany wants us to leave they should make it possible for us to go." The latest move against the Jews got under way in southern Bavaria in June when the police began refusing to renew the passports of Jews. In July the practice reached Belin. This is not an announced Nazi policy, but a sufficient number of Jews have been refused passports to establish the fact that a new move is being launched to prevent Jews leaving Germany.

Bad as are the economic conditions of the returned German ghetto, the spiritual suffering still remains the chief tragedy. The spiritual suffering is partly offset by the sympathy shown to German Jews by the German people, who for the most part respect and bemoan Streicher. But nothing can mitigate the wounds which arise from the daily contacts which a Jew must make daily in Nazi Germany. It is only a minority which keeps up the outcry against the Jew, but it has the party's approval and each day finds German youth more imbued with the distortions and hatreds preached constantly by Rosenberg, Streicher, Goebbels and others.

One Catholic teacher told me that he now speaks in class of the "Israelite," instead of the "Jew," because the word Jew has already become infected for German youth. A prominent Nazi told me that the "Stuermer" would probably be discontinued one day, but not until its purpose had been fulfilled. I asked him what he meant. His reply was typical of a strong group among the older party members: "The 'Stuermer' will only be discontinued when we have trained German youth to accept its point of view."

On the day that I arrived in Frankfurt Otto Goldmann was being buried. Five years ago Goldmann was one of Frankfurt's most respected citizens. His personal wealth and his ability to raise money had time and again been placed at the disposal of his native city. During the World War he sent provision trains to rescue famine-stricken populations in countries allied with Germany. He saw the future of dirigible airships; he helped impoverished Germany finance this infant industry after the war. Goldmann single-handedly brought the Eighth International Aeronautics Congress to Frankfurt. He was a life-long patron of the University of Frankfurt. For the founding of a great cancer research clinic at that university this distinguished Jew raised over 1,000,000 Reichsmarks. In recognition of his services as a citizen and patron of science the University of Frankfurt conferred its honor chain upon him.

At Goldmann's funeral a timid representative from the Frankfurt Gymnastic Society appeared. He obviously wanted to express the gratitude of that great athletic organization for the liberal interest which Goldmann had for years taken in it. Yet through fear the youth spoke only a few words which he declared were purely personal, since the society could not officially be represented. And the University of Frankfurt expressly informed the family that no mention of the honor they had bestowed on Goldmann was to be included in the funeral announcements.

Disposition Of Children Presents Difficult Problem.

OF THE 600,000 German Jews, 520,000 are still in the Fatherland. What shall become of their children? One well-intentioned American Jew suggested to a Bavarian rabbi that the United States would be willing to care for children from German Jewish homes. "To separate children from their parents so early in life would be too inhuman," the rabbi replied. "But it does seem necessary for our parents to try to send their children who are 17 or older to other countries. You can do German Jewry a real service by helping these young people get a new start in life under more favorable conditions."

The rabbi then mentioned that five German Jewish youths had been given scholarships for extensive theological study in Cincinnati. Such practical help does much to renew the courage of German Jews, the rabbi declared.

There are 43,000 Jewish school children still in Germany. Already enough separate Jewish schools have been opened to provide 23,000 of these with educational facilities. The rest are in Catholic or Protestant confessional schools, in private schools, or in the "Einheit" schools with which the Nazis are trying to replace the confessional schools.

In some parts of Germany, pupils and teachers are careful not to discriminate against these Jewish students. In other parts, under the influence of Streicher's satellites, teachers and pupils are compelled to humiliate these children. Adults and parents can never know the pain and struggle which such children bravely endure.

One extreme case came to my attention while I was in Baden. A Jewish girl of 12, found even her best school friends refusing to speak to her. They were told it was unpatriotic to associate with her. She became increasingly silent at home, refusing to place additional loads on her burdened parents. One day these parents returned home to find the girl with a gas tube in her mouth, dead.

Majority Of Emigrants Are Young And Middle-Aged.

FIFTY PER CENT of the 80,000 who have emigrated from Germany are between the ages of 20 and 40, 30 per cent are under 20. In spite of difficulties, Palestine has been able to absorb 60 per cent of all Jewish emigrants from Germany; 3 per cent have come to North America, 3½ per cent to Central and South America, 32 per cent elsewhere in Europe, 1½ per cent to Africa, Asia and Australia. With the exception of the few who have capital, no one is received in Palestine who has not already learned a trade, chiefly skilled labor or agriculture.

Two-thirds of the Jews remaining in Germany are completely or partially dependent financially. They are being cared for by the remaining one-third who still have an income. Contributions from abroad are not being used to help the two-thirds who need immediate assistance. All funds from the outside are being used to build schools, train Jewish youth in new vocations, provide transportation to foreign countries and assist the emigrant to get a new start abroad.

During 1935 German Jews received 1,600,000 Reichsmark in assistance from abroad. Because of the development of new organizations for raising funds world Jewry will contribute an even larger sum in 1936. German Jews themselves raised by taxation and voluntary contribution the sum of 12,500,000 Reichsmark for relief and reconstructure during 1935.

What is the future for German Jews? One feels that it is bound up with the larger problems of international relations. If the military system remains so central in Europe, if nationalism continues as the dominant mood, if Christianity remains a subdued force, the immediate fate of the German Jew will be sealed.

Soong to Slash Employe Rolls In Kwangtung

China Province's Finance Chief to Drop Unfit; Will Seek Trade.

By the United Press.

Canton, China, Aug. 27.—Wholesale dismissal of government employes was predicted tonight by Finance Commissioner T. L. Soong, of Kwangtung Province, who said the provincial government was about to adopt examinations to weed out unneeded and unfit employes.

Soong said he would set up an example for the rest of the province by drastically reducing his own staff of 425 in the finance commission. Asserting that many useless employes were hired under the previous administration, Soong promised general wage increases for those retained.

Under the provincial dictatorship of Gen. Chen Chi-Tang, who fled recently before the advancing armies of Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek of the Nanking Central government, the province was paying its employes only 85 per cent of their nominal salaries, Soong said. He promised immediate restoration of this cut.

Part of General Program.

Soong's announcement was made as a part of his general program to solve the province's financial difficulties and increase its efficiency in raising taxes and stamping out smuggling, which had official sanction under the dictatorship.

Soong charged that Gen. Chen aided smugglers by issuing permits of importation which permitted entry of certain merchandise duty free. His first move was to cancel these permits and it is expected that customs returns will show a marked increase before long.

Soong struck at official monopolies and said that the public will not be allowed to purchase stock in any future enterprise found to be working under a deficit. He said the government henceforth will aid new businesses developed by private citizens and that it officially will sanction such sale of stock.

Will Seek Silk Trade.

Sericulture (silkworm raising) will receive the government's immediate attention, he said. Silk exports from Kwangtung a few years ago totaled $80,000,000 annually, but have since fallen to $25,000,000. The government will assist farmers in obtaining better cocoons and also give financial aid from the Bank of China."

Soong said the government will attempt to stimulate rice growing. Kwangtung at present is importing much of its rice from Indo-China despite the fact that it could easily grow much more within its own borders. Commercial relations will be bettered with Anhwei and Kiangsi Provinces, which also grow rice, so that Kwangtung can import its rice from there and pay for it with cement, sugar and other products.

Soong also revealed that the Bank of Canton, which acted as agent for most remittances from Chinese overseas, soon will be reorganized under Chinese registration instead of the Hongkong law as formerly.

Kings Of Literature

By William Lyon Phelps.

Goethe And Tolstoi.

Johann Wolfgang von Goethe was born in Germany, at Frankfort on the Main, August 28, 1749. Leo Tolstoi was born in Russia, at Yasnaya Polyana, August 28, 1828. Both men lived to be 82 years old, and their lives overlapped, for Tolstoi was nearly four years old when Goethe died in 1832.

Although they were unlike in many ways, in one respect there is a striking resemblance. They are the only two men who have ever lived, each of whom was, during his life, generally acknowledged as the greatest living writer in the whole world. During the last ten years of Goethe's life, if a ballot could have been taken to determine the foremost living man of letters, Goethe would have received a majority of votes; and during the last ten years of Tolstoi's life a similar ballot would have shown the Russian far ahead of any other man on earth.

They are the first and the last kings of literature: they have no rival in the past, and it is probable that no one writer will again dominate the world of letters. Shakespeare was greater than either of them, but not so universally (in all nations) acknowledged while he was alive.

And in one respect Goethe is unique. He holds a place in German literature superior to that held by any other man in any literature. The books that Goethe wrote with his own hand are worth more to literature than all other books, past or present, written in the German language.

One reason for this is that he had astounding versatility, and yet was supreme in every form. He is Germany's greatest lyrical, epic, narrative, dramatic poet, novelist, playwright, literary critic, biographer, essayist, travel writer, conversationalist; he illuminated every subject to which he gave his attention.

• • • •

Tolstoi has no fame as a poet; but as a novelist he is one of the very greatest, and as a dramatist—he will never be forgotten. His books on art, and especially on religion, exerted an enormous influence over millions of readers in all countries.

Tolstoi's novels, "War and Peace," "Anna Karenina," "The Death of Iva Ilyitch," "The Kreutzer Sonata," "Resurrection," are available in English translations, while of his short stories and parables, the most beautiful is "Where Love Is, There God Is Also."

Everyman's Library contains the English versions of both Goethe and Tolstoi, and the Modern Library has the entire colossal novel, "War and Peace," in one volume.

U. S. Group Off To Film Relics Of 12 Religions

Members of Mystic Order En Route to Near East on 4-Month Trip.

By the United Press.

New York, Aug. 27.—Five members of the Ancient Mystical Order of Rosae Crucis were en route to the Near East tonight aboard the S. S. Washington on a $12,000, four-month expedition to photograph the cultural remnants of a dozen religions which flourished during the 13 centuries preceding the Christian era.

The society, founded in Germany in the fifteenth century and now dedicated to the preservation of the teachings of the past, will make the first extensive survey of religious archaeological remains to prove that the advance of civilization began long before the birth of Christianity.

Led by Ralph M. Lewis, supreme secretary of the Rosicrucian order, the party embarked yesterday with equipment to make movies of the temples, buildings of worship, tombs, burial grounds, sacrificial altars and other spiritual symbology.

The scientific expedition, which will travel by canoe, burro, camel and at times with a military convoy, will have these beliefs in mind:

1. That a concept of religion is necessary to sustain civilization.
2. That this concept has advanced civilization more than any other single factor.
3. That nations decayed when their religion became static.
4. That history points to an ultimate displacement of Christianity by a new set of ideals.

In the party with Lewis are Mrs. Lewis, Harry Shibley, director of publications, and Mrs. Shibley and Kendal Brower, San Jose, Calif., professional cameramen. The pictures will be shown at schools and in lectures.

The expedition, starting from Alexandria, will travel to Cairo, then down the Nile River to Thebes, by burro to the Valley of Kings in Egyptian Sudan, back to Cairo, through Palestine to Damascus, across the Syrian Desert to Baghdad by British military convoy, thence to Aleppo, Syria; across Turkey by Oriental express, by boat to Constantinople, overland to Athens and finally to Naples and Rome.

Seattle Seamen Vote To Picket German Ships

Seattle, Aug. 27 (AP).—The Seamen's Union announced it would establish picket lines around German vessels docking in Seattle hereafter, in protest against the reported imprisonment of Lawrence Simpson, Kirkland, Wash., seaman, without trial in Germany.

Announcing the campaign to the Central Labor Council last night, Ernie Fox, Seamen's Union delegate, said the International Longshoremen's Association would be asked to hold 10-minute stop-work protest strikes while working German vessels. The I. L. A. meets next Tuesday. No German vessels were berthed here today.

Handbill Distributors Fined $25 in District

Charges of distributing handbills, which allegedly contained communistic information, yesterday brought $25 fines to John Brown, 28, 500 block of R street northwest, and James Andrews, 22, 1800 block of Eighteenth street northwest, when they were arraigned before Judge Edward M. Curran in Police Court.

The men were arrested Wednesday while distributing the leaflets at Fourteenth and F streets northwest, police said. Both pleaded not guilty.

Uruguay Urges League Branch for Americas

Geneva, Aug. 27 (AP).—Uruguay today recommended what would amount to virtual creation of a Pan-American branch of the League of Nations. The suggestion was made in submission of plans for League rform, which is to be undertaken this fall.

Uruguay urged that limited, or regional, organizations having executive functions be set up which would be charged with examining and deciding how the League covenant should be applied when controversies between nations arise.

Sweden's "K. F."

Wholesale Co-operative Society Enters Export Business, In Keeping With Policy To Keep Whole Movement Flexible.

By the United Press.

Stockholm.

FAVORITE JEST of the Swedish co-operative societies is that they have a "monopoly' of the ultra-violet rays of the sun in Sweden. They haven't, actually, but they are certainly the largest "distributors" of ultra-violet rays. Their new plant, the "A/B Nordiske Silke-Cellulosa," is the only plant in the country manufacturing acetate folio or "diofan," which is used, not only as a transparent wrapping paper, but also as windows for hothouses and hotbeds because of its quality of transmitting the ultra-violet rays. Experiments are being made to see how practical it is for house windows.

Another novel feature of the co-operative movement in this country is that it is teaching the Swedish public to eat macaroni. The "Co-op" started a plant in 1933 and sales of macaroni have doubled.

A third novel feature is the formation of an export society to sell abroad the work of Swedish craftsmen and small manufacturers. Thus far about 250 craftsmen and small firms are represented; catalogues describing their articles in English, French, German and Spanish are circulated abroad.

These three developments illustrate, it is felt, one of the cardinal rules of the Swedish movement, which is to keep it flexible and adaptable. They are not very keen on "five-year plans" though the main program, to build up a strong network of consumers' societies and to work closely with producers' co-operative societies, is still adhered to.

Producer's Cooperatives Stimulated By Depression.

THE LATTER are pretty largely a product of the depression, during which the farmers discovered that their marketing methods had lagged far behind their farming technique. These various farmers' co-operatives—separate ones for dairy products, eggs, meat products, fruit and forestry products—are knit together in a "central federation" and in a central "wholesale purchasing society." These societies have had a considerable amount of Government support, in marked distinction to the consumers' societies which avoid Government support.

The theory behind this aloofness of the consumers' societies is that the Government can do nothing cheaply and as their whole aim is to produce and distribute as cheaply as possible and by their competition to force private industry similarly to produce cheaply, they feel no desire to see the Government take a hand. Such a course would mean higher taxes, they argue, which would come out of the consumer's pocket and defeat their objects.

Nevertheless, in spite of this "individualism" in their philosophy, the co-operatives are believed to have a very large number of Socialists among their members, although the movement is strictly non-political.

The consumers' co-operatives have a very democratic organization and all the steps taken are discussed in detail in the local societies and in the innumerable "study groups" which appear to be much more highly developed in this country than in Great Britain.

Disposal Of Surplus Presented Large Problem.

THE BIGGEST single problem which has confronted the movement here is that of selling its surplus production to outsiders. This problem did not arise in the old days when the movement merely bought what it needed at wholesale and sold to its members, but as soon as its central agency, Kooperativa Foerbundet, began to buy or erect mills, the question of disposing of surplus production became acute.

This first came up when they bought a vegetable oil mill whose output was much in excess of the needs of the members; after much discussion they solved this by selling the surplus abroad, and they now follow this practice in connection with their manufacture of cash registers, scales, and a wide variety of rubber goods. Their foreign prices for cash registers are said to be lower than those of private manufacturers abroad.

Their central wholesale and manufacturing unit, Kooperativa Foermundet, had a turnover in 1934 of 165,000,000 kronor, roughly $41,250,000, while the retail societies had a turnover of 377,000,000 kronor or about $94,000,000. The various divisions of "K. F." had turnovers as follows:

Groceries (meat and vegetable foodstuffs), $16,000,000; manufactured commodities (such as sugar, flour, etc.), $10,500,000; provisions, $5,500,000; furnishings and hardware, $3,750,000; footwear, $2,750,000; drygoods, $2,500,000.

"K. F." now does, it is claimed, about 20 per cent of the country's total business in flour; margarine, 30 per cent; rice meal, 20 per cent; sugar, 20 per cent; soap, 20 per cent; imported dried fruit, over 20 per cent; imported fresh fruit, 15 per cent; coffee, over 15 per cent, and tea, about 10 per cent.

(The end.)

Women Will Hold Summer Festival

The summer festival of the Women's City Club will begin tomorrow at 2 p. m., with a water carnival in the pool at the Marjorie Webster Schools, Sixteenth street and Kalmia road. Mrs. Gladys Middlemiss will be in charge of the swimmers.

Other entertainment will include features by the Marian Chace dancers, the Scherzo group of Lisa Gardiner dancers, the Washington players in "Pyramus and Thisbe," Mrs. Marie Deal, soprano, and the Alice Louise Hunter dancers. These acts will be presented in the evening, starting at 7:30, following a supper at 6 in the schools' gymnasium.

Mrs. John S. Bennett, chairman of the festival, will be mistress of ceremonies. Mrs. Edgar T. Brown is head of the supper committee.

Anti-Aircraft Tunnel Is Ordered by Italy

Rome, Aug. 27 (AP).—Sweeping regulations for construction and maintenance of an antiaircraft tunnel to shelter refugees in the event of an air bombardment were published today in the Official Gazette.

Railway and subway stations must be constructed according to the antiaircraft regulations and the decree sets up a special committee for enforcement.

The Once Over

Women Soldiers.

Elmer Twitchell is disturbed by nothing so much as the rush of women into the armies of war-stricken Spain. "What gives me the creeps," declares Elmer, "is that they're not only helping in the slaughter but doing it with gusto."

• • • •

"All the newsreel and newspaper pictures from Spain show the women grinning and beaming," said Elmer. "The men look reasonably serious, but you'd think the girls were just out for a screen test. It frightens me.

• • • •

"Whatever the explanation may be, the effect on society is sure to be punko. War will never be the same when thrown wide open to both sexes. Half the kick in any war came from being able to return home and tell the women all about it while they listened in pop-eyed amazement. Imagine tottering home and finding your old lady was in all the big battles hereself!

• • • •

"What made the wars of the old days glamorous? For one thing, it was the farewell parade through lanes of waving wives and sweethearts, the embraces at the depot, the last flood of tears and kisses. A man's going to feel pretty low marching off to war and discovering that all the girls left four trains ahead of him!

• • • •

"And those war letters—how about 'em now? Every soldier knows what it meant to get letters from mothers, wives and girl friends expressing loving concern, imploring him to be careful and sending him another pair of woolen socks. It made war endurable—this and the thought of being a gallant sufferer in time of frightful carnage. With the women grabbing guns and leaping into the thick of it, who's going to worry about him? Who's going to give a hoot about his socks? No girl is going to express any 'take-care-of-yourself' sentiments to her boy friend on the firing line if she has just been blown out of a trench herself.

• • • •

"It'll make a mess of war, I tell you. You know how women are. They want to boss things. They won't believe any male general knows anything and there'll be more inside discord than any war has ever known.

• • • •

Truism.

The nights are cool,
The moon is like
A golden pool;
And somehow, too,
I always meet
A boy who's more
Than pasing sweet;
Along comes love,
I heed its call,
And though it's deep . . .
I love to fall!

Hitler has increased his army by 200,800 making the German forces of the same strength as before the World War. That noise over behind the woodpile is the Kaiser having hysterics.

California Goes To Democrats In National Poll

Roosevelt Is Given 60 Pct. of Vote in Public Opinion Institute Survey.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, Aug. 27.—Senator McAdoo's prediction that California will go Democratic next November is borne out at present by polls of the Institute of Public Opinion, but Roosevelt's lead at the moment is less than the 600,000 votes which the California Senator claims he will receive.

The latest Institute poll of California gives Roosevelt 60 per cent of the major party vote, to Landon's 40 per cent. In terms of actual votes, the President's majority is calculated at 476,500, or slightly more than the 476,255 he received in the 1932 election.

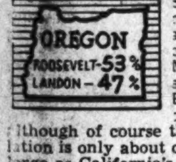
Much of the President's strength in California is concentrated in its two largest cities, San Francisco and Los Angeles. In San Francisco he leads with 64 per cent of the major party vote today, and in Los Angeles County he polls two votes to Landon's one.

According to Senator McAdoo, California is the "strongest Democratic State in the Union." The poll shows that while this may be true in terms of actual number of voters, many Southern States have a higher percentage of Democratic votes. In Mississippi, for example, the President polls over 90 per cent, although of course the voting population is only about one-twentieth as large as California's. In South Carolina Roosevelt polls 86 per cent today, and in Alabama 80 per cent.



Democrats Lead on Coast.

California is indisputably the strongest Democratic State on the Pacific Coast, however, according to the poll.

The trend in the other Coast States, Washington and Oregon, has been toward Landon. In Oregon the President has lost six points and in Washington five points since Landon was nominated in June. Both these States, however, still give Roosevelt a majority.

The trend of Democratic sentiment in recent Institute polls in Oregon and Washington has been as follows:

	Oregon	Washington
Jan., 1936	55%	56%
Feb.	57	57
Mar.	58	56
Apr.	57	55
May	58	57
June	59	59
July	55	56
Aug. 9	55	58
Aug. 23	53	54
Points Change Since Landon's Nomination	—6	—5

The swing in Oregon coincides with the statement of John D. M. Hamilton, Republican campaign manager, on August 11 that Oregon was in the best shape for the Landon-Knox ticket of all the Northwestern States.

TAKE WEIGHT OFF TIRED FEET

Lose Fat The Easy Way—Without Starvation Diets, or Back-Breaking, Bending and Rolling Exercises.

If your feet and ankles feel tired and ache all over—because you are carrying too much fat—do something about it. Try the treatment that has helped millions to reduce excess weight.

There's a reason why so many people find dieting slow and often times futile in reducing. The reason, doctors say, is often because a little gland is not working right.

All the blood in your body goes through this tiny gland sixteen times every day. If it doesn't pour into the blood stream about one and one-half drops of vital fluid every 24 hours, many people take on ugly fat. This fluid helps Nature to "burn up" excess food and fatty tissue in much the same way as a good "draft" acts in a furnace.

Now, physicians combat this condition by feeding this gland the substance it lacks — and millions of pounds of excess fat has been wiped out in this way.

Marmola Prescription Tablets are based on the same method used by doctors. So don't waste your time or money striving to reduce with starvation diets or back-breaking exercises. Start the Marmola treatment today that millions have used successfully to get rid of excess fat. The formula is in every box so you know just what you are taking. Don't wait—get a box of Marmola today from your druggist.

Foreign Exchange.

By the Associated Press.

A fresh Spanish rebel thrust toward Madrid was accompanied by easiness in the pound sterling in foreign exchange dealings yesterday, although most other currencies held steady.

In New York, offerings depressed the pound ⅛ of a cent to $5.03. In earlier trading the dollar had finished at 5.03⅛ to the pound in London.

The French franc was up .00$\frac{1}{16}$ of a cent in New York at 6.58½ cents following an earlier closing for the dollar at Paris equivalent to 6.584 cents to the franc.

Foreign Markets.

By the Associated Press.

London, Aug. 27.—Stock prices were firm today, practically all sections pushing ahead to higher prices. Radio and television issues were firm, together with distilling, steel, rayon and engineering shares. Mining stocks and gilt-edged securities scored advances, and the oil and rubber groups were also well supported at higher prices. Foreign bonds held steady while transatlantic issues moved irregularly.

Paris—Coal issues became irregular in the closing dealing in the bourse and international shares were heavy. The remainder of the list closed firm, with rentes in better demand and higher.

Spencer Girl's Mother Appeals For Annulment

Do-as-She-Darn-Pleases Bride and Husband in Seclusion.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—A lawsuit lent a sour note tonight to the honeymoon of James Edward Wright, 21, and his "do-as-she-darn-pleases" bride, Mary Belle Spencer, 16.

While the young couple remained in romantic seclusion, the bride's mother, Attorney Mary Belle Spencer, filed a suit for annulment in superior court.

The grounds were that Mary Belle was two years younger than the law allows for matrimony without the consent of parents, and that Wright, handsome, former athlete of suburban Chicago Heights, did not tell the entire truth when he applied for a marriage license in La Porte, Ind., a week ago.

"Get this straight," said Mrs. Spencer. "I adore J. Edward Wright. But marriage is out of the question for Mary Belle. How could my baby take care of a home? She has to be taken care of herself.

Thus did Mrs. Spencer exercise some parental restraint on her precocious daughter, who doesn't have to attend school, who can ride a horse bareback at midnight (as she did), or do almost anything else "she darn pleases."

In copyrighted stories today, the Daily Times announced the young couple would oppose the attack on their marriage, and quoted Mary Belle as saying, "I'm not giving up Edward for anything."

Mrs. Spencer, however, announced her intention of going before Judge Joseph B. David tomorrow for an injunction to restrain the bridegroom from "molesting" his bride.

It's our family's whiskey, neighbor—and neighbor, it's your price!

Here's a fellow from Chicago snapping us on Maple Street

It seems like we can't hardly go into town but some fellow pops up with a camera out of some place. And as you can see—the whole town gets to crowding around so thick that Marshal Dirks has sure got his hands full holding them back. We're all standing like that Chicago fellow said to—me with my arms crossed, Tom in the middle and then William—both hanging onto their hats. Look at Jessie there! Jessie's our dog.
Harry E. Wilken

Folks are treating us and our Family's Whiskey mighty nice!

You'd think we was running for president or something—the way folks are making so much of us and the Wilken Family Whiskey. It must be everybody has got more excited than you'd think out of their being able to get the same whiskey as us distillers drink ourselves. But I don't know as it's just the right thing for us to be letting everybody make out like Tom and William and me should have all this credit coming to us. When you come down to it, I couldn't say as that special mildness and tastiness you're finding in our Family's Recipe was all our fault. You got to think of Dad. It was him and Grandad that started up the whole thing. I mean all we're doing is keeping the Wilken Family's recipe just so—exactly like Dad always told us. Well, maybe that's something!

Milt Barrett, Of Dude Ranch, Marks Birthday

By Chanticleer.

This is Milt Barrett's day. For many years past this day, August 28, has meant special goings-on at the Dude Ranch in observance of our host's birthday anniversary. Once it was for the benefit of the Dude Ranch's own intimate little family, but no more. Everybody comes now. Special noisemakers, souvenirs, confetti and hoop-la. So if you have a weakness for birthday parties of the gala type, you're invited to the Dude Ranch tonight.

For a cool evening with the long stretches of the countryside all about you and where the cover charge is a foreign institution, try Boulevard Farms, below Alexandria, on the Memorial highway. Well, that is a slight misstatement. There is a cover charge Saturday nights, 50 cents, with Al Shea and his New Yorkers for your dancing.

Closer in, but outside the downtown metropolitan area: Brinkley's, the bright spot in Southeast Washington, with Brinkley's Aces providing the music under the direction of Johnny Rice.

Matt Windsor is not yet ready to announce the exact nature of his Club Volga Boatman shows this winter, but the hints he drops indicate that his first trip to Manhattan last week is only the beginning in the way of signing talent for the season. In the meantime, the Boatman's Russian Roof offers the same Russian atmosphere.

The big week at the Lotus still is on—welcoming Judy Ellington, the little Lotus singing star, back after a long vacation. She knows by this time that one of the nicest features of a vacation is the big welcome you get when you return. Elaine and Barry head the floor show.

Agnes Knox, late of Earl Carroll's Sketch Book is leaving some very pretty pictures in the minds of Shoreham Terrace patrons this week. She is the lovely who dances in the manner you don't quickly forget. Sanami and Michi, aces of the dance, base their offerings on the Terrace bill on the Javanese dance art of the ninth century.

Somebody asked Moe Baer how much ground he would cover if his movements in directing the band at the Hamilton's Rainbow Room were counted in some such manner as steps, in walking. He reports he wore a pedometer one day last week and it showed 2½ miles—positively, no more, no less.

The weeks go on and Dorothy Neville continues to hold the spotlight at Maryland Club Gardens. Probably Dorothy is out for a record. She's the soprano who sings in the gondola to Fran Trappe's accompaniment—'way out thar on the waters of the pool.

Muriel Byrd has succeeded Mammy Jinny at Cocoanut Grove in quickly grabbing off the affection of the public. Direct from Montreal's Embassy Club, she has taken the Grove by storm with a deep-throated blues contralto. George Patten also is offering to Grove audiences Vanessi and de Lima, held over for another week. In case you're interested, Iris Holland and Caryl Downes are the captains of the lines of dancing maidens.

Return of Judy Ellington to Lotus

Every member of the floor show, band and Lotus family in general became a member of a welcoming committee this week when Judy Ellington, the Lotus' singing star, returned after a prolonged vacation. To the right is Lorraine Grady, who won the title of "Miss Prince Georges County" in the recent beauty contest at the Dude Ranch.

Magnus Johnson Is Nearing Crisis

Litchfield, Minn., Aug. 27 (AP).—A crisis in the condition of Magnus Johnson, former United States Senator from Minnesota gravely ill with pneumonia, was believed by his physicians to be approaching.

"Mr. Johnson is a very sick man," said the physicians at a hospital where an oxygen tent was being used. The patient is being fed intravenously because of a weak heart.

Only last spring Johnson was in an automobile accident, and for a time his family feared he might die when his condition was complicated by pneumonia. Yesterday he suffered a sinking spell.

Mrs. Coolidge Returns.

New York, Aug. 27 (AP).—Mrs. Grace Goodhue Coolidge, widow of President Calvin Coolidge, returned late today from her first trip abroad to describe it as "a most wonderful time" and to register disapproval of "these foreign hats."

On the Air Today

Jerry Belcher is enabling me to do a bit of well restrained crowing today. Belcher, you know, is one-half the "Vox Pop" team conducting street interviews over an NBC net.

In another month or so Jerry will begin a series of programs to be known as "Our Neighbors." The plot is quite simple. "Every family in America is the neighbor of every other," says Jerry. "If disaster should strike San Francisco, families in New York would immediately send help. Your next door neighbor may dislike you, but should your child become seriously ill he will come to your aid. Certain habits and situations are common to all families. I hope, through "Our Neighbors," to bring out the problems, the humor and the pathos that are found in every day family life and show how typical Americans deal with each other."

Once a week the vox-popper will discuss, from a position of ease and informality in the midst of familiar belongings, the chromos on the family wall, the tables dented by baby's teeth and the lamp that was Aunt Susie's last Christmas present. All sorts of minor crises and major delights will be informally gone into—on the air.

And in the same spirit in which Belcher and Parks Johnson introduced the perennial interview to the big time, he will insist on meeting the family he is to interview in advance of the broadcast; but in no case will any member of the family know in advance what his questions are to be.

* * * *

Now, about my crowing. For many months I have maintained that the element of plain ordinary garden variety human nature has been miserably overlooked in network broadcasting. No one wants to "take a chance" on the untried. And a producer certainly gets into the realm of the untried when he depends on the public as actors or otherwise as talent for the success of his show.

The result has been a steady diet of patterned shows ranging from the "outing" type, such as "Show Boat," to the "now the curtain is going up, the spotlight floods the stage into which spirals little Dolly Dimples" type in which the listener is expected to go 7-year-old and pretend he is seated in a theater or night club or some such.

A few of these would be fine. But it has been policy to adopt most of the shows on the air to the half-dozen or so standard patterns. And eventually we reached a point where a new and original idea was frozen out. No one would risk his money experimenting with departures.

To Belcher and Johnson go my respects for selling one producer on the worth of an informal, non-staged type of presentation of the type of "Vox Pop." That credit is cheerfully given despite the fact that street interviews have been used by local stations for years.

But this "Our Neighbor" is a departure from network standardization of far greater significance, probably made possible by the sudden flair for the community sing adaptation to the air, which has gone great guns this summer in the big-time camps.

Similarly, "Professor Quizz" will inject a new note of variety into the radio scale when it begins on a network in September.

Since I have shouted loudly for a year for new program ideas which will bring the public closer into broadcasting programming, I find delight in Belcher's newest contribution. I wish him every success.

Culbertson On Bridge

"Dear Mr. Culbertson:

"I don't claim to be an expert contract player, but some of my friends don't think that I am a complete dub (perhaps I should say, don't know that I am a complete dub), so I hope you will be discreet if you publish the following hand:

"Both sides vulnerable.
"South, dealer.
"Tournament hand.

"The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 club	Pass	1 diamond	Pass
3 diamonds	Pass	3 hearts	Pass
5 no trump	Pass	7 diamonds	Pass
Pass	Pass

"East led the five of spades and West played the seven. North led out six diamond tricks; West shed two low spades and a low heart on the last three; dummy three hearts; East discarded the seven and two of clubs and the two, eight, queen and ten of spades in that order. North then played his last diamond. Poor East had to drop the jack of hearts; dummy threw the spade, and west the spade king.

"Going over to dummy with the club, North found, not to his surprise, on the third lead that they didn't break. On the twelfth trick dummy's last heart was led; West played the nine. After much reflection, North played the queen!

"As the smoke cleared away, North said plaintively: 'Partner, when East threw the queen and then the ten of spades, I thought he must be holding the jack, as his only other card besides the last club!'

"With insulting courtesy, South said: 'And you thought he led the five from queen-jack-ten?'

"Silence.

"Yes, you've guessed it. I was the North who didn't even think back to the opening lead.

"Yours heartbrokenly.

(Signed)

"FRANKLIN EDGERTON."

Il Duce Plans Speech On European Situation

Rome, Aug. 27 (AP).—Premier Mussolini is planning an important speech on political questions when the Italian war maneuvers end Sunday, informed quarters said tonight.

They expected he would give particular attention to the Italian military position as it is affected by the Spanish civil war.

Il Duce, it is believed also, will discuss Italy's new imperial responsibility and the expansion of the German army.

Soviet's New Envoy Arrives in Madrid

Madrid, Aug. 27 (U.P.).—Marcel Rosenberg, who resigned as under-secretary general of the League of Nations to become the first Soviet Ambassador to Spain, arrived in Madrid today, the foreign ministry announced.

Rosenberg's appointment now was considered significant of the friendly Soviet attitude toward the Madrid government. Madrid probably will appoint an ambassador to Moscow soon.

Il Duce Urges Children.

The Federal Diary

Registered in U. S. Patent Office.

By Samuel Lubell.

A. F. G. E. 'Reds.'

The raising of the "Communist" issue by leaders of the conservative wing of the A. F. G. E. may turn out to be a boomerang.

There have been too many "red" scares in this country for most persons to take "Communist" accusations very seriously. The fable of the boy who cried "wolf" too often still holds true. Most people know it has become a common practice to denounce persons with whom one disagrees as "red" and most persons discount such charges.

Between the radical and conservative blocs there is a real issue. Briefly, the difference between the two factions is that the New Deal lodges want a militant union that will fight their grievances with administrators while the conservatives want an orthodox organization of Federal employes that will look to the Civil Service Commission and Congress to improve their lot and make Government service a career. One group would try to transfer trade union tactics bodily, including picketings and mass demonstrations, into the Government field, while the second group desires to modify these practices with the idea that the Government cannot be placed in the same category as a private employer.

Probably the majority of Government workers would prefer an organization that would combine the traits of both blocs—one that would not go too far on the radical extreme and yet would maintain sufficient militancy to keep it above the level of the company union. The exact mixture desired we should say would incline towards the conservative view. And it is precisely for that reason that the "red" issue may do more harm than good to the conservatives.

If the conservatives are to win over the "center" lodges they will have to demonstrate that there can be no common meeting ground with the New Deal radicals. An anti-red campaign will hardly do the trick and may alienate some of the more liberal "center" lodges. Perhaps there was a time when if you called a person a Communist you raised a really vital issue but nowadays to do so generally means to descend to name-calling and personalities. There are basic issues at stake which the conservatives would do better to stress.

Tonight's meeting of the District Department probably will demonstrate the good sense or unsoundness of our remarks in that it will provide the first test of strength not only of the New Deal and conservative blocs but of the "center" lodges who eventually will determine the fate of the A. F. G. E.

Emanuel R. Saltzman, of Internal Revenue Lodge, No. 47, is doing nicely at Emergency Hospital, where he was operated on for an infected lip. Friends are invited to visit him in wing 4 E.

Agriculture Players.

Department of Agriculture's dramatic guild will usher in the new theatrical season with a presentation of two one-act plays in the Agriculture Auditorium at 8:15 p. m. Wednesday.

"Joe," the first of the plays which Marguerite Dodson, secretary-treasurer of the guild, describes as a "grim tragedy," is being directed by Joseph Klein. In the cast are Edythe Aymar, Klein, Helene Mead, Alberta Pusey, Joseph Walters, Julius Lipschitz and John Wirt.

Play number two, a "hilarious comedy," entitled "Good Medicine," will be enacted by A. William Waldman, Beverly Gaylor and Wanda Sarnecki. Robert N. Anderson is doing the directing.

The intermission between the two plays will be given over to several musical numbers—an instrumental trio, Jack Levenson, Al Tushin and Ben Levenson, accordeon selections by Otto Rauschwalbe, dances by Peggy Kelly and Robert Mahorney, and musical readings by Lois Ranand musical readings by Lois Rankin.

Admission, we might add, is free.

Our congratulations to A. Earle Weeks, of the Navy, and president of the Inter-Departmental Water Polo and Swimming League, who will be honored with a silver plaque tomorrow afternoon at the President's Cup swim at the Washington Canoe Club. The plaque is being presented in appreciation of his work as chairman of the District A. A. U. Swimming Commission, a post he is resigning. Weeks also intends resigning the presidency of the Inter-Departmental League. Doctor's orders.

Civil Service

Although the annual statistical report of the Civil Service Commission, just released, shows that the number of civil service jobholders is greater than at any time since 1919, four Government agencies have fewer civil service appointees this year than last.

Classified positions in the Commerce Department has dropped from 10,440 for the fiscal year 1935 to 9,083 for the fiscal year ending June 30; the American Battle Monuments Commission from 16 to 7; Farm Credit Administration from 3,540 to 2,500; Government Printing Office from 5,333 to 5,207.

There are still 31 agencies in which Civil Sevice hasn't even made a dent. They are the White House, Commodity Credit, Co-ordinator for Industrial Co-operation, Division of Industrial Economics, Electric Farm and Home Authority, Director's office of the Emergency Conservation Work, Export-Import Bank, Federal Deposit Insurance, PWA, FERA Home Loan Bank Board, Federal Housing, Federal Reserve, Savings and Loan Insurance, Surplus Commodities, HOLC, International Boundary Commissions, International Joint Commission, Merchant Fleet Corporation, National Archives, National Emergency Council, National Resources Committee, Steel Labor Relations Board, NYA, Prison Industries Reorganization, Puerto Rico Reconstruction, RFC, Resettlement, Rural Electrification, TVA and WPA. In all, these agencies represent almost 111,000 employes.

The total number of unclassified workers in all agencies is 325,534 to 498,725 Civil Service appointees.

The In-Com-Co Club of the Interstate Commerce Commission will hold its tenth annual golf tournament September 8 at the Indian Spring Country Club, Four Corners, Md. The prize for the 36-hole medal play contest will be the Practitioners Trophy, a large silver cup donated by attorneys appearing before the commission. The three-time winner gains permanent possession of the cup.

Those with legs on the trophy are Miles L. Brownell, Rumsey N. Trezise, George V. Lovering, Claude A. Rice, W. W. Seay, F. E. Early, Mack Myers, George B. McGinty and Ernest J. Kendrick. Others on the special golf committee are J. F. Sheehan C. P. Morris, J. E. Snider and E. J. Doyle.

Edward Scheidt, special agent of the Department of Justice, has been given three months' leave of absence to work with North Carolina police authorities in setting up a manual of rules and regulations for the State law enforcement officers.

Brank Watson, of the check section of the General Accounting Office, and his wife were guests last night at a surprise dinner given by G. A. O. workers at the Bellevue Hotel to celebrate their thirty-fourth wedding anniversary.

L. A. Jones, chief of the section, acted as toastmaster and presented the Watsons a gift of ruby glassware on behalf of the section workers. The "home talent" entertainment included a tap dance by Charles Dixon, a recitation by Mrs. E. Sago, and a solo by Mary L Girodano. There also was a skit of Mr. and Mrs. Watson in their youth directed by Florine Creel and assisted by Dorothy Pentin, Jack Bunker and Alonzo Kendall. The entertainment program was arranged by Ernes M. Knight and Frank Stockton.

Two Film Stars Defend Singing In the Morning

Nelson Eddy, Jeannette MacDonald Highly Approve Habit.

By the Associated Press.

Hollywood, Calif., Aug. 27.—Singing before breakfast, as an obbligato to the strops of the razor and crackling of the bacon, was warmly indorsed today by two film notables who do it.

Before breakfast music-making has been known to strike unresponsive chords in listeners, even leading to domestic discord, and divorce, but Jeannette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy regard it as a highly desirable practice.

Neither is married, but the red-haired songster's engagement to Gene Raymond, platinum blond leading man, was announced last week.

Gives Advice.

Nevertheless, Miss MacDonald plunged fearlessly into a word or two of advice.

"If your better half dosen't sing before breakfast, then is the time to worry," she said. "Singing is a sure sign that the singer is starting a happy day.

"I sing when I get up, perhaps softely so as not to awaken others. But nevertheless, I sing. I find it mentally stimulating and refreshing. It's good sound psychology. It's not only singers who follow this rule, but others who never have to sing professionally."

Raymond was not available for comment.

"Many a business man stands by his window, and with a sour face and a frown, does his deep breathing to start the day," Eddy declared. "If you want real deep breathing, just sing. Even if you hum, you must inhale plenty of fresh air.

Continue Their Frolic on F Street

The Colt .45, Frances Farmer and Bing Crosby, pictured above in the order named, reading in the customary direction, continue their downtown run in "Rhythm on the Range" without interruption. Having closed last night at the Earle after a capacity week, this literal "horse opera" now occupies the screen at the Warner Brothers' Metropolitan Theater. Mr. Crosby and Miss Farmer are supported by Bob Burns, Martha Raye and numerous others of note.

Plant Heads and Union Chiefs Confer 2 Hours in Tire Strike

By the Associated Press.

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 27.—Representatives attempting to settle the strike at the Kelly-Springfield Tire Co.'s plant adjourned their meeting tonight after a conference of more than two hours, reporting they had made progress toward an agreement.

The conferees said they had agreed not to discuss the specific matters covered in the conference, but all the labor representatives said they were hopeful of ending the strike through an agreement.

The conference will be continued later, said State Senator Robert B. Kimble, one of three labor men participating. The company had an equal number of representatives.

No neutral conferees were present at the opening session.

Gov. Harry W. Nice, who arranged the conference, said that neutral members might be called in later if there was no immediate settlement of the strike.

Representing the company were Edmund S. Burke, its president; William Walsh, its attorney, and Thomas B. Finan, a stockholder. Senator Kimble, John Geis, president of Local No. 26, United Rubber Workers, and W. J. Carney, national organizer for the union.

Earlier, Kimball offered to submit the workers' demands for more money and shorter hours to arbitration. But, he stipulated, recognition of the union and reinstatement of some of its members were not, in the view of the union, matters for arbitration.

Gov. Nice, whose efforts had brought the disputing parties to a here in case his presence was needed again.

Police and pickets were moved away from the gates of the tire company plant and the company promised not to attempt to open up pending negotiations. The opposing forces were moved away from close contact as a result of the conferences arranged by Gov. Nice, who dashed across the State by motor to reach the strike area.

The Troupers

The East Washington Community Center presents the Troupers, under the direction of Arthur Rhodes, in three one-act plays. At Eastern High School. Reviewed Thursday evening by W. A Whitney.

THE PROGRAM.

"THE KILLER," melodrama by Albert Cowles.

"THE FLATTERING WORD," comedy by George Kelly.

Unlike their thespian fellows (the Roadsiders excepted), who neither toil nor spin during the festival season, the Troupers of East Washington have maintained uninterrupted their dramaturgic activity, bringing to the boards last evening three one-act plays of strongly contrasting ideas.

All the plays were not produced with the same finesse, and the less said of the patently amateurish "The Killer" the better.

In "The Dweller in Darkness," which opened proceedings, the players got off to a good start and while they managed to create a situation of suspense upon the darkened stage, they seemed less proficient in maintaining the awfulness of the situation which should dominate this drama of spiritualistic fancy. Carolyn Rogers, Patricia Paige, Martin Meyers, Ernest Johnson, L. Zaff Rogers and Mr. Diket were the actors.

Best produced and performed was "The Flattering Word," George Kelly's commentary on the magic of "You should be on the stage." With Director Arthur Rhodes impersonating the opinionated minister, the actors seemed more sure of themselves and gave the piquant lines a smooth reading. Mr. Milton, as the visiting actor; Miss Paige, as the church worker; Ethel Selby, as her "aspiring" daughter, and Geraldine Wells, as the minister's wife, turned in thoughtful readings which, with Mr. Rhodes, combined to make this a likely Troupers entry in the October play tournament.

Legion Studies Militarization Of CCC Camps

Resolution Expected to Reach Convention's Floor Tomorrow.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 27.—The resolutions committee of the Maryland State department, American Legion, today considered the proposed fight for militarization of the Nation's CCC camps.

Leaders of the convention, which was opened here last night, predicted the resolution would reach the floor Saturday morning.

Should the Maryland department favor conversion of the reforestation army into a military unit, the entire national department of the American Legion will be asked to throw its strength behind the movement.

Other highlights of the day included:

An announcement from Amos D. Worthington, chairman of the grave registration committee, that he received a telegram from Senator Millard E. Tydings this morning confirming the Secretary of War's approval of a $100,000 appropriation for construction of a national cemetery near Baltimore.

Mrs. Reuben Ross Holloway, one of the principal backers of the State teacher's oath bill which Gov. Nice vetoed after the 1935 session of the Legislature, told the legion auxiliary she had prepared a new bill "which has the teeth this time."

A move to persuade Walter W. Beigel, State adjutant and only paid man in the department, to retain his position. Beigel notified Charles S. Houck, jr., department commander, several days ago that he must resign because of ill health.

Bakery Driver Sues To Void Contract

Suit to cancel an agreement he signed with the Dutch Baker Boy, Inc., when he went to work there as a route salesman, was filed in District Court yesterday by James S. Gurney, of Kensington, Md., who asserted that when he was employed he was asked to sign a contract promising not to accept employment with a competeting firm within one year after he severed his connections with the firm.

According to attorneys Edward Clarke and Morris Abrams, he asserted the importance of the agreement was minimized when he went to work six months ago. For that reason, he said, he believes the agreement now is without binding effect. Nevertheless, he said, it is preventing him from obtaining work with another bakery, where he has been refused employment because of the existance of the contract.

Anti-Trust Law Charges Against Oil Firms Set

Madison, Wis., Aug. 27 (AP).—Judge Patrick T. Stone today set December 1 for the appearance of representatives of 23 major oil companies to answer charges of violating the Sherman anti-trust law through a conspiracy to raise and fix gasoline prices.

The date was set in Federal court under an agreement of some 20 lawyers representing the oil firms from various parts of the Nation and Hammond E. Cheffetz, Government attorney.

Film Play Has Gala Premiere At the Palace

'Gorgeous Hussy' Attracts Brilliant Audiences on Opening Night.

By Nelson B. Bell.

"THE GORGEOUS HUSSY," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of the novel by Samuel Hopkins Adams, adapted to the screen by Ainsworth Morgan and Stephen Morehouse Avery, starring Joan Crawford, Robert Taylor and Lionel Barrymore, with Franchot Tone, Melvyn Douglas, James Stewart, Beulah Bondi, Alison Skipworth, Louis Calhern, Sidney Toler, Gene Lockhart, Phoebe Foster, Clara Blandick, Frank Conroy, Charles Trowbridge, Willard Robertson and Greta Meyer. Directed by Clarence Brown. Reviewed Thursday night at Loew's Palace Theater.

Attended by all of the complimentary hullabaloo of surging crowds, sputtering Klieg lights, patient microphones and grinding newsreel cameras, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's film version of Samuel Hopkins Adams' fascinating novel of "The Gorgeous Hussy," starring Joan Crawford, Robert Taylor and Lionel Barrymore, last night was accorded a premiere and a midnight showing at Loew's Palace Theater to the applause of two overflow audiences.

In fashioning "The Gorgeous Hussy" to the requirements of the screen, Ainsworth Morgan and Stephen Morehouse Avery, the adapters, have stripped the tale of Washington's social and political life in the early years of the nineteenth century of much of its picturesque embellishment and have concentrated their attention upon the romantic career of Peggy O'Neale, otherwise Mrs. Margaret Eaton, and the political fortunes of President Andrew Jackson, "Old Hickory," in his struggle to preserve the Union of free States against the vigorous opposition of those combative patriots who placed State rights above those of the Federal establishment.

Two Dramatic Movements.

These two dramatic movements of the story are projected with directness and vigor. In tracing the career of Peggy O'Neale, much of the book's illuminating incident has been dropped—everything, indeed, that might cast the slightest aspersion upon the character of a spirited young woman who is made to appear a sympathetic comforter of a bitterly bereaved President rather than any sinister "power behind the administration of Andrew Jackson."

The political ramifications of the narrative similarly have been skeletonized with a view to sharpening "Old Hickory" in casual eyes as a man of homely sentiment and an implacable champion of justice, truth and honorable dealing. His devotion to his pipe-smoking wife, Rachel, and the complete understanding between her and Peggy serve to safeguard the picture against any possible misinterpretation and stamp it as a work designed primarily to serve the stellar purposes of Miss Crawford and Lionel Barrymore.

The locale of the play's developments is continuously, although at times unrecognizably, the National Capital of the years 1823 to 1828. The lines, from time to time, are heavily charged with an unctuous humor and pointed by sharp sallies that seem peculiarly to fit the present condition of political unrest. A century seems to have worked scant change in the fundamental needs of the United States of America, although "The Gorgeous Hussy" undertakes to grind no contemporary political axes.

Is Well Cast.

Recognizing always the difficulty of casting what amounts to a biographical drama to the satisfaction of all those who entertain preconceived notions of what important figures in history were like in appearance, voice and movement, the present subject acquits itself honorably and well in the revivification of such leaders of an older day as Jackson, John Randolph, John Eaton, Rachel Jackson, Daniel Webster, John C. Calhoun, Martin Van Buren and others of equal prominence.

Lionel Barrymore's impersonation of "Old Hickory" is the most forceful in the play, with Melvyn Douglas' nicely shaded John Randolph next in effectiveness. Robert Taylor is a graceful and picturesque young sailor in the role of "Bow" Timberlake, Peggy's first husband, buried at sea, and James Stewart, as Rowdy Dow, is useful in a distinctly secondary role.

Joan Crawford's deportment in the title part is rather the most mature, most poised and most dignified she has revealed to date upon the silver sheet. For this portrayal she has completely "unflapperized" herself. The result is such as to provide ample justification for her reputed ambition to transfer her talents to the living theater in order to perfect her technique as an actress of serious purpose.

Provides Engaging Entertainment

Beulah Bondi undergoes great sacrifices of personal attractiveness to make the role of Rachel a study in realistic honesty and simple pathos. Sidney Toler seems to me to lack something of the profundity of the great-eyed Webster, but Louis Calhern is a complete realization of the author's need of villainy in his drama.

While not in any sense a commanding historical document, "The Gorgeous Hussy," in its new form, is an agreeable and picturesque bit of screen entertainment, handsomely produced and skillfully directed. It was preceded last night by a cartoon comedy in color, a Pete Smith dog subject of dramatic interest and the Metrotone News in which Gov. Alf M. Landon was accorded a rousing round of applause.

Today the feature will be shown on the regular Palace schedule and doubtless will attract the crowds its story and performance warrant.

About The Showshops

BELL.

IF THE screen version of "Anthony Adverse" impresses the theatergoing public as a particularly dynamic and spectacular production when it is revealed upon the screen of the Earle Theater, beginning Friday, September 11, its appeal will result from no mere circumstance or happy turn of luck. In the casting of this film unique precautions were taken to be sure that each player cast in a role of importance should, in so far as humanly possible, visualize the author's conception of that particular character in the story.

To the layman this sounds like an almost impossible undertaking, yet the means adopted for its accomplishment were comparatively simple.

When the picture was about ready for shooting, Director Mervyn LeRoy assembled a complete set of photographs of his principals in costume and make-up—"in character," as the vernacular of the theater has it—and forwarded them to Hervey Allen, author of the monumental fiction which, in fact, is three novels rolled into one. LeRoy asked the author to check the photographs of Fredric March, Olivia de Havilland, Claude Rains, Anita Louise, Edmund Gwenn, Louis Hayward and some 30 additional members of the cast and report back to him how closely they resembled their creator's own mental pictures of the people in his story.

He wanted to know from Allen whether or not the tall, slim figure and handsome blond head of March filled all the requirements of the title role in its years of maturity. He also asked Allen how the youthful beauty of Miss de Havilland matched the writer's own conception of Angela. He also hoped that Allen would agree with him that Claude Rains had caught the sinister power and character of Don Luis, that Steffi Duna was a perfect Neleta and that the John Bonnyfeather of the book was completely realized in the person of Mr. Gwenn.

It is not of record, so far as I know, in what minor particulars Mr. Allen may have disagreed with the youthful Mr. LeRoy, if at all. It does seem to reflect a high degree of credit upon the casting of the film, however, that no substitutions were even so much as suggested. Mr. Allen placed the stamp of his approval upon every member of the cast, from Freddie March down to the smallest "bit" player. He is said to have been especially gratified by the thought that these able people not only looked their parts, but possessed the intelligence and the talent to make his characters leap to life right off the printed pages of that 1,224-page book.

You may recall that "nice going" is what I always say.

Since "The Gorgeous Hussy" was completed on the West Coast, Beulah Bondi, this column's distinguished home-towner, has paid a flying visit to the East and now is back in Hollywood to assume an important part in "Maid of Salem," next starring vehicle for Claudette Colbert. Miss Bondi, one of the contemporary theater's most gifted character actresses, seems gradually to be "giving in" to the cinema, although she shares the stanch loyalty to the parent theater of a Katharine Cornell or a Helen Hayes. In recent months she has been seen locally as Melissa Tolliver, in "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine;" Boycie, in "The Moon Is Our Home," with Margaret Sullavan and Henry Fonda; Mrs. Livingston Ames, in "The Case Against Mrs. Ames," with Madeleine Carroll and George Brent; Madame Letizia, in "Hearts Divided" and, in the picture given its premiere in the Palace last night, Mrs. Andrew Jackson. Beulah Bondi is one of the few hardy souls who dare decline to sign term contracts in order that they may return to the living stage at will. I recall one occasion when Sam Goldwyn found it impossible to comprehend that point of view in her case.

Receipt of the handsome motion picture edition of "Romeo and Juliet" has served to direct attention to the fact that Random House, Inc., 20 East Fifty-seventh street, New York, the publishers, has gone quietly but surely about the considerable task of enlisting most of the leading playwrights of America under its banner. It is now the exclusive publisher of the plays of Eugene O'Neill, Sam N. Behrman, Clifford Odets and Sidney Kingsley.

The Spewack's "Boy Meets Girl," George S. Kaufman and Katherine Dayton's "First Lady" and Irwin Shaw's "Bury the Dead"—all of which probably will be seen here this season—also appeared under the Random House imprint last year.

During the coming season, this firm will publish Emlyn Williams' "Night Must Fall," Odets' "The Silent Partner," George Middleton's "That Was Balzac," Sir James Matthew Barrie's "The Boy David," and, as soon as they are produced on Broadway, new plays by Sidney Kingsley and Ward Morehouse and the first two plays of O'Neill's new cycle.

Another item on the Random House list that is sure to interest all informed playgoers is "The Theater Guild Anthology," which will contain the unabridged texts of 14 Guild successes, with an introduction by the Guild directors. Included in this volume will be Shaw's "Saint Joan," O'Neill's "Strange Interlude," Maxwell Anderson's "Mary of Scotland," Robert Emmett Sherwood's "Reunion in Vienna" and S. N. Behrman's "Rain from Heaven."

On Monday night at 8, in Pierce Hall, Fifteenth and Harvard streets northwest, the Pierce Hall Players will conduct the group's only open tryout. At this time, players for the cast of "Alias the Deacon," the three-act comedy by John B. Hymer and LeRoy Clemens, will be selected. There are 16 parts in the play—11 men and 5 women. One of the most important, according to Director Howard F. Wentworth, is that of a 14-year-old boy. He is particularly desirous of finding some talented lad for this part. Rehearsals will begin as soon as the casting is completed and production the first week in October.

Reverting momentarily to "The Gorgeous Hussy," the black taffeta gown and complete costume worn by Joan Crawford in the picture was sent on to Washington by Adrian, the designer, and is being modeled tonight and tomorrow night by a prominent society girl of the Capital as a special feature of the floor show at the Shoreham Hotel. It arrived by plane yesterday afternoon and was added to the Shoreham show last night. If you don't believe it, ask Ruth Barnard or Ray Bell—no relation!

Movie Boners.

CLARK GABLE.

Hollywood, Aug. 27.

Robert Taylor, dressed as the Armand to Garbo's "Camille," sits on the running board of an auto parked outside the sound stage, and says: "I believe I've got a movie boner for you." He tells about the flicker "Spendthrift," and relates about the sequence in which Henry Fonda, turned radio announcer, broadcasts a football game. Then, the following day, Fonda broadcasts the Kentucky Derby. Now, if you'll look up the sports charts, you'll learn that the football games and the Derby take place during different seasons. It is a simple matter, however, for the movies to re-arrange the schedule.

* * * *

Fred Keating, on his way to make a screen test for a role in a musicale at Warners', declares a flicker flaw in "San Francisco." Says Keating: "After Clark Gable invites Jeanette MacDonald into his room, he asks her: 'What's your racket?' I'm certain," says Keating, "that the word 'racket' wasn't current slang then."

* * * *

Joan Blondell, eating lunch with Dick Powell, asks me to sit at the table to listen to this movie boner. It is in the flicker "Rhythm on the Range," and Bing Crosby has put Frances Farmer off the train and it is raining. A few minutes later, Miss Farmer gets on the train again. Of course, she is wringing wet; her clothes and her hair. She gets behind a bale of hay to change her garments. When Frances Farmer climbs into the bed, her hair is soft, curly and dry, looking as if she had come from a beauty parlor instead of out of the rain. A gal would notice this.

* * * *

Now for the fans. "I went to see Mary Astor in 'Trapped by Television,'" writes Ruth Brod. "And when Miss Astor was calling on the financier to make a deal about the television machine belonging to Lyle Talbot, she is wearing gloves and a bag. She leaves the office without them. But when Miss Astor enters her apartment in the next scene, she again has them in her hand."

* * * *

A Mrs. Gonyea writes: "In one picture Charlie Ruggles' employer receives a telegram. After reading it, he gets very angry and rolls the telegram into a ball and throws it at a plate glass door. The telegram breaks the pane of glass as it hits it. I am very glad that I do not receive such heavy telegrams."

* * * *

In the flicker "San Francisco," Seymour Gilman is disturbed by the earthquake sequence, because "if one looked closely, he would have noticed that not one person was dressed in bed clothes although it was after 5 o'clock in the morning."

Then, since "the era of San Francisco depicted in the picture was one of vice and sin," says Gilman, "why not retitle the flicker 'Sin Francisco?'"

The Gorgeous Hussy

What Has Happened So Far.

Peggy O'Neale, charming daughter of the owner of the Franklin Inn, a popular 1823 Washington tavern, is in love with John Randolph, Senator from Virginia. She feels that he reciprocates her affection, but when she is unable to break down his reserve and force a declaration, she accepts a proposal of marriage from Bow Timberlake, young naval officer.

CHAPTER FOUR.

Randolph Returns.

There was one person, Peggy felt, whose advice about Bow would be sensible and unbiased. That was Rachel Jackson. So she went to the wife of "Old Hickory" and confided her decision to wed the young officer.

"How soon do you want to get married?" asked Rachel.

"Right away," said Peggy.

"Marriage, honey, ain't a party dress," answered Rachel. "You got to wear it mornin', noon an' night."

"I know," said Peggy. "The reason we don't want to wait is that Bow's going away on a three months' cruise to the West Indies."

"Well, if you ain't dead sure," said Rachel, thoughtfully, "I wouldn't be hurryin' things. He'll be back."

"But I do feel sure," exclaimed Peggy. "He's so alive—always laughing—always warm and tender——"

"Why don't you do this," suggested Rachel, with apparent artlessness. "John Randolph's a good friend of yours. Why don't you get his advice?"

Peggy gave a start, but quickly controlled herself.

"John Randolph has gone back to his home in Roanoke," she said quietly.

"For a long spell, honey?" asked Rachel.

"I don't know. I didn't see him before he left. But anyway, I wouldn't want to ask him about it."

When Peggy left the room Gen. Jackson emerged from the bedchamber, where he had been catching snatches of the conversation.

"By tellin' that little minx to talk to John," he cried out, "you're stampin' on gunpowder."

Rachel regarded him with a knowing smile as he paced back and forth in front of her, but said nothing.

"Ain't you watched John Randolph?" he went on. "Ain't it clear as gospel he loves the little hussey hi'self? Always has!"

"Why, Andy Jackson!" exclaimed Rachel innocently. "You don't mean it?"

The general glanced at his wife and for the first time realized that she had been pulling his leg.

Urging his coachman on with all the buoyant zest of a schoolboy, John Randolph covered the last few miles going into Washington. He looked a different man entirely. The strained, tense expression was gone from his face, and in its place was one of eager expectancy. When he reached the courtyard of the Franklin Inn he leaped from his carriage, astounding Horatius by giving him a friendly slap on the back, and hurried inside, where the first person he encountered was Daniel Webster.

"Well, Dan," he said with a cheerful salute, "how's your constitution?"

The famous orator stared after him in bewildered uncertainty, as he made his way without further pause up the stairs. At the top of the balustrade he met Rachel Jackson.

"'Pon my soul, John Randolph!" she exclaimed in surprise. "Speakin' of the devil——"

"John," said Rachel uneasily, sensing what he meant. "I think I ought to be tellin' you——"

The Wedding Day.

He hurried down the corridor and paused before Peggy's door. For the first time he had come to realize how blind he had been in his attitude toward her, how he had been deceiving himself. She was very young, true, but she had less artifice than any other six women he knew, coupled with an extraordinarily fascinating personality.

Peggy, when she opened the door, was so startled to see him that she did not read the obvious message in his eyes.

"John," she said, "I'm so glad you've come. There's something very important I must ask you."

"Ask me anything in the world," he replied. Then Peggy's seriousness began to disturb him, as he studied her face.

"It's about a young man," went on Peggy awkwardly. "A young gentleman has asked me to marry him."

"A different gentleman this time?" returned Randolph, his emotions held in vice-like control as he parried words.

"You know him, John," said Peggy. "It's Lieut. Bow Timberlake."

"What advice do you want from me?" asked Randolph with an effort.

"Do you think I'd better marry him?" questioned Peggy. "Please tell me truly what you think, because I won't if——"

Randolph, his ears ringing as if with the sound of mocking laughter, was not listening any further. His abnormal pride not only made it impossible now to tell her what was in his heart, but demanded that he give some sharp retort.

"My counsel to you," he said deliberately, "is to accept the proposal of the first presentable young gentleman who may wish to honor you with the mantle of respectability."

The marriage of Peggy and Bow took place aboard the U. S. S. Constitution. When they arrived home at the inn late at night, after a celebration aboard the frigate, Bow gaily insisted on the privilege of carrying his bride down the corridor and across the threshold of his room. The Jacksons were awakened by the sounds of laughter and scuffling in the hall, and the General angrily threw off the covers and got up.

"What's all this rampagin' in the dead o' night?" he muttered to Rachel.

Finding a shoe that had dropped from Peggy's foot outside Bow's room, Jackson began to pound furiously on that door. When Bow responded the General looked as if he had intentions of strangling him. The appearance of Peggy only served to arouse him still more.

"What are you doin' in there?" he asked her, fists clenched.

"None o' your sailor's tricks!" cried Jackson to Bow, suspiciously.

"But, General, we're really married," said Peggy. "We've got the papers to prove it."

Bow produced a paper from his pocket and Jackson, without benefit of his customary spectacles, strained his eyes in the candlelight to look at it. Apparently everything was all right, for his snorts subsided and he turned to give Peggy an affectionate congratulatory kiss.

the room that the couple discovered

It was only after he had left the paper they had mistakenly given him to read was an order commanding Bow to report for patrol service aboard the Constitution.

After a honeymoon of a few brief days, Bow departed for service in the Caribbean. Peggy tried to conceal her loneliness at parting from him, but she took no enjoyment in any of her former activities and the hours were leaden. John Randolph she never saw, and Rowdy Dow felt that his company was not wanted. Days with incredible slowness passed into weeks, then months.

At last the time arrived when the Constitution was scheduled to return home. Cuthbert excitedly brought word that the boat had been sighted, and he and Peggy chased down to the wharf, where they appropriated a neighbor's rowboat.

When Peggy clambered on board the cruising vessel and asked excitedly for Bow, she was told that she would have to report to the commander's office. This struck her as strange. She didn't even know the commander.

"Where's Bow?" she asked anxiously, entering.

"On the twenty-second of June," he said, "Lieut. Timberlake and a number of his fellow officers went ashore at the port of Maracaibo. We are not aware of what brought on the trouble, but when our rescue party arrived your husband was dead, from several mortal knife wounds."

Peggy did not hear any more.

Betty Angus And Toledo Man Marry

James O. Johnson Takes Bride to Canada for Honeymoon.

Of much interest to Washington was the wedding in Meyerdale, Pa., yesterday of Miss Betty Angus, daughter of Mrs. Grace Kendall Angus, of this city, and the late Rev. Harry Angus, to Mr. James O. Johnson, of Toledo, Ohio, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Johnson, of Quincy, Mass. Only members of the two families were present.

The ceremony took place in the garden of Kendallwood, the summer home of the bride's mother. Pines were arranged to form an altar with a semicircle of trees in the background. The Rev. Dr. Eisenberg, of Cumberland, Pa., former pastor of the Church of the Covenant here, performed the ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. S. A. Kendall, jr., of Philadelphia. She wore a gown of white brocaded satin made on long princess lines with a high neck and a fitted jacket, and carried talisman roses.

Mrs. J. L. Kendall, jr., of Pittsburgh, was the maid of honor and only attendant. She wore a frock of blue moire with a full skirt and fitted jacket. Mr. John Battle, of Washington, was best man.

The bride, who attended Friends School and George Washington University, is a granddaughter of the late Representative and Mrs. Samuel A. Kendall, of Pennsylvania.

She was a popular member of the younger set in Washington and was entertained at many informal parties before she left the Capital about two weeks ago.

Miss Dorothy Nicholson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson, who is returning to New York, Sunday, after a month's vacation with her parents here, will be guest of honor today at a luncheon bridge, at which Miss Aileen Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Harris will entertain at her home in Woodland Drive. Miss Katharyn Fuqua also will give a luncheon for her tomorrow on the roof of the Hotel Washington.

Miss Nicholson and Miss Harris lived together in New York City last winter while both were there. Miss Nicholson, who made her debut a few years ago after her graduation from Holton-Arms, is now on the permanent staff of Henri Bendel as a fashion model.

She has been entertained at numerous parties given by her friends since she has been home. Her mother also entertained with a surprise luncheon for her at the Congressional Club on her birthday, August 15.

Miss Harris' guests today will be Miss Helen Sacks, Miss Kathryn Fuqua, Miss Betty Cocke, Miss Margaret Clark, Miss Mary Katheryne Spinks, Miss Margaret Lee Ferguson, Mrs. William Everett, jr., Mrs. Edmund Botazzi, Mrs. Thomas Phillips, and Miss Ella Jesse.

F. F. Skillman Entertains 30

Mr. Frank Foster Skillman, of Cincinnati and Washington, gave a tea yesterday afternoon at the Bar Harbor Club, Bar Harbor, Me., for 30.

The affair was decidedly the brightest afternoon party of the week, with music furnished by Jack Marshard's famous Boston orchestra.

The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Langhorne, Miss Edith MacCuloch Miller, Miss Bell Gurnee, Miss Elim O'Shaughnessy and Donna Marina Torlonia, all of Washington; Justice and Mrs. Norman S. Dike, Mr. and Mrs. William McNair, Mrs. V. R. Johnsson, Miss Alice Van Rensselaer, Miss Mary Hoffman, Mrs. James Lloyd Derby, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. John Corbin, Mr. Huntington Smith, all of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer, Miss Pauline and Mr. Gordon Palmer, of Chicago; Miss Susan Scott, of Philadelphia and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hooper Stevenson, of Boston.

Betty Sze Is Honored At Reception

Chinese Ambassador's Daughter Feted at Blue Ridge.

Embassy Cannot Confirm Report Envoy Is to Be Replaced Here.

Miss Betty Sze, daughter of the Ambassador of China and Mme. Sze, was the guest of honor Wednesday night at a reception and dance given by her parents at the Monterey Country Club, near the family's summer home in Blue Ridge Summit, Pa.

The Ambassador and Mme. Sze have been there for the season, and the Embassy has no confirmation of the announcement that Dr. Sze is to be succeeded by Dr. Chang-ting T. Wang.

Should Dr. Wang replace Dr. Sze, the many friends of the present Ambassador and his family, both here and in the summer colony at Blue Ridge Summit, would feel considerable regret to see them leave. Dr. Wang and his wife, however, would not be strangers to Washington.

Both of them were here in the early summer and spent a few days at the Shoreham following the International Rotary meeting in Atlantic City, to which Dr. Wang was a representative from his district. Mme. Wang wore her native costume during her stay.

Dr. Wang, a graduate of Yale in 1910, and a member of the Phi Beta Kappa Society, felt entirely at home on his visit here. His family has been Christian for three generations, and he is well acquainted with the Western world. He is a financier, coal operator and diplomat, and as an enthusiastic follower of sports is head of the China National Amateur Athletic Federation. He was on his way to Berlin, when he was here, to see the 70 Chinese athletes compete in the Olympics.

Parents List Engagement Of Daughter

Mr. and Mrs. George Carter Minnigerode, of Washington, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Helen Louise Minnigerode, to Mr. Frederick Henry Allen, of New York City, son of Dr. William H. Allen, of New York, and of Mrs. Dangaix Allen, also of New York, but who for the last several years has been living in Mexico. The wedding will take place in the fall.

Miss Minnigerode is the niece of Mr. Powell Minnigerode, director of the Corcoran Art Gallery. She attended the Warrenton Country School and the National School of Fine and Applied Art in Washington, and is at present on the editorial staff of the Ladies Home Journal.

Mr. Allen attended the Ecole des Roches in France and was graduated from the School of Architecture of the University of Virginia. He is connected with the Bowery Savings Bank, of New York City.

Nancy Jones Becomes Bride Of E. P. Lilly

Wedding Is Solemnized in Church Here; to Live in Chicago.

Pastel colors formed the decorative scheme for the wedding yesterday morning at St. Gabriel's Church of Miss Nancy Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Peter Jones, of 4116 Third street, and Dr. Edward Paul Lilly, son of Sir Joseph T. Lilly, K. S. G., and Mrs. Lilly, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Easter lilies, asters and great bouquets of gladioli were used with ferns and palms for a background.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore an ivory satin gown made on simple princess lines, with a high cowl neck, and a long, fan-shaped train. Her ivory tulle veil formed a cap over her hair and was held with a band of braided satin and orange blossoms at either side. Her bouquet was of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Her sister, Miss Betty Jones, was maid of honor and wore a frock of blue moire taffeta with a gold stripe, a slight train and a cape with which she wore a blue hat made with a tulle crown and a velvet coronet with roses and delphinium.

The Rev. Louis Albert performed the ceremony, at which Dr. Gerald Lilly, of Brooklyn, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. The ushers were Mr. Joseph F. Lilly, another brother from New York; Mr. Stephen Bergin, of Waterbury, Conn., the bride's cousin, and also a classmate of the bridegroom at Holy Cross College, and Mr. John Mac Laughlan, of Lowell, Mass., another classmate of the bridegroom.

Both the bride and the bridegroom attended Holy Cross Academy. The bride also attended Trinity College and Georgetown University Dental School. Mr. Lilly completed his training in the Capital at Catholic University.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry P. Lilly, of Seattle, Wash.; Mrs. Fred Hyde, Dr. Elizabeth Bergin, Lewiston, Me.; Miss Jane Lilly, sister of the bridegroom, Miss Katherine Connelly, of Elmira, N. J., Mrs. J. G. Gleason, Port Washington, N. Y., the Right Rev. William Conklin, Brooklyn; the Rev. Francis Breen, S. J., New York City; the Rev. Lawrence Kelly, S. J., Washington; the Rev. John Brennan, Northport, L. I.; Brother Gerard, of Brooklyn, N. Y., Mr. Robbert E. Lilly, of Brooklyn; Mr. Edward Bergin, Waterbury, Conn; Mr. John F. Connelly, Elmira, N. Y.; Mr. Raymond Howe, Mr. Joseph Cunningham, Mr. Richard Ritzel and Mr. Daniel Lynch, all of New York City.

After the wedding breakfast, which was followed by a reception in the Chinese Room of the Mayflower, Mr. and Mrs. Lilly left on a wedding trip to Boston and the Canadian Rockies. They will make their home in Chicago, where Dr. Lilly will teach at Loyola University.

Washington Scene

By Poe Sisters.

An upholder of American traditions of liberty, and justice for women, Miss Mary Anderson, chief of the Woman's Bureau of the Department of Labor, celebrated her birthday anniversary yesterday in her quaint home and garden in old Alexandria. She was born in Lidkoping, Sweden.

The flowers around the birthday cake were from the old-fashioned bed cultivated by Miss Anderson and Dr. Estelle Warner, of the Public Health Service, who shares the house on old Pitt road with her.

Many Corcoran Gallery of Art folk are far afield for their vacation jaunts, although the gallery chief, Mr. C. Powell Minnegerode, and Mrs. Minnegerode are nearby at Blue Ridge Summit. They were accompanied to this resort by Mrs. J. Holdsworth Gordon, Mrs. Minnegerode's mother, a gentlewoman of the old school, who knows her Washington like a book and, though of advanced years, takes an interest in all that is going on.

Dr. O'Connor, of the Corcoran gallery, and Dr. Herbert Friedmann, curator of birds of the National Museum, started for Spain a few weeks ago to look at its architectural wonders and to study bright plumaged birds. Because of the war situation in that unhappy land, however, they went instead to Italy. They are now at Naples and expect to visit other art centers before returning to this country.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Farmer Wonders if He Should Leave the Country, Which He Loves, and Live in Town to Please Wife.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a young man 23 years old and married to a woman who is 27. Until a few months ago we lived very happily together. Then my wife took to going to town once or twice a month. I did not mind that, but now she says she wants to stay in town and also wants me to come to town and look for work.

* * * *

I have lived in the country all my life and love the work. I do not like the city and don't think I could ever stay there even if I went. I own a farm and raise good crops and have everything needed to work a farm.

* * * *

What must I do? Get rid of everything I own and go with her to town, or stay where I am and try to get her to come back to the country? I don't want to lose her and I don't want to go to the city. I still care for her and she says she still cares for me. Don't you think if she cared for me she would come back, instead of asking me to break up and follow her? UNDECIDED.

Stay Where You Are.

DEAR UNDECIDED: I think it is perfectly possible your wife might really love you and yet be so ill-suited to farm life that she feels compelled for her own salvation's sake to go to town to live. Knowing how much you love her, I suppose she assumes you will give up all else you hold dear rather than lose her. But I do not advise you to sell out and follow her into the chaos of present-day town living.

* * * *

My advice to you is to stay where you are, doing the work you were trained to do in surroundings you enjoy. As a farmer you are moderately independent and adequately self-sustaining and the chances are all against your making a financial success of yourself in town or city, with business conditions what they are today. Opportunities in the crafts, trades and professions are very limited even for those who are specially trained for such work, and it is not improbable that you might find yourself on the relief rolls eventually, if you permit your wife to uproot you from your native habitat at this time.

* * * *

Small farms and farming equipment can be bought for very little nowadays, and it is logical to suppose you wouldn't realize a great deal of money through the quick sale of your holdings. What money you obtained thus might soon vanish in the move to a new and strange environment. You would be living off your capital, instead of the income from your investment as you are now, and this without any guarantee of your ever connecting with an assured income in town.

* * * *

Let your wife go to town, if she feels she must, but don't make any effort to support her there. Let her get a job and support herself if she insists on living away from your bed and board. If thrown entirely upon her own resources, she may fail and return to you with a new appreciation of the security you can provide, or she may succeed and, by succeeding, make it possible for you to join her in town without jeopardizing the financial security of both. If she succeeds, and if she loves you, she will do the latter. If she succeeds and doesn't urge you to join her, you must then conclude that you were only a temporary stepping stone in her life.

* * * *

If there is any question of marital obligation here I should say your wife has more of an obligation to remain on the farm with you than you have to pull up stakes and follow her to town. After all, she married you knowing that you are a farmer, dedicated to a farmer's way of living. If she insists on ignoring her obligation, let her go—without reproach and without self-pity. M. H.

Girl Wants Home.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am writing on behalf of a young girl who has just come to Washington from the mountains of Virginia. We have helped her find a place in the marking room of a local department store at $10 a week, and now she has asked us to help her find room and board. I do not know where to turn, as I am unfamiliar with rooming places.

* * * *

I think she should be in a nice private place where she could do some of her washing and ironing, as she cannot afford to have it done, and also where she would have her meals, as she undoubtedly does not know how to budget so as to buy proper food, as she has never earned money before. I do not think she could afford to pay more than $6 a week. Do you know of a place, perhaps sharing a room with a daughter or other roomer? Please advise at once, as she must have a place soon. Sincerely, MRS. L. A. S.

* * * *

DEAR MRS. L. A. S.: Mrs. Eldred Dickinson, in charge of Y. W. C. A. room registry, with whom I talked about your plea, says she has already directed you to the Travelers' Aid, believing this to be a charity case. Mrs. Dickinson holds that no girl can support herself entirely on a wage of $10 a week in Washington, since meals alone are budgeted here at about $1 a day per person. However, Mrs. Dickinson is willing to see the case through to some satisfactory conclusion, and if you care to contact her again, she will take up the matter further with her general secretary.

The only alternative suggestion I have is this: Perhaps the girl can find a place in some small family as mother's helper, staying with the children in the evening while the parents go out, in return for a reduced rate on room, board and laundry privileges. She might advertise for such a place, or if any readers wish to make her such a proposition, they may do so through this column. Mail will be forwarded to you. M. H.

Improve Your Personality

Sally's always in the forefront, of course. Has all the friends and beaux. It's been that way from childhood.

Sally is 2 years older and a bit larger. So Eleanor, as a child, wore Sally's last year's clothes. Even graduated from high school in Sally's graduation dress, made over! Nobody but Eleanor knows what a permanent scar that white organdie, unbecomingly remodeled, left on her mind.

Sally learned to read first, to dance first, to sew and make fudge first. Eleanor gradually quit trying, grew silent, timid.

But Eleanor has grit. She's making a plan. Going to visit Aunt Anna this winter in Danbury, 50 miles away. With no gay Sally to compete with, she's going to bring out her retiring personality. She finds it easier to talk to strangers than the home crowd. Among strangers she's going to learn to talk well. Break out with a different style of dress than she has always worn. Get acquainted with boys who don't think of her as "Jenny Wren."

Snack Chapeau Favored as Hat For Cocktails

More Formal and Dressy Than Street Hat and Yet Also Informal.

By Ethel Ehlen.

The Post Fashion Editor.

An invitation to cocktails almost invariably poses the feminine question, "What kind of a hat shall I wear?" Especially is this so if the cocktail guest intends to go on to dinner and the theater.

This season the question is ideally answered in the new "snack" chapeau. This hat is a bit more formal and ornamental than the conventional street hat and yet it is in keeping with informal and semi-formal ensembles.

Fastidious women will be delighted with the wealth of designs from which to make a choice of such hats this fall. Hats in this classification are not only decidedly feminine in their styling, but possess a maximum of romance and allure in their make-up. If one is ingenious, she can choose such a hat as the focal point of interest, and the basis for assembling the entire costume. And hats, as you know, can easily make or break even the most pretentious of wardrobes!

Never So Popular.

Lace was never so popular, both as a decorative motif and the medium for an entire frock or dinner suit. In the hands of clever designers, it not only gives an extremely desirable feminine touch, but is so fashioned this season that it creates an air of sophistication and subtle coquetry. "Snack" or cocktail hats in almost every instance, boast of a bit of lace artistically and smartly placed, or a veil which is the epitome of swank and chic. Veils never have lost their power of intrigue—the face behind a smart veil always interests, and usually charms, the onlooker.

The newest veils not only accentuate this quality, but in the majority of cases are the only decorative note on a smart hat. In fact, it is usually the veil that is noticed first in its latest interpretation, it is so adroitly handled by the designers. Veils for fall are designed with the hats, not an afterthought, hung or tacked on; they are as much a part of the hat as the material which goes into its styling. There are virtually as many veil materials and patterns this season as there are accepted hat materials.

Veil Lengths Vary.

Veils are long, medium and short. Sometimes they come down over the nose and serve their original purpose of veiling the eyes. Sometimes they merely veil the forehead and act as a trimming; often they are planned to give height to a hat. An exotic treatment of the veil is the one which completely envelops the sailor-type hat and extends around the neck and over the shoulders, taking the place of a fur neckpiece while the weather is still warm. A veil is more than just a veil this season—it gives character to the hat!

The trend toward femininity has brought the fur scarf back into the fashion picture. To double-check your smart ensemble and complement the lace or veil-trimmed "snack" hat, stylists suggest mink and sable, or if your purse does not permit such extravagances, baum marten comes to the rescue. In the long-haired furs, the foxes lead in fashion's favor—silver, red and cross fox scarfs of one or half a dozen skins; also, fox dyed to match the color scheme of the ensemble. It is to be a fall and winter season of luxurious accents!

Tales of Elves and Ogres Modernized for Children

Simple Animal Narratives Are Found to Be of Greater Interest.

By Hope Ridings Miller.

THE MODERN WORLD OF "make believe" is very different from the "make believe" of the past. Tales of elves and ogres and fabulous animals have given place to stories of familiar animals and of boys and girls very much like the youngsters who sit, open-mouthed, listening as adventures are unfolded before them.

That, anyway, is the opinion of Eva Knox Evans, author of books for children, whose "Jerome Anthony" is the Literary Guild August selection for its 6, 7 and 8-year-old members.

Mrs. Evans' experience as a kindergarten teacher has convinced her that younger children are much more entertained by stories into which they can project themselves than by those that have no connection with their own lives. "There may be—should be, in fact—a surprise element in each narrative, but it must not be too far-fetched, nor deal too much in the supernatural," she said yesterday in her apartment at 1016 Sixteenth street.

Zoo Trip Proves Point.

She explained, however, that "tales of talking animals usually entertain the pre-school child, provided the narratives are built around dogs, rabbits, cows or chickens. But if elephants, giraffs or bears are brought in, attention of the listeners often wander because they have seen so few."

Mrs. Evans' theory that smaller boys and girls are more interested in hearing about animals with which they are familiar was borne out by a trip to the zoo when her pupils accompanied her. A few days before, she had been telling them some stories in which rabbits played the leading roles. Forgetting that for the time being, however, she took the children first to see the elephants, bears and tigers. "They watched these animals in awe but were never loathe to leave them," she said. "But when we came to the rabbits, the children squealed with delight, as if they were seeing old friends. They could have stood there watching them for hours! Later, they made far more comments about them than about any of the other animals."

So long as Virginia-born Mrs. Evans can remember, she wanted to teach kindergarten. She realized her ambition and was for five years in charge of 20 colored pupils in a kindergarten in Atlanta. Each day, after lunch, she and the children would sit on the floor or lawn while she told or read stories to them. "I would read about a frog that hopped all over the place, or a train that carried toys or a cat that could take itself apart; but I soon discovered none of these entertained my children so much as adventures about little colored boys and girls about their own age."

Searching for stories of this type she learned there were none portraying colored children as they really are. "Most of the ones I found presented them as caricatures who talked in dialect and were altogether unconvincing. I knew my pupils who didn't talk dialect would not enjoy hearing stories told in it.

Guide to Campus Wardrobe Compiled in College Survey

Study Designed to Avert Tragedy of 'Wrong' Attire and Advise Parents on Clothing Needs of Daughters.

WHAT does the college girl need for her fall wardrobe? While answers to this question may vary, depending on the school to be attended, yet the average girl will find a recent study made by the University of Maryland a good, general guide. This study was designed to hit a major campus tragedy—that of being a freshman girl with the "wrong" clothes. "It was also aimed to give parents with average purses an idea of the clothes needs of their daughters. Students in the textile class made the survey by means of case studies of their fellow students' wardrobes.

Conclusions Listed.

In planning a college wardrobe, decide on one becoming color scheme and build around it. As the winter coat is the most expensive article or apparel, it usually furnishes the basic color design. If the coat is dark, bright shades in accessories are effective.

The fur coat—one should last four years—is preferred by many girls, as it will serve for sports, dress and evening wear. If a dress coat is preferred, an extra coat for sports and also one for evening are necessary. Some girls wear suede jackets until cold weather.

Foundation Garment.

The two—or three-piece suit is the foundation of the early fall wardrobe. With it the girl may wear a sweater to outdoor functions, a sport blouse to classes or a semi-dressy blouse for more formal events. The long coat also may be worn over dresses.

Sweaters and skirts are best for classroom. Two skirts and three sweaters give opportunity for many changes.

A wool dress or a knitted suit may be worn to classes or football games.

Two silk dresses (one probably a left-over) will fill the needs for afternoon receptions, dinner engagements and informal dances. One or two jacket evening dresses meet the needs of formal social events.

Four Pairs of Shoes.

For shoes, one pair of flat heels for the campus, one pair Cuban heels for games, town and classes, one pair dress shoes for silk dresses and a pair of evening slippers for dancing should suffice.

Accessory needs include two hats, one sports and one dressy, two pairs of gloves, woolen and kid, three handbags, one for school, one for best and one for evening.

For studying, a flannel robe, pajamas and bedroom slippers are essential. Four sets of underwear are needed, also a girdle, three slips, a dance set and an evening slip. Six pairs of semi-sheer hose should be sufficient, with chiffon stockings for dress if desired.

LEMON CHIFFON PIE.

1 tablespoon gelatin
¼ cup cold water
½ cup sugar
½ cup lemon juice
½ teaspoon salt
4 beaten egg yolks
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
4 egg whites
½ cup sugar
1 cup heavy cream

Soak gelatin in cold water. When it has softened, add it and the grated lemon rind to a custard which has been made in a double boiler of the sugar, lemon juice, salt and egg yolks. Cool the custard. Then whip egg whites until stiff and gradually add the second amount of sugar listed. In a separate bowl, beat until stiff 1 cup of heavy cream. When the custard begins to thicken, beat it with a wire wisk until it is fluffy. Fold in the egg whites. Fold in the cream. Turn mixture into pie shell. Chill the pie thoroughly before serving.

The cream may be reserved for the top of the pie. In that case, add to it 1 teaspoon vanilla and 3 tablespoons powdered sugar.

Eight Points Given By London Stylist For Looking Trim

An eight-point plan for looking smart has been devised by Victor Stibel, young London dress designer, who creates costumes for Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks. Here is his design for chic as reported by the United Press:

Don't mix materials. You are likely to kill both of them.

Make-up and hairdressing are more important than clothes. Study your personality.

Today's HEALTH TALK

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

Diet in Heart Failure.

While diet is not a cure-all, it constitutes nevertheless a factor of real importance in many disease conditions. For example, we know how essential certain elements are and we realize that the body can be placed in a deplorably weakened state if specific foods are lacking. Deprive it of vitamin A for a relatively short time and symptoms will appear.

In heart trouble, while foods are not in themselves curative, yet the wrong kinds may be given and in amounts that are too large. In the event of heart failure, with the patient struggling for breath, with the liver considerably enlarged and physical weakness dominating the picture, there is a manifest desire to supply nourishing food. Members of the family will feel that everything should be done to "build up" the sufferer; that he should be fed generously to help him gain strength. The fact is that exactly the opposite procedure should be adopted. The best plan is either bold starvation for a day or two or a very simple diet (that of Karell), consisting of 6 ounces of skimmed milk at 8 a. m., noon, 4 p. m. and 8 p. m.

That distinguished heart expert, the late Sir James Mackenzie, warned all of his patients that injudicious feeding may be harmful. The reason, of course, is clear. Blood is required for the digestion of food, and whenever the heart muscle is not functioning up to par the circulation of the intestinal tract is interfered with. Furthermore, less oxygen reaches the tissues and it is merely common sense to place no greater load upon the digestive process (which demands blood) than is absolutely necessary.

There is no danger that the patient will weaken unduly under this regime. Entirely deprived of food, the body can carry on for a week or more without damage. It is perfectly allowable to lose 10 per cent of the body weight within from two to four weeks whenever the output of the heart is subnormal. A desirable situation frequently ensues, namely, the pulse rate is slowed and the blood pressure lowered.

A recent series of observations made by S. H. Proger and others showed that absolute rest coupled with a greatly reduced dietary was followed by excellent results. The total daily allowance at the beginning of treatment was approximately one-fourth of the normal requirement and was made up of skimmed milk, one moderate helping of lean meat, cottage cheese, whole wheat bread, two vegetables and fruit. As soon as improvement was noted the diet was increased gradually to approximately two-thirds of the active body needs.

Phone Cuts Will Benefit 118,019 Here

$251,800 Reductions to Become Effective on September Bills.

By James D. Secrest.

About 118,019 telephone subscribers will benefit from rate reductions aggregating $251,800 announced yesterday by Richmond B. Keech, acting chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, following negotiations with officials of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co.

The reductions, which affect practically all classes of ordinary residential and commercial service, are based on conditions set forth in a District Supreme Court decision two years ago. They becom effective on the September bills.

An entirely new residential service is provided in the new schedule. It offers a two-party flat rate of $3.50 a month. This means that the subscriber will have the advantage of unlimited calls, just as the person who pays $4.20, but will be inconvenienced at times, perhaps, by a second party using the same line.

To Save $49,200.

Up to this time the unlimited service was available only on individual lines and at $4.20. This price was cut 10 cents, and it is expected to save 40,974 subscribers $49,200 in their bills for the next 12 months.

Users of the two-party message service will continue to pay $2.25, but they will be allowed 45 calls instead of 40 and will pay 4 cents each for additional calls instead of 4½, as heretofore. This is expected to save 35,053 subscribers $50,000.

The charge on individual message telephones for residences was cut from $3.60 to $3.25 for 50 calls. This will save $10,500 for 2,481 subscribers.

Keech said residential subscribers would absorb 54 per cent of the total reductions, compared with 46 per cent for commercial users.

Within the business service category, the charge on individual message service for 50 calls was cut from $3.60 to $3.50, effecting a saving of $11,200 for 9,330 subscribers.

For the next class of business service, 110, instead of 100, calls will be allowed for $5.50 a month, and the 5-cent price will govern only the first 40 additional calls, instead of 50, as heretofore. The remainder of the schedule was unchanged. Thus the price of each call between 150 and 200 within this class is 4 cents, and above 200, 3 cents. This reduction is estimated to save $66,400 for 3,952 subscribers.

Miscellaneous decreases in service charges account for the remainder of the savings to consumers. They are.

The price on the "French" telephone set was cut from a flat $2.50 to $1.50 or, if paid for at 15 cents a month, the payments will extend over a year instead of 18 months. This will save 17,251 persons $11,800.

Terminal Charge Reduced.

The charge for additional switchboard trunks and toll terminals was reduced from $2 to $1.75, saving $22,600 for 1,700 subscribers. The price for government inter-departmental messages was cut from 1½ to 1 cent, saving 78 branches of the Government $9,800. The service connection charge, where instrumentalities are in place, was decreased from $1.25 to $1, with an estimated saving of $1,800 to an average of 7,200 subscribers.

The $251,800 applied to rate reductions represents profits in excess of 6 per cent on the rate base fixed by the commission and approved by the District Supreme Court two years ago, plus additions and betterments.

It does not represent the complete excess profits of the company, however, as $111,824 in wage increases was ordered by the utility as of August 1. This restored practically all employes, outside executive positions, to six-day week pay while continuing the 5-day week.

Moreover, the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. had to pay unemployment taxes of $48,428, and anticipates pension taxes of $44,025, both items being new operating costs this year.

Less Than 1935 Slash.

The $251,800 reduction agreed to by the commission, and the company is less than the $300,165 effected in 1935 in piecemeal fashion but is about $87,000 more than the $164,000 slash ordered last September.

The largest telephone rate reduction made in recent years was the approximate $500,000 slash ordered by the commission in 1932. This led to prolonged litigation and the impounding of slightly more than $1,000,000 by the company over a period of two years. After the District Supreme Court sustained the commission's findings, the impounded fund was paid to all subscribers that could be located.

This year's reductions were brought about in marked contrast with the previous litigation. The company accepted the commission's finding that $250,000 had been earned in excess of the 6 per cent allowable and then bettered it $1,800 in its proposed schedule.

Thus, for the second time within a month, the commission has effected rate reductions without resort to litigation, the other instance being the slash in rates of the Washington Gas Light Co.

Georgians Invited.

All Georgians dwelling in or near Washington are invited to attend a meeting tonight at 6:30 p. m. in Room 31, Loew's Building, 1110 F street northwest. The meeting, sponsored by the Georgia Democratic Club, will be given over to a discussion of the Georgia and national political situation.

Hazen to Cite U. S. Agencies' Upkeep by City

Fiscal Experts to Be Asked to Shift Burden to Federal Budget.

The Federal-District fiscal relations committee will be urged to take into account the costs to District taxpayers of maintaining Federal agencies or to recommend that they be shifted to Federal budgets, Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen said yesterday.

Commenting on reports that the $470,000 budget of the Court of Appeals and the District Supreme Court might be transferred to the Justice Department, Hazen said:

"Why should the District pay for the upkeep of many other Federal agencies?"

He mentioned the National Capital Parks office, the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, the Zoo and the maintenance of Federal prisoners at the District Reformatory.

Hazen said it made no difference whether these budget costs were taken off the District government or whether the Federal Government made allowances for them in the United States lump-sum payment.

The total cost of these agencies, including the courts, is approximately $2,000,000.

J. L. Jacobs, Chicago tax expert named by President Roosevelt to make the fiscal relations study, has not called upon the Commissioners since announcement of his appointment last Saturday, but he had made a call previously.

Any saving the Commissioners can effect in the operating costs of the District government are important, Hazen pointed out, in view of the mounting expenses and anticipated deficit of nearly $1,000,000 at the end of the current fiscal year.

Co-Ops Are Called Step to Socialism

The rise of the co-operative movement in America was described as a direct step to socialism by George A. Nelson, Socialist candidate for Vice President, at a meeting of the Washington Socialist Party last night in Wesley Hall, 1703 K street northwest.

More than 100 persons heard Nelson assert that census figures list less than half of the people actually unemployed in the United States. He explained this discrepancy by stating that those who live on farms are never counted as unemployed.

Nelson emphasized the necessity for production for use rather than profit, and stated that many Midwestern farmers had refused "Government bribes" in the form of AAA checks to destroy their crops. He referred to Democrats and Republicans as the two wings of the "capitalist party," and stated there was nothing to choose between them. A Wisconsin "dirt" farmer himself, Nelson said the Socialist movement was making considerable progress among American farmers.

Nelson speaks tomorrow afternoon to strikers at the Kelly-Springfield rubber plant in Cumberland, Md., and tomorrow night he will address a mass meeting in the Baltimore City Hall. He was introduced last night by John Herling, publicity director for the Socialist campaign, who presided.

Woman Hurt Badly When Hit by Auto

Struck by an automobile as she attempted to cross the street at Wisconsin avenue and Woodley road northwest yesterday, Mrs. Julia Wilson, 40, of the Highland Apartments, Connecticut avenue and California street northwest, was reported in a serious condition at Mount Alto Hospital last night.

The injured woman was taken to the hospital in a taxi. Physicians said she suffered a fractured leg, possible internal injuries and lacerations. Witnesses said Mrs. Wilson was struck as she stepped from the curb and thrown several feet in the air.

Harold H. Polk, 25, of the Ontario Apartments, said to have been driving the automobile, was taken to the Eighth Police Precinct Station, but later released pending the outcome of Mrs. Wilson's injuries.

1,500 Cheer, Parade and Compete as Anacostia Celebrates Its First Annual Field Day at Park

Fifteen hundred residents of the Southeast section gathered yesterday in Anacostia Park to celebrate, both as participants and observers, the first annual Greater Anacostia Field Day, planned by business men and citizens' associations in that part of the city.

For 12 hours, beginning at 10:30 a. m., a series of events which ranged from a baby contest to a gala street parade and dance, kept the spectators entertained.

In the afternoon the crowd was made up mostly of women, boys and girls. But men by the hundreds joined them as soon as their work was finished, and by the time the street parade began at 7:30 p. m. every foot of the line of march was packed with spectators.

Floats Show History.

Elaborate floats, representing the history of Anacostia as far back as 300 years, followed decorated cars bearing District dignitaries, an escort of horsemen and blaring bands.

Capt. F. M. Dent, grand marshal, led the brilliant spectacle along S street to Sixteenth street southeast, thence to W street, Nichols avenue, and on to the reviewing stand at Good Hope road and Minnesota avenue.

Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen, officers of Southeast citizens' associations, the Anacostia Lions Club and Business Men's Association, the District of Columbia Fire Department Band, St. Theresa Drum Corps, Boy Scouts, the Elks Band, and "Old Tom," only surviving veteran of horse-drawn fire apparatus, were in the line of march.

On the float depicting the earliest days of Anacostia was Miss Ira Belle Culbertson McAbee, of Laurens, S. C., representing Princess Patowomeke. Not far behind was the Congress Heights float with Miss Evelyn Murphy, astride a pony, representing Miss Congress Heights.

Judges of the parade were William Maio, president of the Southeast Council Citizens Association; A. J. Driscoll, president of the Mid-City Citizens Association; Inspector L. I. Edwards, assistant superintendent of the Metropolitan Police, and J. Frank Campbell, president of the Anacostia Bank.

After the last bedecked car had rolled by, the spectators surged into the street near the reviewing stand for two hours of dancing.

A float, "King Cotton," owned by Ed Simondson, won first prize for the best float. The other prizes were awarded in this order:

Anacostia Motor Company, Mandel Chevrolet Company, a float by E. J. Reed, and one by the Chestnut Farms Diary.

The machine of Captain F. M. Dent was given fist prize for the best-decorated passenger car. The automobile of the Summit Parks Citizens Association won second; the Anacostia Lions Club, third.

Aside from the evening features—the parade and dance—the baby show drew the largest crowd. Long before 2 p. m., the time it was scheduled to begin, hundreds of persons were jammed along the ropes where the youngsters were to be paraded and where, earlier in the day, races had been run.

Approximately 70 children, none older than 5 years, were entered in the contest. Mothers, grandmothers, older brothers and sisters, and sometimes a father, led or wheeled or hauled the babies up and down in front of the cheering spectators and the judges.

Wore Bunny Costume.

Entries were judged on their costume, their personal appearance and the conveyance in which they traveled. First prize, a loving cup, went to 3-year-old Sue Ann Wiley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Wiley of 2217 Thirty-second street southeast. Sitting in a cart representing an Easter egg, she was dressed in a bunny costume and nibbled on a carrot.

Joan Dolores Smith, 5-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George P. Smith, 1715 Seventeenth street southeast, won second place. She wore a grass skirt, a lei, and anklets, and basked in the shade of a miniature palm tree.

Three-year-old Maxine Benhoff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Benhoff, 1345 Valley place southeast, with her white aviator's suit and her airplane float, was third.

Honorable mentions were given to 8-month-old Richard Forsyth, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Forsyth, of 1534 Twenty-fifth street southeast; Robert Helm, 8 months, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alton H. Helm, of 1716 Sixteenth street southeast, Buddy Kuzma, son of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Kuzma, 2924 Nichols avenue, and Joan Seyfried, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar J. Seyfried, 1440 W street southeast.

In the formal sports events, run off as the first feature of the field day, Charles Davis, 19, of 1347 Ives street southeast, was judged the outstanding athlete.

Winners of the various events were: 50-yard dash, 90-pound class, Richard Faircloth; second, Parker Scott; third, Peter Hicks.

Loving Cups to Winners.

A loving cup was presented to the winner of each event. Second and third places were gold and silver medals.

Novelty field events for boys and girls and a soft-ball game between teams from the Citizens Associations of Randle Highlands and Anacostia completed the sports program.

The Randle Highlands team, composed of Kiser, Tamin, Plur, Barber, Heil, Daily, Plur, Lipz, Brosman and Suggart, won. The score was 13 to 2. The Anacostia line-up was Williams, Marshall, Scheel, Gantham, Edwards, Padget, Herndon, Edwards, C. Scheel and B. Scheel.

Robert Bransom and James Coon won the three-legged race, and Rex Howard and Peter Hicks were victors in the turkey fight. Deborah Straitberger and Louise Young received a prize for their fast threading of a needle in an obstacle race. Edithe Abellera won the potato race. Jeannette Lohoeser came in first in the shoe race, and the team of James Hunter and Robert Hicks won the wheelbarrow race.

Citizens associations which took part in yesterday's celebration, in addition to those from Randle Highlands and Anacostia, were those from Congress Heights, Hillcrest, Washington Highlands and East Washington.

H. E. Simensen was general chairman of the field day. Among his committee chairmen were Dr. George Havenner, host committee; George Tizard, baby show, and William T. Jobe, athletic events.

12,000 Frolic At Transit Co.'s Annual Outing

Although John H. Hanna, president of the company, was unable to attend, a telegram from him was read by Joe Dierken, who announced athletic events and their results during the afternoon.

Among the contests, the "balloon-busting-free-for-all"—for men only—seemed to hold the spotlight. Bob Lawhorn won the contest.

Next in interest was the ladies' long-stepping contest, won by Mrs. Blanche Oliver.

A ginger ale drinking contest was won by Milton Gallagher, with C. I. Smith running a close second.

Mrs. Lena Crawford won first place in a contest of dropping clothes pins into a milk bottle. Second was Viola Vincent. Arthur Clark easily earned $5 by turning in the best guess on the number of nails in a jar, while the other outstanding contest—a waltz—was won by Mr. and Mrs. C. I. Smith.

Attendants were welcomed by Edward D. Merrill, vice president.

Playgrounds Estimate Put At $278,000

Sum Sought by Miss Baker Is 36% Rise Over '37 Funds.

The Works Progress Administration was attacked yesterday by Miss Sibyl Baker, director of playgrounds, in her submission of estimates of $278,000 for the 1938 fiscal year. The sum is 36 per cent more than current appropriations.

While admitting WPA improvement of playgrounds met an emergency need, Miss Baker added:

"But these programs are inevitably uncertain, the work poor in quality, the workers unable to carry full responsibility. In actual fact, the WPA and the National Youth Administration programs make such heavy demands upon the supervisory staff of the department that at times all their energy seems to be deflected from the regular program to solve the problems of the WPA workers."

Miss Baker proposed to operate eight additional school playgrounds for a period of eight months of the year, bringing the total to 20, between March 15 and November 15. Eight more would be kept open from May 1 to November 15, or six months, and 30 during July and August. At present only 12 are open eight months and 46 additional during July and August.

Eleven new employes and $40,000 for improvement of playgrounds were requested by Miss Baker, who pointed out that despite the WPA work "there are still 20 municipal grounds on which physical improvements are needed to make them fully effective as play centers.

Justifying the request for additional money, Miss Baker said:

"This department has not been permitted for five years the growth which is normal for a bureau serving the children of the city with a program of activities recognized as essential in a modern municipality.

"Since 1931 the annual appropriation of the department has been less than allowed for that fiscal year."

Other estimates released yesterday by the District Commissioners are for the Zoo, the minor courts, and the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board.

Dr. William M. Mann, director of the Zoo, asked $263,00 or $38,700 more than available for this year. The increase would provide an additional policeman another headkeeper, four more keepers, and three laborers. He also asked a police car to assist in the control of traffic.

The Juvenile Court asked $87,790, an increase of $17,280, to hire three additional probation officers, five more clerks, and another janitor.

Police Court estimates include the $500,000 authorized in the 1937 act to complete the small building to be erected in Judiciary Square. Altogether, $632,150 is asked, as against, $1,130,650 appropriated for the current year, the latter including $1,000,000 for the courts building. The Municipal Court requested $87,450, as against $86,420 for this year.

Indians Defeat Nats, 10 to 9, in 10th to End Winning Streak

Heavy Hitting Of Chapman Is Futile

By Shirley Povich.

Sports Editor of The Post.

The obviously fatal results of going down three times and coming up twice put an end to the Nats' four-game winning streak yesterday in a rip-snorting ball game that the Indians snatched in the tenth inning.

At 2-2, at 7-7 and at 9-9 the ball game was tied at various points before Monte Weaver, exhibiting no more control than a runaway pinwheel, presented the contest to the Indians for keeps by a 10-9 score.

It was neither the heat nor the humidity that beat the Nats. It was their own stupidity in the waning innings, combined with Hal Trosky's story-book home run that tied the score in the ninth which sent the Nats down to defeat.

Indians Tie Score.

Trailing 9-7 as they entered the ninth with Buck Newsom having relieved the fading Earl Whitehill during the strain of the eighth inning, the Indians tied the score before the inning's third hitter faced Newsom. Buddy Lewis muffed Earl Averill's twisting grounder for an error and Trosky banged a Newsom pitch over the rightfield fence pronto.

Manager Bucky Harris intrusted Weaver with the Nats' hopes in the tenth and it was a poor choice. He inspired the Indians' winning rally by walking Knickerbocker, the first man to face him, and then was presented with a grand chance to hold the Tribe scoreless when Allen popped an attempted sacrifice bunt into his hands. But with Knickerbocker 30 feet off first base, Weaver for some unaccountable reason refused to throw the ball to first for a double play until too late.

Cohen Goes In.

Thus reprieved, the Indians proceeded to win the ball game. Hughes drew a walk from Weaver and Hale hit into a force play at third, whereupon Manager Harris inserted the left-handed Syd Cohen to pitch to the left-handed Earl Averill and the ball game vanished on the wings of Averill's single to center.

Against Johnny Allen, the fourth pitcher the Indians had found necessary to use, the Nats stirred a mess of false hopes in the tenth. With one out, Johnny Stone doubled to left to put the tying run on base and for no reason whatsoever attempted to steal third with Carl Reynolds at bat. Reynolds missed the third strike, Stone was caught stealing on the same pitch and the ball game was over.

Ben Chapman had been keeping the Nats in the ball game from the outset with his four straight hits. He lashed an inside-the-park home run to rightfield in the third inning, with Whitehill on base to tie the score at 2-2, and drove in four of the Nats' first five runs.

Rookie Hurler Star, Macks Top Chisox

Score Is 5-2; 18-Year-Old Gumbert Allows But Two Safe Hits.

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, Aug. 27.—Randall Gumpert, 18-year-old right-hander and recent high school graduate of Birdsboro, Pa., held the Chicago White Sox to two hits in his second big league start today as he pitched the Athletics to a 5-to-2 victory.

Gumpert, a slender 6-footer, allowed only one hit, a single by Appling in the second inning, up to the ninth. Then a single by Radcliff, a pass to Rosenthal and a wild throw by Newsome gave the Sox two unearned runs.

The Mackmen pounded Bill Dietrich, a former team-mate, for four runs in the first four innings, doubles by Dean and Johnson in the third providing the winning run.

Robert Beats Managoff In Bout and Thereafter

Yvon Robert, who ordinarily wrestles in strict accordance with the Book of Better Behavior for Behemoths, threw the book away last night—then threw a series of flying tackles which downed Ivan Managoff in 28 minutes of the feature burping bout at Griffith Stadium.

Irvan was so ired by the whole business that, what do you suppose he did? He rose in mighty wrath before more than 3,500 customers and sought revenge—not against the big, burly Robert, but against poor little Benny (Bubble) Bortnick, the globular referee.

The gallant Yvon quickly came to the assistance of the pear-shaped arbiter and grabbed and subdued Managoff while the spectators worked themselves into a state that might be described as frenzied, or even agog.

Managoff was the first to cast aside the courtesies of the mat. Quickly exhausting his legitimate wrestling knowledge in two holds, he proceeded to become very, very rough, mean and, one might say, even nasty, or nahsty, depending upon whether one is a $1.65 customer or a 55-cent customer.

Robert endured in stoic silence for a bit, but his patience suddenly snapped and he cast aside his traditional French-Canadian courtesy and started giving as good as he was taking. From that point, the bout became a thing of beauty and a joy to behold.

Joe Cox and Rudy Dusek labored 30 minutes to a draw in the roughest match of the evening. Dusek surprised everyone, probably including himself, by wrestling very cleanly for 15 minutes as Cox did everything he could think of. Then Rudy opened up, just as had Robert, but he started too late.

In other bouts scheduled for 30 minutes, Ole Anderson forced Jim Coffield to resign in a full nelson in 25½ minutes, Hank Barber drew with Cliff Olson and Henri Piers flopped Doug Wykoff in 17 minutes.

Cubs Take Fifth As Henshaw Wins, 1-0

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—Wee Roy Henshaw, called in from bull-pen exile, pitched the Cubs to their fifth straight win today, limiting the Phillies to six hits for a 1-to-0 victory.

It was Henshaw's first pitching triumph since July 2, and pulled the Cubs to within three games of the National League pace set by the idle Giants.

The Cubs got to Syl Johnson for the game's only run in the fifth inning. Billy Herman led off with his forty-ninth two-bagger of the year, was sacrificed to third by Frank Demaree, and came home on Stan Hack's long fly to centerfield.

Johnson was charged with the defeat, although giving way in the eighth to the former Cub, Fabian Kowalik.

Although he held the Cubs scoreless in all but the fifth, Johnson was in hot water most of the way, particularly in the third, when the Cubs banged out three straight hits with no outs, only to have the next three batters pop up in order. In the fourth, Hartnett and Jurges led off with singles, but again the threat was killed.

Broaca Razes Browns, 7-1, For Yanks

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 27.—Johnny Broaca mowed the St. Louis Browns down with three hits today, turning in his best pitching performance of the year as he led the Yankees to a 7 to 1 victory.

The game was the Brownies' final appearance of the year in Yankee Stadium, and gave the Yanks a 7-to-4 edge in the season's home series with the Hornsbymen.

The only St. Louis run was Rollie Hemsley's homer in the eighth.

Bees Win, 1-0; Cards Drop 5th in Row

Parmelee Pitches 7 Hitless Frames, but Loses Duel With MacFayden.

By the Associated Press.

St. Louis, Aug. 27.—Leroy (Tarzan) Parmelee, Cardinal hurler, was near fame today but after pitching seven hitless innings against the Bees weakened and Boston won in the tenth, 1 to 0.

It was a pitchers' battle from the first inning, with the veteran, bespectacled Danny MacFayden, of the Bees, allowing only four safeties, no more than one in any inning, and Parmalee, last year with the Giants, only three.

The defeat—the fifth straight for the Cards and Boston's fourth victory in a row for a sweep of the series—placed the men of Frankie Frisch three games back of the idle first-place Giants and in a second-place tie with the Chicago Cubs, who won from the Phillies for their fifth consecutive victory.

Al Lopez singled in the eighth to break the spell the rugged Parmelee seemed to hold over the Bees. But it was Joe Coscarart's tenth-inning triple, scoring Tony Cuccinello from second that provided the winning margin. Lopez never got farther than first base.

Cucninello singled through Durocher at short to start the tenth. Hal Lee sacrificed him to second. Then Coscarart walloped a blow to centerfield which bounded past Chick Fullis, who had just gone in to replace Lynn King who gave way for Pinch-Hitting Rip Collins in the ninth, Cuccinello sped across the plate and Coscarart pulled up at third.

The squeeze play was tried to get Coscarart home but failed. The Cardinals then went down in order and the jubilant Bees, having risen to fifth place by the victory, rushed for the clubhouse.

DeShong Will Face White Sox Today

Griffith Stadium will be the scene of the hand-to-hand battling for fourth place today and tomorrow when the Nats and the White Sox clash.

Potshots at AAU Are Promised

By Alan Gould.

Associated Press Sports Editor.

Aboard S. S. President Roosevelt, en route New York, Aug. 27.—The returning Olympic forces, although lacking most of the official as well as the athletic big guns, likely will fire a few potshots that'll make the homefolks sit up and take notice upon their arrival in New York tomorrow night.

It has not yet been determined just what will be the consequences of the finest family row stirred up during any Olympic trip since the pre-war trips to Europe. It already has been determined, however, that there'll be (1) repercussions of such specific items as the Eleanor Holm Jarrett case and the omission of two Jewish sprinters from the relay team, and (2), that there is a renewed struggle for Olympic organization control brewing, with the college leaders threatening to challenge A. A. U. domination.

Eventually a compromise may forestall a showdown such as developed ten years ago at Washington. Meanwhile outspoken critics include Alfred Masters, Stanford graduate manager who served as assistant track and field manager at the Olympics.

"When mistakes in management and handling of athletes are repeated with such persistence as was manifested this trip, the time has arrived to face the facts and reorganize," Masters said. "I have many friends among the Olympic leaders and do not question their integrity, but have frankly told them I question their judgment on several important points. In the first place there are too many managers and officials having something to say. Secondly, there was a lack of direct contact between the ranking authorities, who established themselves in the most comfortable hotels, and the athletes, who were miles away in the Olympic village.

"Furthermore, the handling of the athletes simply bred discontent. For example, there was the dollar weekly for laundry joke. Instead of excessive barnstorming after the games, which wear the boys ragged, the committee should arrange a few good times with entertainment, which would send them all home happier.

"The official anxiety to get the percentage of profits wherever possible was short-sighted and only leads to such incidents as Jesse Owens' abrupt return home. I personally think Owens did the right thing."

The biggest blast otherwise is emanating from the boxing leaders. It does not concern the internal federation. Despite reluctance to alibi their failure to bring home a single title, Roy Davis, of Chicago, team manager, hinted "collusion" contributed to the Americans' setbacks.

"If boxing officiating has been as efficiently and completely controlled by the sponsoring nations as in the case of track and field, the

By the United Press.

Chestnut Hill, Mass., Aug. 27.—Helen Jacobs, of Berkeley, Calif., and Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan, of Boston, moved to within a step of their third successive Women's National Doubles tennis championship today by defeating pretty Kay Stammers, of England, and Alice Marble, of California, 6—2, 21—19, in what was believed the longest match in the history of the tournament.

The four women semifinalists, vanquished as well as victors, then took the courts again with male partners to win third-round matches in the National Mixed Doubles championship.

Mrs. Fabyan, heroine of the Fabyan-Jacobs triumph, teamed with Don Budge, of Oakland, Calif., to defeat Mrs. Virginia Rice Johnson, of Boston, and Wayne Sabin, of Los Angeles, 6—3, 6—3. Miss Jacobs and Wilmer Allison, of Austin, Tex., defending champions, defeated Gussie Raegener, of Berkeley, Calif., and Lindley Tiers, of Cooperstown, N. Y., 6—1, 6—4.

Longest on Record.

Miss Marble and Gene Mako, of Los Angeles, defeated Jane Stanton, of Los Angeles and J. Gilbert Hall, of South Orange, N. J., 6—4, 4—6, 6—1. Miss Stammers and Gregory Mangin, of Newark, N. J., defeated Joanna and John Palfrey, of Boston, 6—3, 6—4.

The second set of the Jacobs-Fabyan vs. Stammers-Marble match—a set that took 1 hour 30 minutes to complete—was the longest ever recorded in a major tournament, and no official or old-timer at Longwood Cricket Club could recall a longer match in women's tennis.

Miss Stammers, England's No. 1 woman player, was the weak link in the early innings, and the champions seemed on their way to a quick rout after winning the opening set at 6—2 and taking a 3—1 lead in the second set at expense of the beauteous Britisher's weak service. But Kay, pet of the galleryites, suddenly hit her stride. With deftly placed southpaw volleys and smashes she helped Miss Marble crack Helen Jacobs' service in the sixth game of the second set to even the match.

Nip-and-Tuck Battle.

From then on it was a nip-and-tuck struggle, with Mrs. Fabyan shining in all departments in one of the best displays of court-coverage the Boston girl has ever shown.

A recapitulation showed that Mrs. Fabyan, in addition to the fact that she held her service all but two times through the battle, erred only about a dozen times. Miss Stammers dropped service games six times and Miss Marble and Miss Jacobs four each. The break came when the champions cracked the English girl's delivery in the thirty-ninth game of the second set, helped by three opponent errors.

Mrs. Fabyan served the fourth game and won, giving her and Miss Jacobs set and match.

Carolyn Babcock, of Los Angeles, and Mrs. John Van Ryn, of Philadelphia, second seeded American women, defeated Helen Pedersen, of Stamford, Conn., and Jane Stanton, of Los Angeles, 6—3, 6—3, in a quarter-final match, and meet Mme. Silvia Henrotin, of France, and Mrs. Dorothy Andrus, of New York, in the other semi-final tomorrow. The winners will meet Miss Jacobs and Mrs. Fabyan in the finals on Saturday.

In the men's semifinals tomorrow, Don Budge and Gene Mako, of California, meet Frank Parker and Gregory Mangin, of New Jersey. Wilmer Allison, of Austin, Tex., and John Van Ryn, of Philadelphia, defending champions, meet Bobby Riggs and Wayne Habin, of Los Angeles.

The Nats Should Cover This Game And Get Revenge

The very cream of the glittering athletic talent found in the sports departments of The Post and Star will meet an aggregation of imported roughnecks purporting to represent the Times, Herald and News in what may be a game of baseball at Griffith Stadium at 10 o'clock today.

Arch McDonald, radio sports commentator, will umpire the holocaust and has announced that so far as bribes are concerned he is absolutely untouchable. He added, furthermore, that either manager can reach him at Station WJSV.

A Mister Bob ("Taffy Arm") Considine is expected to hurl for the Untouchables. Mister Considine led his team last year in the annual fiasco, but was forced to retire after he used up four sets of outfielders. Mister Shirley Povich, who pitched for the Star-Post-Toasties, has been sent to Dahlonega, Ga., in exchange for a dozen copies of the Congressional Record.

As usual, the boys will be vying for the Buck Newsom Pie Plate Trophy, each year awarded to the squad which makes most errors. Diminutive Joe Holman will mascot for the ringers.

Nobody knows who won last year. Both teams have their stories.

It finally happened . . . at Suffolk Downs . . . the track owners there are being given a large headache by a woman bettor who is suing for a sizable sum . . . because Xandra, the horse on which she held a huge win ticket, ran second to Sky Lad, a horse that, after the pay-off, was found to have been doped . . . she seeks to recover the money Xandra would have returned had he won . . . and is charging the track people with the responsibility of keeping doped horses out of the races.

In his wrestling days, Joe Turner bided his time with his opponent until he deemed the moment ripe for a vigorous offensive . . . he listened to the heartbeat of his foes and when it started to pound rapidly, Turner knew he had his man for the taking . . . imported from Washington several years ago by a Greek community in North Carolina, which offered him $1,000 extra if he would beat a Greek heavyweight who was masquerading as a Turk, Turner was on the point of losing the bout . . . but, while almost flat on his back, he disengaged one arm, reached around, patted the "Turk" three times on the back, and the "Turk," thinking the referee had designated him as the winner, let Turner up . . . Turner then went on to win the bout.

The Washington ball club a few weeks ago was ready to announce the acquisition of Pitcher Danny MacFayden, of the Braves, on waivers . . . but, hard-pressed for pitchers the day before they were to send MacFayden to Washington, the Braves started him in a game and when MacFayden won it impressively, they called off the deal.

Billy McCarney, former partner of Joe Jacobs in the management of Max Schmeling, now finds himself managing a Greek heavyweight named Fanis Tzanetopoulos . . . and can do nothing about it inasmuch as the Greek is too proud to change his name . . . on the grounds that the Tzanetopoulos never change their names . . . the pennant-winning Yankees of 1921, '22 and '23 boasted names that were the headline writers' delight . . . all monosyllables . . . Peck, Pipp, Ruth, Ward, Jones, Hoyt, Bush, Witt and Schang.

Watch out for the jockey who carries a remote-control battery into a race . . . radio engineers have now devised means of giving a horse a stimulating shock in the absence of a battery . . . a man in the grandstands, carrying equipment that fits into a small valise, can give the horse he bet on a light or heavy shock at any time during the race . . . if a few strands of wire are no larger than threads sewed into the jockey's blouse and extend out of the jacket only an inch . . . the wires pick up an ultra-high frequency beam sent out by the mere press of a button by the man in the stands . . . and the horse gets the rap.

"Buzz" Wetzel, a scout for the Cleveland Indians, reported back to the home office that he was unable to sign young Bob Feller after watching him strike out 18 in a game at Dayton, Ohio, last summer . . he said he pleaded, cajoled and even threatened the young pitcher in an attempt to make him sign a Cleveland contract, but with no results . . . apparently, Wetzel reported, some other club had reached him first and Feller was keeping it quiet because he wanted to play football for his high school team that fall . . . imagine Wetzel's embarrassment when he was informed by his home office that the club which had already signed Feller was the Cleveland club.

The Michigan State Athletic Commission has barred a promoter from promoting boxing bouts but will not interfere if he promotes wrestling . . . on the theory that nobody takes wrestling seriously, anyway . . . but the average wrestler's income is ten times as great as the income of the average fighter . . . if all the claimants to the world's wrestling championship were thrown in the same ring . . . but why talk, there's isn't a ring big enough to hold 'em.

During a slump in which the New York Yankees lost 6 out of 9 games, they gained a half-game on the second-place Indians, who were in an even worse slump . . . Manager Steve O'Neill lays the Indians' failure on the road to the fact that his sluggers overswing after leaving the small confines of the Cleveland park . . . despite the fact that most of the home runs they hit in Cleveland would clear the fences in any city.

The ivy-covered colleges of the Northeastern area have asked the National Association of Football Officials not to permit their members to officiate in professional games . . . on the grounds that the rules are dissimilar and the pros play rougher . . . whoops! . . . Jesse Owens tried to play football as a freshman at Ohio State and quit after his first game . . . carrying the ball interfered with his running form and slower men overtook him, he says.

Washington's Chattanooga farm team, once hailed as the 1936 pennant winner in the Southern Association, has lost 17 straight games . . . Gerald Walker, who was trading material with the Tigers last winter, is now leading all the Tigers at bat with his .383 average . . . Attendance at home games in Washington is up 60,000 over last year . . . the only American League club failing to show an increase is the White Sox.

Towns' Amazing 13.7 Razes 110-Meter Hurdle Record

Effort Is One Of Greatest In History

By the United Press.

Oslo, Norway, Aug. 27.—Forrest (Spec) Towns, Augusta, Ga., contributed one of the most amazing performances in athletic history when he ran the 110-meter hurdles in 13.7 seconds in the nearby Bislet track meet today.

Towns, Olympic 110-meter hurdle champion and University of Georgia junior, clipped four-tenths of a second off his own world record of 14.1 seconds, set in the Olympic games.

Other Americans also won. Ken Carpenter won the discus with a hurl of 50.26 meters, beating out his own teammate, Gordon (Slinger) Dunn, who got off a throw of 49.93 meters.

Bill Graber captured the pole vault with a leap of 4.30 meters, while Dave Albritton jumped 2.01 meters to win the high jump. Foy Draper barely beat out Archie Williams in the 200 meters. Both were timed in 21.4.

Reidar Soerlie, of Norway, took the shot put with a toss of 48 feet 3 inches, Dunn taking second with 47 feet 7 inches, but Bill Graber, of Ontario, Calif., won the pole vault with a leap of 14 feet 1 inch.

The American 400-meter relay team also took first in 42.3 seconds.

Dave Albritton, of Ohio State, won the high jump with a leap of 6 feet 7 inches.

Competition will continue tomorrow.

United States would have had four Olympic boxing champions," said Davis. "It's hard to believe anyone affiliated with amateur boxing could be as dumb as some of the decisions indicated. It looked like collusion on the part of Central European nations to prevent any English-speaking country from winning a championship. My official report to the International Federation goes into details."

Davis was backed up by Johnny Behr, boxing coach, who specified Chester Rutecki, of Chicago; Jimmy Clark, of Jamestown, N. Y.; Jack Wilson, of Cleveland, and Andrew Scrivani, of Chicago, as victims of "rawest decisions."

Dr. Joseph Raycroft, of Princeton, titular head of the returning party, is soft-pedaling any comment on the Jarrett case, hoping it will subside minus legal entanglements. Nevertheless it is understood the committee is fortified with documentary evidence pending developments and return of Avery Brundage, president of the Olympic committee.

City Softball Title At Stake Tonight

With Kingfish Levinsky, Chicago ringman, and Buck Newsom, Washington hurler, cast in roles of honored guests, the Ehrlich Poultry Co. and Agriculture softball teams will meet under the lamps at Griffith Stadium for the city championship and the right to represent Washington in the national tournament at Chicago.

Levinsky, who is here for a reunion with Marty Gallagher Monday night, will toss out the first ball, while Newsom will present the championship award to the winner at the conclusion of the game.

Abe Rosenfield, the Aggies' southpaw star, will do the chucking for his side while Bunker Hill will serve them up for the Poultry dealers. The game will get under way at 8:30 o'clock.

Timber-Topping Record Toppled

President's Cup Swim Race Here Tomorrow, 'Tis a Fact

One of the year's best kept secrets leaked out last night, and the public is hereby notified that the annual President's Cup 3-mile swim, outstanding event on the city's slim aquatic calendar, will be held tomorrow at 2:30 o'clock off the Potomac Boat Club float near Key Bridge.

Usually held the first week in September, the early date selected for the swim this year caught sports fans, with the exception of the committee in charge, napping, and but for a publicity handout from Boston the affair might have been held and forgotten without anybody being wiser.

Harry Tresnak, last year's winner, will defend his laurels, although he will represent no club. At the expiration of his unattached period, which still has several weeks to go, Tresnak will affiliate with the New York Athletic Club. The famous Ruddy brothers, of New York, who have competed in all previous races, are expected to enter.

One of the darkest of the dark horses will be Murray Goldstein, New England amateur long-distance champion, whose entry is being sponsored by Gov. James M. Curley, of Massachusetts. Afflicted with infantile paralysis, 19-year-old Goldstein naturally turned to water for recreation and by diligent application has become one of the best in the game.

He made his greatest bid for fame last year in the Boston Light swim, one of the most gruelling of the long-distance events. None of the amateurs finished, but Murray turned in the best performance, completing all but an eighth of a mile of the distance before being forced to quit after spending six hours in the water.

Marion Miley Triumphs on 19th Hole

By the Associated Press.

South Bend, Ind., Aug. 27.—Marion Miley, of Lexington, Ky., met the severest test today of her defense of the women's Western closed golf championship, but when the last rain drop had fallen on the nineteenth green she was the victor over Mrs. Opal S. Hill, of Kansas City, by that one-hole margin.

One down through the seventeenth after a stretch of luck which would have disheartened a less courageous player, Marion rallied like the champion she is to shoot par for the eighteenth and the extra hole as Mrs. Hill cracked under the strain and lost the fine edge to her game.

Tomorrow in the eighteen-hole semifinal she will meet Dorothy Traung, of San Francisco, the finalist against Virginia Van Wie in the national two years ago. Two Minneapolis youngsters, Patty Berg and Beatrice Barrett, will battle for the other final berth.

Today's matches were played under conditions which drove all but the hardiest galleryites to cover, and Miss Miley's 85 for 19 holes—only four over woman's par—shows the steadiness of her game, which never cracked under pressure.

Marion really showed her mettle on the eighteenth hole, where she played golf instead of trying to play her opponent. She outdrove Mrs. Hill by 20 yards, and when the latter topped a brassie second the temptation must have been strong to try for the green 225 yards away with a wood. Instead she chose an iron for her marshy lie, going for a par 5 and got away a ball which carried at least 175 yards. She pulled her pitch a bit to go 12 feet to the left of the cup, but when Mrs. Hill, on in four, missed her 16-footer for a 5, Marion sent a curling putt to within 6 inches of the cup, and Mrs. Hill conceded.

The extra hole was anticlimax after that, and when Marion put her second 18 inches away from the cup the issue was decided.

Practice Scores Low for Glens Open Golf

By the Associated Press.

Glens Falls, N. Y., Aug. 27.—Firing of sub-par practice rounds stirred the prospect tonight of sensational scoring in the eighth annual Glens Falls Open Golf tournament beginning tomorrow with upward of 200 shotmakers seeking a slice of the $3,500 prize melon.

Six of the golfers who turned in cards for the complete 18 holes of the par 72 layout stroked regulation figures or lower, and a score of others reported being well under par for the number of holes they succeeded in playing before dusk.

The lowest score was made by Byron Nelson, of Ridgewood, N. J., 1936 Metropolitan Open winner, who put together 34-32—66.

Harold (Jug) McSpaden, of Kansas City, 1936 Massachusetts Open titleholder, reported a 36-32—68. Jimmy Hines, of Garden City, Long Island, winner here in 1933, and Ralph Guldahl, of St. Louis, Western Open winner, each had 69's, with 35 blows on the outgoing nine and 34 coming home.

Among others in the crack field are "Wee Bobby" Cruickshank, competing for the eighth time; "Wild Bill" Mehlhorn, of Louisville, Ky.; Craig Wood, of Hollywood, Calif.; Clarence Clark, of Bloomfield, N. J., fresh from his recent Lake Placid Open triumph, and Vic Ghezzi, of Deal, N. J.

D. C. Women Leave For Golf Tourney

Headed by Mrs. Betty Meckley, Middle Atlantic, Maryland and District champion, a number of Washington women golfers will leave today for White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., to compete in the annual Mason and Dixon championship.

Other District players who will participate are Marian Brown, young Manor Club star; Mrs. L. G. Pray, of Manor; Mrs. Frank Royer Keefer and Mrs. Bishop Hill, of Chevy Chase.

Patty Berg, sensational Minneapolis golfer, who will play in Washington on Labor Day in an exhibition match, will be one of the contestants. The White Sulphur event opens Monday.

Helen Dettweiler, of Congressional, left yesterday for Rye Beach, N. H., to compete in the Eastern Open. She will join Babe Didrikson in Boston, and the two will motor to the scene of the tournament.

Montgomery Bowlers Meet.

On Monday at 8 p. m. at the Boulevard Bowling Alley, 6720 Wisconsin avenue, President Judge DeLashmutt will preside at the first meeting of the Bethesda Business Men's League. On Tuesday President Clark Riggs will hold the initial meeting of the Bethesda League. Any team desiring a franchise is requested to have a representative present.

Hiestand Takes 4th Vandalia Rifle Title

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Vandalia, Ohio, Aug. 27.—For the fourth consecutive day shooters from the District of Columbia, Virginia and Maryland failed to win a title in the Grand American Handicap tournament at Vandalia Field.

Hiestand cracked 96 out of 100 in the doubles. He has a score of 787 for the 800 targets shot at this week.

Mrs. Roy Meadows, of Des Moines, cracked 96 out of 100, the highest score ever made by a woman in the preliminary handicap, to get into the shoot-off.

Smith Rides Master Lad To Victory

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 27.—W. E. Johnson's Master Lad, skillfully handled by Eddie Smith, of Washington, established a new 6½-furlong track record of 1:21 1-5 in winning the Harry A. Manley Handicap, run before 12,000 fans.

The race, run in honor of the Cumberland Fair Association's president and general manager, was a thriller from flagfall to finish. Genie Palatine was eliminated going to the first turn when Mrs. I. P. Engle's Chief Hollis knocked her back.

Chief Hollis led for a quarter, where he gave way to H. L. Chapman's Silver Roi. The latter led to the stretch turn, where Smith brought Master Lad along very fast to win by five lengths. Chief Hollis bested Mrs. M. H. Bon's Out of Fire for the place.

College Grid Rules Adopted For AllStar Tilt With 2 Changes

By the United Press.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—Representatives of the College All-Stars and the world professional champion Detroit Lions agreed in a stormy session today to adopt the intercollegiate football code for their game September 1 with the one major exception of moving up the goal posts to the goal line. College rules call for posts set behind the goal lines.

Although Coach Bernie Bierman has a half-dozen dependable goal kickers on his All-Star roster, he and his aids insisted upon exact interpretation of the college rules for the third annual summer classic on Soldier Field.

A mediator, however, granted the goal post concession demanded by Coach Potsy Clark, of the Lions, who then abandoned his argument for adoption of the professional rule permitting a forward pass from any point behind the line of scrimmage.

In the intercollegiate code, the ball automatically is dead when any portion of the player's body, other than his hands or feet, touches the turf.

Present at the conference were Bierman, Elmer Layden, and Bo McMillin, of the All-Stars; Potsy Clark, of the Lions, and Arch Ward, director of the game.

Eddie Saugstad, Who Lived 2 Years in Paris Without Learning French, to Top Ring Card

EDDIE SAUGSTAD.

Eddie Saugstad, the good-looking youngster who handles all of the Olympic Club's disputes with 120-pound amateur ringmen, returns to action Wednesday night at Seat Pleasant, where he will be co-featured in an all-amateur card sponsored by the Seat Pleasant, Hillside and Capitol Heights Volunteer Fire Departments.

Dapper Master Saugstad, who is a clerk at Second National Bank in his spare time, is one of the most unique leather-pushers in the business as well as one of the most popular. His greatest claim to fame, perhaps, is the feat of spending two years in Paris without learning French. He was too busy having a good time to pick up the natives' parlez vous, but his fighting doesn't seem to have suffered any by this oversight.

Eddie's hero is the mellowing Mike McTigue, famed Irish light-heavyweight, with whom he struck up an acquaintance on the voyage to Europe. Eddie was just a little tike at the time and McTigue took a fancy to him. The two corresponded frequently and are still good friends.

Saugstad has won 15 of his 17 bouts, incurring his defeats in the national tournament at Cleveland and against the New York Golden Gloves team earlier this year. Two years ago he defeated Henry Peterson, of the Jewish Community Center, for the District 120-pound title but was forced to relinquish his crown last year when a broken hand put him on the shelf for a couple of months.

Eddie has never been knocked out, although he has administered sleep-producing punches to eight of his opponents. He has been knocked down frequently but has never failed to get up and punch back. He doesn't like being on the floor for a very good reason.

"The light gets in my eyes and the rosin makes me sneeze," he says.

Eddie will share the spotlight next Wednesday with Lou Gevinson, District 130-pound champ, who was added to the card last night. Gevinson has been suffering with poison ivy, which affected both hands, but he was declared sufficiently recovered last night to resume his ring work.

As an added attraction a gate prize, consisting of a week-end trip to Virginia Beach for two, with all expenses paid, will be awarded during intermission. Admission will be 50 cents.

BALTIMORE AMERICAN

The softness of the evening air . . . the "other world" feel to the music as it throbs in your veins . . . the sensation of riding the clouds with a perfect partner . . . and then that musing, relaxing, almost sleepy enjoyment of the whole thing while you sip your Baltimore American.

Certain things just naturally go together—like a summer evening, and this tangy brew—with its creamy foam, with its dancing amber bubbles, with its winey taste.

Hadtobe, $10.00, Defeats Balios in Narragansett's Feature

Wins by Half Length in Mile Test

Comes From Behind to Win; Daily Double Pays $137.10.

By the Associated Press.

Narragansett Park, Pawtucket, R. I., Aug. 27.—Attending the pace set by the favored Balios, from the string of P. B. Codd, through more than a mile, J. L. Barne's Hadtobe scored a half-length triumph this afternoon in the fifth of the endurance races being conducted here.

This was a mile and three-sixteenths.

Balios went to the front in the run down past the grandstand, but there was some tight going in that first quarter with Rutland pinched off at the rail along with Battling Girl.

Trailing Balios around the first turn and down the back stretch was Mrs. Ed Haughton's Crowned Head with Hadtobe third.

The latter passed Crowned Head in the far turn and then in the run for home moved up on Balios as the 6-year-old Chicle gelding shortened his stride.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CONSISTENT, $24.50, $8.60, $3.90; THE SCHEMER, $4.60 $3.10; SUN CELERINA, $2.50.

CONSISTENT moved up stoutly in the opening furlong, withstood determined opposition from LADY SARA, drew out and held sway to the end. THE SCHEMER gained a prominent position in the opening quarter-mile and closed with good energy on the outside through the stretch. SUN CELERINA made a bold attempt to reach the leader, was not good enough and surrendered the place in the last strides. LADY SARA, on the inside while attempting to go along with the winner, weakened in the stretch drive. BETTY VIC finished with good courage, though unable to endanger the leaders. CONTRITE, forced back at the start, made up some ground.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:52. Off at 3:00. Winner, B. N. Kane's b. f. (3), by Donna Cona—High Blue. Trained by W. A. Crawford. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $70; fourth, $30. Time, 0:23 1-5, 0:47 2-5, 1:12 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BLUE DONNA, $15.50, $8.90, $6.20; HERONDAS, $54.30, $27.20; JACKSNIPE, $5.50.

BLUE DONNA was steadied along within striking distance of the pace for the first half mile, wore down JACKSNIPE for the lead inside the last sixteenth and hard ridden, lasted to hold HERONDAS safe. The latter, badly outpaced in the run down the backstretch, closed stoutly in the stretch run and just failed to be along in time. JACKSNIPE, in closest attendance of the pacemaker, took the lead when COL. BIXER began shortening up, though unable to maintain his advantage under punishment. MAIDEN DREAM, unruly at the post, unseated her rider, raced well placed, though unable to close any ground under pressure. WESTY'S DUCHESS was unable to reach the leaders. COL. BIXER, quickest to begin, drew away into a good lead but flattened out badly when reaching the stretch.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:29. Off at 3:34. Winner, Mrs. E. Haughton's ch. m. (5), by Stimulus—Enslaved. Trained by Ed Haughton. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $70; fourth, $30. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:47 2-5, 1:12 1-5.

BABWRACK	(Seabo)	106	8	7	$7^{1½}$	$7^{1½}$	7^{h}	8	38.15

Two-dollar mutuels paid—WEE WINK, $18.60, $5.40, $3.50; LEADING ARTICLE, $3.00, $2.60; CAPUCHE, $3.40.

WEE WINK had speed from the outset, was steadied along in nearest chase of LEADING ARTICLE, wore the latter down when reaching the stretch, drawing out at the end. LEADING ARTICLE, hustled to the front in the opening sixteenth, was unable to draw clear and though holding on willingly, was unable to cope with the closing challenge of the winner. CAPUCHE, in the thick of the contention from almost the start, was unable to keep pace with the two leaders after the first half mile had been completed. FREDRICK, away fastest of all, was unable to keep up, but closed willingly. DEAN SWIFT was unable to enter into contention. JOYRIDE had speed for the first half mile, tiring thereafter.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good from gate. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post at 4:04. Off at 4:07. Winner, Crescent Stables' br. f. (2), by Challenger II—Imagination II. Trained by R. Roberts. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $70; fourth, $30. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:47 3-5, 1:12 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—STORY TIME, $45.40, $16.30, $10.10; DANARCO, $13.20, $8.90; ROYAL SHOOT, $16.40.

STORY TIME, restrained while holding to a prominent position, went to the front with a rush when reaching the stretch and drew out steadily in the closing furlong. DANARCO moved up steadily after leaving the backstretch, came through on the inside at the stretch turn and closed with good courage. ROYAL SHOOT, in the forefront throughout, gained a slight advantage after leaving the backstretch and was unable to keep pace in the closing drive. ASKARIS worked his way up gradually and finished with good energy. TRUE TUNE forced the early pace and faltered after going a half mile. ALL AGOG displayed good early speed, but was under pressure to show in the lead and tired when the real racing began.

FIFTH RACE—One and three-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,100. The Endurance, No. 5; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:36. Off at 4:37½. Winner, J. L. Barnes' b. f. (4), by Gift Hawk—Negoporte. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $825; second, $165; third, $75; third, $35. Time, 0:24, 0:47 4-5, 1:13, 1:38 4-5, 1:58 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HADTOBE, $10.00, $4.50, $3.70. BALIOS, $3.80, $3.30; BATTLING GIRL, $4.70.

HADTOBE was steadied along in nearest pursuit of the pace, responded gamely when called upon in the stretch, moved up on the outside of BALIOS and outgamed him to the end. BALIOS took command at once, drew away into a good lead and rated along in front under slight restraint, was unable to withstand the winner's bid. BATTLING GIRL worked her way up gradually after reaching the back stretch and finished with good energy through the stretch. CROWNED HEAD, well placed and restrained early, made his bid nearing the stretch, moved up briefly, was not good enough and weakened in the last few yards. DORMIDO closed a good gap. WHIPPERCRACKER came with a belated rush after racing far back early. RUTLAND was never prominent.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:09. Off at 5:10. Winner J. Wormser's b. g. (6), by Espino—Miss Vaal. Trained by J. P. Kearns. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third $70; fourth, $30. Time, 0:24, 0:48 1-5, 1:13 1-5, 1:39 2-5, 1:52.

ROYAL GOLD	(McTague)	112	1	1	4^{1}	9^{2}	10	10	10	16.05

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DUTCH UNCLE, $34.50, $14.30, $7.70; SANDY BABY, $7.10, $5.00; LIGHT BROOK, $7.10.

DUTCH UNCLE moved up gradually after straightening out for the run down the back stretch, gained the lead when reaching the stretch and fought it out courageously to the close. SANDY BABY, slow to settle into full stride, worked his way up gradually and, despite responding gamely to punishment, was not quite good enough. LIGHT BROOK moved up steadily on the inside down the far side of the track, went to the front when GRANDPA'S BOY began tiring and, though hard ridden, was unable to keep up in the drive. FLYING DERE dropped back after going the first five-sixteenths.

SEVENTH RACE—ONE and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:40. Off at 5:42. Winner, J. P. Maguire's ch. g. (4), by Canan—Culture. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third $70; fourth $30. Time, 0:24, 0:45 3-5, 1:13 2-5, 1:40, 1:47 2-5.

BETHLEHEM STAR	(Tucker)	109	9	9	Unseated rider					13.10

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MORE PEP, $13.20, $1.20, $3.50; THIS WAY, $6.50, $3.30; BELOW COST, $2.60.

MORE PEP was slow to begin and badly outplaced until the last three furlongs, moved up fast thereafter, came willingly in the stretch, wore down THIS WAY for the lead and drew out in the last few strides. THIS WAY moved up steadily in the run down the back stretch, fought it out courageously with GLITTER GLOW for the lead, shook off the latter when reaching the stretch, but was unable to withstand the winner. BELOW COST lacked speed to keep up early and while unable to threaten the first two, was up in the last stride to wear down the tiring GLITTER GLOW. The latter had speed from the outset, though tiring badly after reaching the stretch. BLACK HAT showed speed in entering into contention, tiring in the last five-sixteenths.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 6:16. Off at 6:17½. Winner P. S. P. Randolph's b. g. (6), by Sun Flag—Duchess Kathleen. Trained by F. White. Value to winner, $750; second $150; third, $70; fourth, $30. Time, 0:24, 0:48, 1:14 2-5, 1:40 4-5, 1:47.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FREE, $8.50, $4.60, $3.40; CANPRA, $5.70, $4.00; ST. JENSUND, $3.60.

FREE was permitted to go into his best stride, was sent up on the outside leaving the back stretch, assumed the lead before reaching the stretch and had enough in reserve to withstand the closing bid of CANPRA. The latter trailed his field for the first half-mile, moved up on the inside leaving the back stretch and closed stoutly on the inside through the stretch. ST. JENSUND, slow to begin, closed stoutly through the stretch after encountering some trouble nearing the furlong pole.

At the Post . . .

Dear Al:

Well, people, Mrs. Bennings' lovely son has been on a diet. He has lost 12 pounds, four golf matches, $312 in cash (borrowed), the friendship of Perry Hoover and perhaps a happy home. That, friends, is what I call reducing—and all in two weeks. In addition, if you're interested, I'm now wearing a 6⅞ hat instead of the usual 7⅛. However, we had three winners today, including Hadtobe, our best bet. It might be of interest to note how this horse got its name. The horse was originally named La Cherie, after perhaps the most notorious woman in all Florida. When La Cherie appeared in the entries at Hialeah Park, officials of that track were mortified. The owner would have to change the name at once. So he was called into the main office. When ordered to find a new name at once, he said: "Well, it had to be. How's that for a name?" And so the name was sent to the jockey club—Hadtobe. However, the joke was on the Hialeah officials. Hadtobe was the name used on the program. But under the rules, Hialeah had to print at the bottom of the program—"Formerly ran as La Cherie." A horse by any other name would be as fleet. And so to the winners. BILL.

First race—First Smile picks up only 101 pounds in this maiden event and I see no reason for mistakes. Anderson will do the riding. On Ward, in charge of Grigg, deserves respect in this company. Step Aside for the show.

Second race—Scotch Gold seems to be returning to the form that made this one a star in Florida last winter. Gets a good post position here and will be ready to run. Our Crest looms as the one to beat. Kent has been groomed for a killing and this may be the spot.

Third race—Shottin' High will be hard to beat in this field. Mixes good workouts with good afternoon performances and I'm going to string along. Lady Bewithus to place. Trina, a recent Bennings winner, to take care of the others.

Fourth race—Singer's Folly has a lot of speed and has little to fear here if given the right sort of ride. Felsa is fit and ready and will have something to say about the purse distribution. Dixie Dora for the show award.

Fifth race—Wacoche will be in a running mood here and I would not be surprised if this one took the major portion of the purse. Faust is at tops now and is the one to beat. Up and Up to take care of the others.

Sixth race—Stone Martin has a habit of popping up with his best races when the prices are right. He will be a slight outsider here and I expect him to score. Beveau has some class and is the one to beat. Sure Hour for the show end.

Seventh race—Cohort Miss runs hot and cold and I have reason to believe that tomorrow will be a hot day. Guardian is ready for a best effort and is dangerous. Bye Bye Mary for the minor ward.

Eighth race—Frumper likes a soft track but gets in so cheap that I must give him a chance in this company. Ramus and Toney Boy to take care of the others.

Best Bet—Stone Martin.

CUMBERLAND SELECTIONS.

Ned Gaines is running a 2-year-old called Justa Pilgrim in tomorrow's opener, which I think will get you enough sugar to take the family down to the beach over the week-end. Sincerely yours—Clocker Mike.

First race—If Justa Pilgrim is beaten, then I look for Iuka to furnish the surprise. Beauty B. is fancied as named.

Fourth race—It's asking a lot of Small Change to go 6½ furlongs, but that's just what I'm going to do. Cora Kay may outlast Veritas for the place award.

Fifth race—Sophisticated has a distance made to order. Seems to have a shade on this field. Pencader and No Mistake rate as named.

Sixth race—The Hurlock-Grimes entry must be given the performance in an affair of this kind. Transtine's morning trials say this plater should save the place money. Jim Moss is fancied as named.

Best bet—Justa Pilgrim.

Wall Smash to Feature Motorcycle Field Day

Another of a series of motorcycle field meets, sponsored by the National Capital Motorcycle Club, will be held next Sunday at Marlowe's Farms, near Wheaton, Md. The meet will start at 2 o'clock and will be featured by the most difficult wall smash attempted in the East.

The wall smash, through a flaming wall many declare cannot be penetrated by a motorcycle, will be attempted by an unidentified hero, who wishes to remain incognito until the very last moment.

D. C. Body to Investigate Charges of Levinsky's Pilot Today

'Protection' Story to Be Subject

Reprimand to Steinman Likely; Rivals Nearing Top Shape.

By Bill McCormick.

To soothe indignant feelings aroused in certain uniformed quarters by an age-old publicity gag, the District Boxing Commission yesterday ordered a special meeting to consider charges by Harold Steinman, manager of King Levinsky, that Marty Gallagher is greatly favored in ring officiating here.

Levinsky, who lost a decision to Gallagher because of repeated fouling last October, is matched to meet Gallagher in a return bout at Griffith Stadium next Tuesday night.

The meeting over the cleverly conceived, but very time-worn tempest in the teapot, will be held at 11 o'clock this morning. It was ordered by Acting Chairman Kenneth Parkinson, who is smart enough in the way of the fight game to have his tongue in his cheek over the entire matter.

The meeting probably will result in no more than a reprimand for Steinman. Steinman and the Kingfish being what they are, it is entirely possible that they would pack up and leave without fighting Gallagher were a fine imposed, leaving the Boxing Commission and those who have become so agitated over the publicity-inspired charges in the position of having driven away from the Capital one of the most interest-provoking bouts of the year.

Should Steinman be suspended, the fight also would be off, so that action is almost out of the question.

The entire "Much Ado About Nothing" fuss was inspired by an open letter from Steinman to all local papers, in which it was stated that Levinsky would defeat Gallagher, but would not get the decision. The epistle was ignored as an out-and-out publicity stunt in certain quarters, but taken very seriously by some who are more naive in such matters.

While the unimportant fuss is taking place and rapidly coming to a climax, Levinsky is rounding into perhaps the best fighting shape of his career and Marty is striving for the same condition.

Levinsky went through his first public workout here yesterday and entertained a large gathering no end by the free and easy manner in which he tossed whoopla wallops in the general direction of Johnny Pacek, his chief sparmate.

The erstwhile Chicago herring peddler is heavier than he was the last time he fought Gallagher, but that added weight seems to have given him greater strength without slowing him up. Since Levinsky never could box, the added poundage cannot affect his form.

Gallagher took a brief respite from his severe training seige in Boston yesterday to judge a horse show at Beverly Farms. He has been boxing daily with Jack Gagnon, Tony Shucco and Al McCoy. He will arrive in Washington tomorrow afternoon to wind up the training grind.

Uhle to Coach at Cornell.

Ithaca, N. Y., Aug. 27 (AP).—George Uhle, veteran major league pitcher, will coach fall baseball practice at Cornell University, it was announced today. Another big leaguer, or Jim Tatum and Mose Quinn, of the football staff, will direct the team next spring.

Kingfish Levinsky has just whizzed a right-hand punch through the light bag as he trains here for his bout against Marty Gallagher at Griffith Stadium next Tuesday night.

Out Fishing . .

By Jack Hawley

The present fishing slump is best indicated by the angler's facial expression upon his return to shore. What a few hours can do for him—send him home happy, or threatening to free the population of those who are not responsible for the fish refusing to take his pet lures, fishing editors. What was once an enlightened and beaming countenance has clouded up as rapidly as a falling barometer. Frowns freely displayed amid guttural rumblings of disgust for those who inquire, "any luck?"

Daytime fishing has about collapsed, but not for long, brother angler, because the moon will soon be giving you some top-notch fishing. Anglers who put little faith in the belief the moon has nothing to do with fishing should make note of our remarks. Experienced anglers will agree it has a decidedly improved effect on all fishing. If it did not why do we fish tides and what controls the tide? Due to the extremely hot sun and humidity the fish are lolling around just like us humans, seeking cooler surroundings which to the denizens of the deep is deeper water, cooler than that found close to shore, where they return in the evening to feed.

Saturday we watched rockfish beneath our boat—hundreds of them—but they would not bite. Hardheads, trout and bluefish were mixed among them. All of them "finning," lazily. Late the same evening witnesses were on hand to see Cap. Tippett come ashore and display a large catch of very large croakers, fair-sized trout and several blues—all caught after sundown. Boats fishing at the mouth of the St. Marys River had very good luck; those fishing in the bay had none. One old-timer told us that as far back as he can remember this condition has always prevailed.

Sunday afternoon we had all our dreams come true and incidently we again proved the big bluefish did not travel up the Potomac when they divided forces on the Middle Grounds. We suggested that anglers try other areas in hopes of picking them up in some remote place, we passed the word along to boatmen who have tried to locate them since without result until Sunday when Capt. "Boots" Ridgell, of Point Lookout, found them only two miles above the point, three schools of them, the biggest bluefish ever seen by any human in the past 40 years. Charlie Johnson, George M. Faust, Thomas Koerner, Walter Grau and Lewis Heilman were the lucky anglers. Think of it, 11 bluefish totaling 104 pounds nearly six hours after they had been caught. We viewed this catch in amazement. Never before have we seen anything that could approach this weight. We photographed them over and over again for our files.

Big Ones Got Away.

These anglers lost over 20 big blues because they just couldn't manage the big ones they had on light tackle. Capt. Ridgell said his net couldn't hold them and the bites taken from the mesh soon put it out of commission. Johnson told us that his largest fish weighed 14 pounds immediately after being caught. When thewriter weiged it on three different type scales it registered 12 pounds, 2 ounces. Several of the fish weighed 11 pounds. The smallest fish was as large as any we have ever caught.. Approximately every guest of the Point Lookout Hotel turned out to cheer these anglers on their most unusual catch. Undoubtedly all of these fish lost 10 per cent of their weight in five hours because their ice supply was low and the heat terrific.

If this be true the big fish which Johnson landed would have weighed approximately what Johnson's scales showed—or 14 pounds. Several boats put out in search of the three large schools, but had not returned prior to our departure.

We would suggest some early morning fishing for these big fellows, because where they were found is ideal for blue fish, but seldom used prior to September, and only by accident were they found. The boys were hunting for any kind of fish that had nerve enough to expose themselves to a scorching sun.

Nats Will Train At Orlando, Fla.

Orlando, Fla., Aug. 27 (U.P.).—The Washington Nationals have signed for spring training in Orlando, John Ganzel, of the Orlando Chamber of Commerce, announced today.

Clark Griffith, president of the Washington Baseball Club, last night said arrangements virtually have been completed to return to Orlando for spring training next season. Only a few minor details must be disposed of.

Detroit Rallies To Win Over Sox, 4-2

By the Associated Press.

Boston, Aug. 27.—A "stretch inning" two-run rally gave the Detroit Tigers a 4-to-2 victory over the Red Sox today as Tommy Bridges baffled the Boston batters to chalk up his eighteenth win of the season.

Bridges let Tom Yawkee's skidding "millionaires" down with only four hits, but one of those was Jimmy Foxx's thirty-fifth home run. He belted the ball into the left-field stands in the fifth with Almada on, accounting for both of the home team's scores.

The break in the game came in the seventh, with the score even. Pete Fox singled to left and went to third on Charley Gehringer's perfectly executed hit and run play through short. He scored when Al Simmons doubled hard against the left-field fence.

Indians Defeat Nats in Tenth; End Streak

in the fifth when Whitehill walked a pair and the Nats bounded right back into the lead in the same inning when Chapman and Lewis drove a pair of runs across the plate. They gave Whithill a 6-3 lead in the sixth when Bolton and Chapman rapped a pair of doubles to left.

Vosmik, Weatherly and George rapped out consecutive singles and when Whitehill had a count of two balls on Pinch Hitter Uhle with one out, Harris inserted Newsom. In counter-strategy, Manager O'Neill replaced Uhle with the left-handed Campbell, who singled to center to tie the game at 7-7.

Averill banged a homer over the rightfield wall in the seventh to cut that lead to 6-4 and a wild throw by Hale upped it to 7-4 in the same inning. In the eighth the Indians wiped out that 3-run margin.

At that the Nats reared up again with George Hildebrand in the box and acquired two runs after two were out with the aid of Chapman's fourth hit and a three-base wild throw by Hale on Lewis' bunt, but the proceedings served only to delay the agony.

Because, as you know, Trosky's homer with Averill on base tied it again at 9-9, and Weaver, in the tenth, was pitching for both the Nats and the Indians at the same time.

Boorse Races 3 Horses at Marlboro

Marlboro, Md., Aug. 27.—Keep your eyes on anything Herb Boorse, of Pennsylvania, saddles during the Southern Maryland Agricultural Fair Association's fall meeting which opens at 2 p. m. next Tuesday.

That is the word drifting down from Cumberland, where the meeting of Maryland's fall season ends Saturday.

Boorse will bring a well-balanced stable of sprinters and route runners here. If he fails to top his division at Cumberland, he stands a royal chance of succeeding here, for he has By Surprise, Light Action and Golden Play razor sharp. Both Light Action and Golden Play have won at Cumberland. They raced a mile and one-sixteenth in 1:52 with 111 and 108 pounds up, respectively. By Surprise was a double winner earlier in the upstate session and may prove to be one of the topnotch sprinters at this meeting.

Accounts and Deposits in Series

Continuing where it left off Wednesday, the Accounts and Deposits nine yesterday hung a 9-0 defeat on General Accounting Office for its third straight victory and the Sports Center League championship. The victors will meet the Bankers League champions next Tuesday in the opening game of the annual city championship series sponsored by The Washington Post Baseball Association.

Ed Reynolds' two-hit pitching assured the eventual winners of victory. The big right-hander mowed down the first 14 batters to face him without a man reaching first, and at no time was in any serious difficulty. He walked none and fanned four.

Meanwhile his mates were pounding Conover and Duvall for 15 hits which they used to the best advantage, scoring three runs in the first inning, and two each in the fourth, fifth and sixth innings. Chilcott, who made three hits, one a triple, and Batten, who got three for four led the winning attack.

Heurich Plays Shady Grove Sunday

Play-Offs in Both Groups of National City Loop Booked on Ellipse.

Baseball fireworks are due to explode on two fronts in the National City Unlimited League of The Post Baseball Association Sunday.

Shady Grove, winner of the first half of Section A, and Heurich Brewers, second-half winners, will clash at South Ellipse in the first of the play-off series.

Nolan Motor Co. and Old Manhattan will meet at West Ellipse in the deciding game of the series to determine the Section B champions.

Both games will start at 3 p. m. and close to 10,000 dyed-in-the-wool sandlot fans are expected to view the proceedings.

Adair vs. James or Lyons.

Giggles Adair will take the mound for Shady Grove, with Knocky Thomas, the Maryland University athlete, behind the plate. Lyons or James will do the hurling for Heurich, with Fee Collier catching. Hal Kiesel, who won the first game for Nolan, may toe the slab in the wind-up battle.

There will be action in two other loops of the National City League.

In the Junior division J. C. Flood and Police Boys Club meet at East Ellipse and West End Laundry takes on Simpson's Pharmacy at South Ellipse. Game time is 1 p. m. Georges Radio, loop leaders, and Pep Boys draw a bye.

In the play-off series in the Midget League, Takoma will attempt to take its second straight from Nation-Wide at 11 a. m. at East Ellipse.

Bucs Stage Rally, Down Dodgers, 6-3

Pittsburgh, Aug. 27 (AP).—The Pirates came from behind with a three-run rally in the eighth inning today to pull out a 6-to-3 victory over the Dodgers—their only win of the three-game series.

Van Mungo ran into his usual hard-luck to lose the decision, as his mates committed four errors, one of them starting off the Bucs' eighth-frame splurge

Big Jim Weaver was the victor, although he and Cy Blanton, who pitched the ninth inning, were touched for 13 hits.

General Motors Plans Big Plant In New Jersey

80-Acre Unit Will Have Annual Capacity of 120,000 Cars.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 27.—General Motors Corporation announced today that it would build one of the largest assembly plants for passengers cars in the world at Linden, N. J. The plant, which will assemble motors for delivery to the East Coast region and overseas territories, when fully equipped for maximum operation will represent an outlay of about $5,575,000. Construction will begin immediately and is scheduled to be completed in December.

The new unit will have a normal capacity of 120,000 cars a year. Approximately 2,000 persons will be employed when the plant is operating at capacity. The corporation announced that 80 acres on the Lincoln highway, Stiles street, have been acquired as the site for the structure. About two-thirds of the output is scheduled for domestic delivery and one-third for export.

Step in Decentralization.

Establishment of the Linden plant marks the second step this year in the decentralization of production of some of the General Motors lines. The first move was the opening in May of the plant of the new Southern California division of General Motors, at Los Angeles, Calif., to serve the West Coast area. U. S. Roberts, of Detroit, will be general manager of the Linden division.

The plant will consist of four buildings and an oval test tract nearly half a mile in circumference. The buildings will include the main factory, an office building, a loading dock and a power house.

The new plant will swell considerably the already active automobile industry in New Jersey. The corporation has an automobile boxing plant and a battery division at Bloomfield and a roller-bearing unit at Harrison.

Another important automotive assembly plant is the Ford Motor Co.'s unit at Edgewater. Numerous automobile accessory and hardware plants also operate in New Jersey. Mack Trucks, Inc., has factories at Plainfield and New Brunswick.

Standard Power Output.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—Electric output of the public utility operating companies in the Standard Gas and Electric Co. system for the week ended August 22, 1936, totaled 103,466,026 kilowatt-hours, an increase of 18.9 per cent compared with the corresponding week last year.

Washington Gas Sales Gain, Net Declines

Drop Is Attributed to New Accounting Regulations.

The monthly report of the Washington Gas Light Co,. filed yesterday with the Public Utilities Commission, shows net operating revenue of $39,282 for July compared with $56,045 for July of last year. This $16,763 decrease in net operating revenues is attributable to an increase in the amount for retirement of property of $16,109 due to the new basis of calculation required in the sliding scale arrangement, and an increase in other operating expenses of $6,288 due to the larger volume of gas sales. Operating revenues increased $5,634 in spite of the rate reduction effective December 16, 1935.

Although the net result of the month's operations was the usual summer loss, which increased $29,982 for July, 1936, over July a year ago, the increase was due principally to the new bookkeeping provision for retirements of property. However, gas sales increased by 40,000,000 cubic feet. Net income for tne seven months ended July 31 was $615,756.

The company has filed a registration with the SEC covering 130,000 shares of $20 par value capital stock. The company states that application will be made to admit the stock to unlisted trading on the New York Curb Exchange.

Of the stock to be offered, 109,196 shares is beneficially owned by Washington & Suburban Companies, parent of the registrant. The corporation states that part or all of the remaining 20,804 shares may be purchased and resold for stabilization purposes by the underwriters. None of the stock being offered is new stock and proceeds of the sale will accrue to the parent corporation and other stockholders.

Georgetown Gaslight Co.

The monthly report of the Georgetown Gaslight Co., also filed yesterday with the Public Utilities Commission, shows a seasonal net loss of $12,723 for July, 1936, as compared with a loss of $9,117 for July of last year; this result being attributable to increased provision for retirement of property and also due to the rate reduction effective December 16, 1935. Gas sales increased 5,000,000 cubic feet over July a year ago and the net income for seven months ended July 31, 1936, was $15,799.

Brokers' Loans Rise $35,000,000 in Week

Loans on securities to brokers and dealers, held by weekly reporting member banks in New York City, were reported yesterday by the Federal Reserve Board to have totaled $971,000,000 for the week ended Wednesday, an increase of $35,000,000 for the week.

Loans for the corresponding week a year ago totaled $807,000,000.

New York, Aug. 27.—Government bonds, which have steadily risen during the weakness and travail of stocks, settled back a little today as shares engaged in a sharp advance on moderately increased activity. Sales volume topped a million shares for the first time in over a week and best prices were reached in the last hour. Whatever the cause of the rally in stocks, market followers liked the Landon speech. Francs were steady. September wheat rose ⅝ of a cent to 111⅞ cents a bushel, but corn dropped more than a cent.

Steel shares again led the market, and unlike the trading of recent days the best prices were reached in the last hour. The market apparently was indisposed to give too much consideration to a revival of the talk of higher steel wages, and steel company executives professed to know of no plans for increase. Anyhow, the whole steel group advanced 1 to 2 points. Bethlehem entered new high territory with a gain of 2 points. Sales volume in the steel group was large.

Traders also regarded as particularly refreshing the snappiness of the motor shares, much depressed for several days on liquidation and short selling. A Department of Commerce bullish prophecy on the volume of August sales may have been a factor in the rally. Chrysler led the section with a gain of 3 points. Sugars continued strong, some new high prices being set.

Sharp Reversal.

Railroad and farm implement stocks stood out with the steels and motors. The railroad share climb was from 1 to 2 points. A feature was the activity of Nashville Chatt at the inactive post. The price rose 3 points. Lehigh Valley was in the new high group. Mail order stocks followed the farm implements higher. Case jumped nearly 5 points. Deere recovered 2 points.

Liquor shares were strong on higher price talk, but Industrial Alcohol was an exception. Electrical equipment kept pace with the best, as did the chemicals. Utilities were fractionally higher. American Power & Light rose on dividends. Douglas and Boeing led a revival in the airplanes. Gains of 1 to 3 points were made by Celanese, Mesta Machine (on doubling the dividend), Ward Baking preferred, Twin City Rapid Transit preferred, Zenith Radio, Vanadium, United Engineering and U. S. Hoffman. Radio turned.

Cockeyed Taxes.

Discussion of the undistributed profits penalty tax was renewed by the devastating description of the thing made last night by Gov. Landon in his discussion of Government finance. More than one observer in Wall Street has felt all along that the tax would fall of its own wegiht and at most would not apply to more than one saeson's earnings, if for no other reason because it would prove to be a great disappointment as a revenue producer.

It was passed partly as a smoke screen to provide the New Dealers with an opportunity of telling the dole crowd that the rich security holders were being properly soaked, partly to soften criticism that the New Deal was making no attempt to balance the budget, and partly with the idea that the Government would secure a stronger position in the regulation of corporation finances by depriving corporations of looking after their own financial needs.

Corporation Levy.

It now may be taken for granted that, with the election of the Republican candidate, the tax promptly will be repealed, and before any collections are made under it. Likely it will be repealed by the next Congress and before the next tax date, even with Roosevelt in the White House, and it is at least possible that Roosevelt will see the wisdom of repeal, in case he is elected.

On long term the repeal of the law will be all to the good, but the immediate effect on stocks, if repeal were now known to be certain, might be less than some suppose. For one thing, stock prices rest largely on earnings, whether retained in the business or distributed as surplus. A year's splurge in dividend payments, or even the prospect of extras for a few years, will do less for stock prices than the prospect of rising earnings. Long-term investors naturally would prefer to invest in companies that have freedom properly to conduct their financial affairs.

Many extra dividends already have been paid in anticipation of the undistributed profits tax, and many more are in prospect before the end of the year; but after all, the stock buyer is unlikely to pay for an irregular and extra dividend than the amount in dollars of the distribution, minus interest, between now and the time when he expects the payment. Extra and irregular dividends cannot be figured as bearing the same relationship to stock prices as do regular payments.

For example, if a stock regularly paying a $3 yearly dividend out of $6 earnings sells for $100 a share, it is quite illogical to expect the stock to rise to $200 because the dividend, this year, will total $6 a share, in order to distribute the required amount of total profits under the tax law. The price might double could the investor be confident of the maintenance of a $6 rate, but rather he will be skeptical of that, for he knows that henceforth his company will no longer dip into surplus for maintaining a regular rate during periods of profit recession.

Companies that can't pile on fat in good times aren't likely to be prodigal in poor times. The investor, therefore, anticipating an extra of $3 with his regular $3 dividend, already may have bid up his stock to 100 because he has learned its earnings are $6 a share, but he won't consider the $3 extra worth more than 3 points in the market, and probably less.

Restriction.

Apparently speculation among the personnel of the SEC has been growing a little too heavy for comfort. In case of a severe market decline the resulting losses might so disturb the minds of SEC employes caught with too little margin, or merely hung up as investors in sour securities, that they would lose some of their efficiency in protecting the public against the machinations of the Stock Exchange and the wiles of high-pressure salesmen of unlisted securities. A doctor with a bad cold scarcely inspires confidence in his patient similarly afflicted. Mr. Landis is doing just right in sending out this third or fourth reminder to his employes that they can buy, but mustn't sell for at least a year. That won't exactly keep them from using to their own advantage, or vice versa, the information gleaned on tours of the brokerage house bookkeeping offices or otherwise, but it will tend to dampen the speculative ardor.

7,257 Housing Loans Granted By D. C. Banks

FHA Plans Nation-Wide Campaign Next Month to Arouse Interest.

Modernization loans are receiving the attention of Washington bankers. Contrary to the common impression that bankers are not interested in small loans, it has been learned that local banks have made 7,257 loans to Washington home owners for repairs and modernization under the liberal provisions of what is known as title 1 of the national housing act.

The Federal Housing Administration is planning a Nation-wide campaign during the month of September to stimulate interest in the seasonal repairs, alterations and home improvements. Announcement was made yesterday that the member banks of the District of Columbia Bankers Association have planned to co-operate with the Administration in its endeavor to bring public attention to the opportunity afforded by the act at the present time. Unless extended, its provisions expire on April 1, 1937.

In the absence of Karl W. Corby, president of the District of Columbia Bankers Association, Thomas J. Groom, vice president, Bank of Commerce & Savings, who is first vice president of the association, has arranged for a series of newspaper announcements beginning on September 1, featuring the advantages offered for securing loans from the banks for all types of improvements for homes, apartment houses and business properties.

Special attention will be drawn to the time limit of the act and to the extended period for the monthly repayments. The advertisements will appear every day except Saturday and Sunday in the five principal daily newspapers throughout the month and it is anticipated that they will be a potent factor in stimulating activity in many lines of business during the coming fall and winter months.

Underwriters' Convention.

L. H. RIGGLES.

More than 40 local life insurance men will attend the forty-seventh annual convention of the National Association of Life Underwriters at Boston September 21 to 25. Among the local delegation will be Laurence H. Riggles, president of the District of Columbia Life Underwriters Association, Inc.; J. E. "Bill" McCombs, a director and past president of the local association; H. Lawrence Choate, George E. Harris, Claude A. Cook, William C. Worthington, L. H. Hannah, John M. Strait, Earle W. Sapp, John L. McElfresh, Rowland W. Marshall and Sydney H. Karr. Arrangements are being made for a special party to leave here over the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad at 9 a. m. September 21.

The local association has invited members of the Richmond Association to join with it in the trip. A number of the New England companies have arranged for home office meetings several days before the convention and some local representatives of these companies plan to attend these earlier sessions before going to Boston. Messrs. McElfresh, of the Connecticut Mutual, and Strait of the Sun Life are former Bostonians and are ready to answer telephone queries about Boston hotels, their estimated rates and proximity to the Statler Hotel, convention headquarters.

Bank Promotions.

Three promotions have been announced by President J. Frank White of the National Bank of Washington. John Alden, with the bank for 35 years, has been advanced from the position of assistant cashier in charge of loans and discounts to the post of a vice president. Edmund H. Graham, who has been assistant cashier and manager of the Water street branch of the bank, was also promoted to a vice presidency. He will remain in charge of the branch with the new rank. Everett H. Parsley, with the bank since 1909, was promoted from auditor to an assistant cashiership.

Banking Notes.

Maj. Erskine Gordon, trust officer of Hamilton National Bank, is spending a two weeks' vacation at Woodbury Forest, Va.

Nelson B. O'Neal, an assistant vice president of Riggs National Bank, has returned from a vacation in West Virginia. Daniel J. Callahan, jr., an assistant cashier of that institution, is on vacation at Eagles Mere, Pa.

President C. F. Burton, of the City Bank, has been spending his vacation at Rehoboth Beach, Del.

Norman E. Towson, an assistant treasurer of the Washington Loan & Trust Co., has returned from a two weeks' visit in Canada.

Burdette S. Warden, of the local office of Winthrop, Mitchell & Co., has been taking a two weeks' vacation. W. R. Boger, of that office, will spend his vacation in Canada.

Assistant Vice President Frank P. Harman, jr., of Hamilton National Bank, is spending his vacation at Blue Ridge Summit.

Secretary Donald W. Larson, of the District of Columbia Bankers Association, is on a trip through New England.

C. J. Gockeler, an assistant vice president of Hamilton National Bank, has returned from his vacation at Margate, N. J.

Remon Is Elected C. & P. Tel. Director

John A. Remon was elected a director of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. succeeding Marshal D. Sedam at the regular monthly meeting of the board held yesterday.

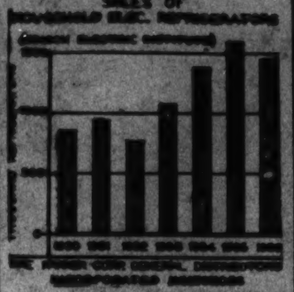
Refrigerator Sales Make Large Gains



Boston, Mass., Aug. 27.—Active only 15 years, the household electric refrigerator industry has made phenomenal progress. Up to and including 1921 only 15,000 electric refrigerators were sold, while sales in the first six months of this year were nearly 1,500,000 units. The average price of an electric refrigerator today is only about half that of 10 years ago. The success of the industry is largely based on high quality, low price, easy financing and extensive advertising.

Wheat Advances; Corn Declines

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—Rumors that Canada might raise the price guaranteed producers of her reduced 1936 wheat crop strengthened the Chicago wheat market today, resulting in net fractional gains for the session. After an easy start, wheat here advanced as much as 1⅜ cents above yesterday's close, fluctuating over a 1¾ cents range, with the United States expected to continue importing Canadian wheat.

Wheat closed ¼ to ¾ cent above yesterday's finish, September 1.11⅞@1.12; December, 1.10¾@1.10⅞; May 1.09⅜@1.09½.

Corn was independently weak, largely because of reports of improvement to some late corn, closing ⅜ to 1⅝ cents lower, September, 1.10½@1.10⅝; December, 95½@95¾; May, 91¼@91⅜. Oats finished ⅛ off to ⅛ up, December, 43¾; rye, ⅝ to 1⅛ higher, and barley 1 up. Provisions lost 8 to 10 cents.

Steel Construction At Recovery Peak

New York, Aug. 27 (AP).—New business booked by the steel construction industry during July was the heaviest for any month since the beginning of the depression, the American Institute of Steel Construction estimated today.

Estimated new business for the industry in July totatled 188,053 tons and represented 80.4 per cent of normal demand, normal being the average for the years 1928-1931, inclusive. This compares with 128,520 tons in June and 65,957 in July, 1935.

Bank Clearings Drop Slightly Under Year Ago

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 27.—Bank clearings for the last week of August were under the aggregate for the period immediately preceding.

The total reported to Dun & Bradstreet for 22 leading cities in the United States for the week ended Wednesday, August 26, was $4,524,896,000, against $4,552,390,000 for the similar period of last year, a drop of 0.6 per cent. This contrasted with a decline of 2.0 per cent in the same comparison a week earlier.

At New York City the total of $2,708,741,000 was a decrease of 9.5 per cent from the 1935 comparative, while the percentage of loss in the week preceding was 12.9. The amount for the current period at outside centers was $1,816,155,000, or a gain of 16.4 per cent over last year's aggregate.

DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED States for the District of Columbia. First National Bank, Cincinnati, Ohio, plaintiff, vs. United States, et al, defendants. Equity No. 58807. The undersigned as trustees appointed by the Court have sold all the right, title and interest of the defendant Edward B. McLean in and to the real estate described in the bill of complaint, to-wit: "Part of Original Lot 1 and land adjacent thereto in Square 184, described as follows: Beginning for the same on the west line of Sixteenth street, at the northeast corner of said lot 1, and running thence west along the north line thereof, 45 feet; thence south 75 feet to the north line of "K" street; then east with said north line 45 feet to said west line of Sixteenth street; thence north with said west line 75 feet to the place of beginning; also part of original lot 16 in square 184, described as follows: Beginning for the same at the southwest corner of said lot and running thence east along the south line thereof 29 feet 3 inches to an east line of said lot; thence north along said east line 43 feet; thence west 29 feet 3 inches to the west line of said lot; thence south along said west line 43 feet to the place of beginning;" at private sale for the sum of Twelve Thousand Dollars ($12,000), payable $5,000 in cash upon the confirmation of the sale and the balance of $7,000 to be paid with interest at the rate of five per cent (5%) per annum at the expiration of the period within which the United States may redeem the property so sold, pursuant to section 4 of the Act of Congress of March 4, 1931, c. 515 (U. S. C. A., Title 28, Sec. 904), to-wit, one year from the date of sale, such balance to be represented by the promissory note of the purchaser bearing interest at the rate of five per cent (5%) per annum and to be secured by deed of trust on the property sold. Application to confirm such sale will be made to the Court on September 15, 1936. A bona fide cash offer, guaranteeing at least ten per cent (10%) increase over said price may be submitted to the Court and to the undersigned within 10 days from the date of this publication, or prior to the entry of an order or decree of confirmation. If no such offer is so submitted the sale will be confirmed by the Court. Dated August 28, 1936.

Auction Sales

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 1, 1936—
THOS. J. OWEN & SON, Auctioneers.

1431 Eye Street Northwest.

TRUSTEES' SALE OF VALUABLE TWO-STORY FRAME AND BRICK DWELLING, KNOWN AS PREMISES NO. 3708 MORRISON STREET NORTHWEST.

By virtue of a certain deed of trust duly recorded, in Liber No. 6761, folio 111 et seq., of the land records of the District of Columbia, and at the request of party secured thereby, the undersigned trustees will sell, at public auction, in front of the premises, on TUESDAY, THE FIRST DAY OF SEPTEMBER, A. D. 1936, AT FOUR O'CLOCK P. M., the following-described land and premises, situate in the District of Columbia, and designated as and being lot 56 in the Chevy Chase Land Company's subdivision of lots in Square 1868, "Chevy Chase," as per plat recorded in the office of the Surveyor for the District of Columbia in Liber 38 at folio 189; subject to the building restriction line as shown on said plat. Subject to the right of redemption by the maker of the aforesaid deed of trust, his heirs or assigns, within a period of sixty days from the date of sale, not excluding Sundays and holidays as provided in said deed of trust.

TERMS OF SALE: One-third of the purchase money to be paid in cash, balance in two equal installments, payable in one and two years, with interest at five per centum per annum, payable semiannually, from day of sale, secured by first deed of trust upon the property sold, or all cash, at the option of the purchaser. A deposit of $500.00 will be required at time of sale. All conveyancing, recording, etc., at cost of purchaser. Terms of sale to be complied with within ten days from expiration of redemption period, otherwise the trustees reserve the right to resell the property at the risk and cost of defaulting purchaser, after five days' advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C.

1. Find the apartment that meets your requirement—in the section in which you want to live.

2. Note the key letters and the number at the end of the ad. For example: D-5.

3. Then find the letter of the alphabet (in this case, D) at the top of the map. This means the apartment is located somewhere between the D at the top and the D at the bottom of the map.

4. Then look for the numeral (in this case, 5) at either side of the map. Where the D and 5 meet is the vicinity in which the apartment is located.

14 Union Units to March In Frostburg Parade

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Frostburg, Md., Aug. 27.—The executive committee in charge of the Labor Day rally to be held here Monday, September 7, announced that the marshals in charge of the parade would be Dr. James C. Cobey, chief marshal, and Joseph Lyons, grocer and Edward J. Ryan, city attorney, assistants.

Cumberland Local, No. 26, United Rubber Workers of America, will be represented in the line of march. Thirteen locals of the United Mine Workers of America, which have, according to Benjamin H. Rowe, secretary of the parade committee, a membership of 6,600, will take part in the parade. The committee decided to have the Labor Day addresses delivered at 11 a. m., following the parade, which will disband at Junior Order Park. The program will include contests and the crowning of "Queen of the Dance."

Lightning Hits Church.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 27.—During the rain and electrical storm late yesterday, lightning struck the steeple of the former St. Luke's Lutheran Church, a brick structure built in 1842 on Bedford street, tearing off a lightning rod and ball and splintered a number of the slate shingles. The building did not ignite. It is used by the First Church of Christ.

Black Legion, Mooney Studies Opposed by Bar

Committee Fighting Child Labor Amendment Is Backed After Battle.

By the Associated Press.

Boston, Aug. 27.—The American Bar Association rejected by overwhelming votes today resolutions calling for investigations of the Billings-Mooney case, the Black Legion, and various labor disputes, and voted to continue in office its special committee which assailed the Roosevelt Administration for "detouring the Constitution" by means of New Deal legislation. The report will be taken up by the assembly at its final session tomorrow.

The bitterest fight on the floor of the assembly to date arose over the report of the special committee to oppose ratification of the Federal child labor amendment.

The committee's recommendation that it be continued for the coming year to further its activities against ratification was adopted, 233 to 109, despite a battle to discharge the committee, led by Isidore Ostroff, of Philadelphia, and Charles M. Hay, of St. Louis.

Ostroff asserted the amendment was approved in letters from both President Roosevelt and Gov. Alf M. Landon, Republican Presidential nominee. The report of the committee, which urged defeat of the amendment, he said, was "lacking in understanding of the social implications of child labor."

A resolution calling for an amendment to the United States Constitution to permit Congress to enact social security laws went down to overwhelming defeat.

A spirited debate developed over a proposal to ask the Works Progress Administration to aid needy lawyers by financing an analysis of the common law by the American Law Institute or other projects.

The proposal met disapproval after Ira Jewell Williams and W. W. Montgomery, of Philadelphia, expressed fear the resolution might be construed as voicing approval of WPA activities.

Ickes, Hard

had already communicated his views to his candidate. Mr. Hearst is even on such intimate terms with the candidate that he can even venture, as this letter shows, to express his opinion as to what he believes the Governor feels."

Turnin to Hard, the radio listener would have heard him say, in effect, "How about the 'loyalty oaths'?"

"Mr. Hearst," said Hard, "is a man of strong convictions, and in his newspapers this morning he disagrees heartily on the subject of 'loyalty oaths' with Gov. Landon, whom he is supporting for the Presidency. Mr. Hearst has had similar disagreements with Franklin Delano Roosevelt, whom he supported for the Presidency in 1928. Mr Hearst would be the last man to imagine that he can control the candidates whom he supports. He would be the last man to attempt it. He has had too much experience."

Ickes said Hearst, after supporting President Roosevelt in 1932, became angry because he was not given special privileges in relation to filing income tax reports. He said Hearst had gone to Topeka and "looked upon Gov. Landon and found him good."

A whirl of the radio dial would find Hard suggesting that efforts of Ickes and other New Deal spokesmen to blacken the character of Gov. Landon by blackening the character of Hearst "should be brought earnestly to the attention of Charles Michelson and of the President's son, Elliott."

After asserting Michelson had been on the Hearst pay roll for 20 years, Hard said Elliott was "exercising his legal and moral right" to be in the Hearst service.

"He serves Mr. Hearst as vice president of the Hearst radio broadcasting stations in Texas and Oklahoma," said Hard. "He also serves him as representative in negotiations with the Federal Communications Commission in Washington. He does it with conspicuous success.

"He has been able this year to present the commission with arguments which have persuaded it to add four stations to the Hearst outfit of broadcasting properties, now numbering ten. It is odd that Mr. Ickes should not know of the Hearst activities of the son of the gentleman whom he is supporting for President."

Belittles Landon.

"While there is no written evidence," Ickes said, "to prove that Mr. Hearst also has told Gov. Landon that he should say as little as possible and then only in unctuous inanities on those occasions when he could avoid making speeches, who can doubt that he has done so?

"How otherwise explain the Republican candidate's elocutionary efforts? Has any aspirant for the office of Chief Executive ever said so little that is worth listening to? He may 'condemn' in conventional fashion, he may 'view with alarm,' but this seems to be the limit beyond which he is not permitted to go. If he is a Trilby who, except William Randolph Hearst, can be the Svengali?"

Hard said that if Ickes could remember the "interesting historical fact" that President Roosevelt was nominated with the aid of Hearst, he would be able to understand the difference between "helping a candidate and "telling him what to do."

He pointed out that Hearst violently opposed entrance of the United States into the World Court, but that Roosevelt had vigorously advocated it.

Text of Roosevelt Drought Talk

Bismarck, N. Dak., Aug. 27 (AP). Following is the text of President Roosevelt's extemporaneous address here today:

As you know, I came out here to see things with my own eyes. I felt that I could learn a lot more by coming out than by just reading blueprints and reports back in Washington.

What I have seen confirms me in the belief that I have had for a long time—the belief that we are going to win on this problem.

It really comes down to three problems: The first is the immediate one of keeping people going who have lost their crops and lost their livestock.

The second is to keep them going over the winter until next year, when we hope we will have more rain.

The third problem relates to the future—not only the future of North Dakota, but the future of a good many other States. It relates to working out a plan of co-operation with nature instead of going along with what we have been doing in the past—trying to buck nature.

Co-operation Needed.

That means co-operation between all agencies involved. There are a lot of Federal agencies, there are State agencies and there are local agencies and our chief problem now is to work out a plan that all of these different agencies can carry out, working intelligently with each other and not crossing wires.

It means we have got to have the co-operation of the people in the cities as well as the people on the farms. It is just as much their problem as it is the problem of the farmers themselves. Incidentally, in an agricultural country, there would not be any cities if there were not farms.

There was another reason for coming out here and that was to look at you people. Back East there have been all kinds of reports that out in the drought area there was a despondency, a lack of hope for the future and a general atmosphere of gloom. But I had a hunch, and it was the right one, that when I got out here I would find that you people had your chins up; that you are not looking forward to the day when this country would be depopulated, but that you and your children expect to remain here.

Remain Populated.

And that is what we all want to see—the people in every part of the country. We want to see this country remain populated. We want to see it attain a greater prosperity.

A few days ago I was passing through one of the greatest industrial centers in the United States, Gary, Ind., where you pass through mile after mile of steel factories. I told them there what is perfectly true, that your problem out here is their problem back there, because the perfectly obvious fact is that steel factories would not run at full capacity unless the agricultural States were in a position to buy farm implements and other products of the steel mills.

I have learned a great deal today and I am going to learn more in the next few days. I get a picture which reassures me as to the future of the so-called Great Plains drought area—reassurance of the fact that the Government can and must and will go ahead—not only the Federal Government, but the State government and the local government—go ahead with winning out through a system of careful long range planning.

And so I ask your co-operation through many, many years to come in putting that kind of a program into effect.

And again I say that you are not licked.

Black Legion's Killer Appears Before Judge

Detroit, Aug. 27 (AP).—Dayton Dean, Black Legion killer turned informer, appeared before the Oakland grand jury in Pontiac today while Michigan awaited action on its requests for custody of Virgil F. (Bert) Effinger, who is described by Duncan C. McCrea, prosecutor here, as national head of the Black Legion.

Three other men sought for questioning by the Oakland grand jury were reported missing today. Cyril Stroh, a Royal Oak patrolman, did not return from his vacation in July and two others, said by court officers to be leaders in the Black Legion, could not be found. Their names were not disclosed.

Kiwanians Hear Bell Talk on Seal Industry

The most profitable "skin game" in America is the seal fishery industry, Frank T. Bell, commissioner of the Bureau of Fisheries, told Kiwanis Club members yesterday at their weekly meeting at the Mayflower.

Bell explained the habits of the seals and said it was the aim of his bureau to increase the existing number, about one and a half million, to two million.

Droughts Peril To Democracy, Roosevelt Told

He returned to his train to confer again.

As thousands of citizens stood about the station platform gaping hopefully at his car in expectation of catching a glimpse of him through the windows, he sat at the conference table digesting statistics which showed that since January 1, 1933, the Federal Government had poured approximately a half billion dollars into the Great Plains regions in works, grants, loans and relief disbursements.

Arrest of soil waste by erosion and efficient use of the water resources.

"The region should be divided into sub-areas and studies should be made to determine the kinds of agricultural practice and engineering treatment required.

"The work relief program, the program of major public works and action by farmers themselves, working in co-operating groups, can contribute to the carrying out of this program. Long-term credit must be made available to farmers attempting to help themselves.

"Land not too far depleted for restoration should be leased or optioned by the Government with the stipulation that the owners carry on an approved program of restoration to grass or forest.

"City zoning ordinances should be studied for precedents for public action to protect land against uses held to be harmful to the public interest.

"Wherever possible the co-operative principle should be invoked and encouraged.

"We recommend thorough exploration of the possibilities of covering the unavoidable risks resulting from the irregular alteration of good years and bad by some form of insurance. A proposed solution, which studies by the Department of Agriculture indicate may be actuarially sound, calls for the collection of a portion of the surplus in bumper years with repayment in kind during years when crops fall below normal.

"We are convinced that in many vital respects the initiative must be taken by the Federal Government. We suggest a study to determine what new Federal legislation, if any, may be necessary in order to permit the central government to promote the transfer from crop to grass farming where necessary.

"We recommend the establishment of a board, representative of pertinent Federal and State agencies, to integrate and implement the lines of action suggested.

"We endanger our democracy if we allow the Great Plains or any other section of the country to become an economic desert."

In addition to the summary of recommendations the committee presented to Mr. Roosevelt a number of highlights of their survey which ranged from the Texas Panhandle to the Canadian line.

"We offer," the committee said, "a basic program at this time because we believe there is general agreement as to the main facts among those most familiar with the situation, and because we are convinced that activities for permanent rehabilitation and reconstruction already undertaken must be speeded up and expanded if the Great Plains area is to avoid a worse disaster than has yet befallen it."

The President came to North Dakota today via Fargo and Jamestown. From the windows of his air-conditioned train he glimpsed seared fields although in certain stretches recent rainfall had revived grass on which cattle and horses fed.

U. S. Bars Visit Of British M. P., Leader of Reds

By Sidney Olson.

The United States Government last night slammed its door shut to the only Communist member of the British Parliament, William Gallacher.

Overruling protests of the Civil Liberties Union, which held that Gallacher sought admission to this country only to visit his sisters in Chicago, Secretary of State Cordell Hull excluded Gallacher because of "his position in the international Communist movement."

The immigration law forbids the entry into this country of persons who belong to groups which are primarily formed for the overthrow of organized governments by force or violence.

Gallacher, at Fort William and Port Arthur, Canada, had applied for a visa allowing temporary entry into this country. Secretary Hull, stating that he was entirely familiar with the case, and had given it "very careful consideration," pointed out that Gallacher's position in the Comintern brought him within the excluding provisions of the act of October 16, 1918, as amended by the act of June 5, 1920.

After the protest of the Civil Liberties Union was received, the Secretary reviewed the case fully, but still denied the visa, according to yesterday's announcement.

The Civil Liberties Union said that Gallacher had not planned to engage in political activities while in this country, but wanted merely to viist his sisters in Chicago. It criticized the exclusion by Secretary Hull on the grounds that the immigration law permits discretion in such cases.

Gallacher, in Canada for a series of lectures on world peace, said in London on July 30 that he hoped to attend his nephew's wedding in Chicago on August 25, but that he feared he would be denied admission to the United States because of his politics.

The Civil Liberties Union had held that discretion should have been exercised in the case of Gallacher since he is a member of "a legislative body." Their protest said:

"As a matter of public policy, the American public has nothing to fear from the presence for a few brief weeks of a foreign Communist.

"Indeed in this case, we are advised that Mr. Gallacher sought to visit his sisters in Chicago, not to engage in political activities.

"We hold that he should have been free to do either and that sound American policy tolerates that view."

It was understood that Gallacher left England with a number of letters from prominent Englishmen testifying to his probity. The State Department said that no representations in the matter had been made by the British government in the case.

In 1925 Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg revoked a visa previously granted to Shapurji Saklatvala, a Communist member of the British Parliament at that time, who desired to enter the United States to attend a conference of the Inter-Parliamentary Union.

The Civil Liberties Union, referring to the Saklatvala case, held that the discretionary power of the State Department should have been exercised, and cited precedents in the cases of Tom Mann, of England, and Henri Barbusse, of France, both well-known Communists, but both of whom were allowed entry.

Roosevelt Gets Drought Data At First Hand From Sufferers

President, Begrimed by Dust, Drives to Very Doorsteps of Stricken Farmers in North Dakota; 'Everything to Be All Right,' He Says.

By the Associated Press.

Bismarck, N. Dak., Aug. 27.—President Roosevelt today drove to the very doorsteps of drought-stricken North Dakota farmers to hear in halting phrases the story of their fight against the almost insurmountable odds of a searing sun, no rain, grasshoppers and beetles.

Through clouds of choking dust that begrimed his face and coated his clothes with a fine layer of brown sediment, the Chief Executive toured the country in and about this city asking questions of his overall-garbed hosts.

"How many acres have you?" he asked J. J. Boehme, who stood in the farmyard of his weather-beaten prairie dwelling while four children clustered about him.

Boehme replied: "Mr. President, I have 480 and I am having a hard time making a go of it."

"How many acres have you under cultivation?" was the next question.

All Crops Burned Up.

"Any water on the place? Have you a well?"

"Yes, a good well but we have been short this summer."

"What about your crops?"

"Well, everything is going to be all right," the President said as he departed.

"I have 160 acres," Helman said.

"Well, I'm glad to see you have turkeys and chickens, too," the President observed as he looked around the yard where the fowl were eating and where a calf and two dogs were tied.

"I got the stuff but nothing to feed them," Helman answered. "I lost my corn, didn't even get a kernel. The corn didn't come up."

"How about your water supply?" Mr. Roosevelt then asked.

"I have to haul my water a mile and a half away and it's tough," the farmer said.

"Hang On to Those Chickens."

"No. It costs too much and I'm broke. I have to haul 150 gallons every day and it's dangerous 'cause the kids like to go and one of them nearly got run over on the main highway not long ago."

Mr. Roosevelt nodded sympathetically and, leaving, turned to Helman and said:

Before driving to the farm, the President visited a WPA reservoir project 20 miles from Bismarck. He greeted half a dozen workers and said to them:

"Keep up the good work, boys. I am learning something."

President Roosevelt pointed out that the drought consisted of three problems:

To keep things going in the present emergency.

"This last point," he said, "relates to a plan for working out a program of co-operating with Nature instead of, as in the past, trying to buck Nature. It involves Federal, State and local co-operation."
